Huge Crowds Hear Truman In Camden, Philadelphia

President Asserts Dewey's 'Company Union' Unity Is Harmful to U. S.

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 6.—President Truman tonight accused Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of fostering "company union" unity in America and said that kind of unity will weaken America's hand in world affairs.

Mr. Truman veered from domestic to foreign policy issues for the first time in his campaign after a flailing, tri-State attack on the Eightieth Congress and what he called Republican "quackery."

Huge crowds, running well into hundreds of thousands, and topping any Mr. Truman has received since he "began to fight," glimpsed the President's afternoon-long motor circuit of Philadelphia and Camden.

Suggests New GOP Slogan

Earlier, about 2000 turned out at Wilmington, Del., to hear Mr. Truman suggest an improvement in the GOP's 1928 "chicken in every pot, etc." slogan. He proposed Republicans instead switch to "two families in every garage."

Then tonight in Philadelphia's Convention Hall, he reached for the foreign policy ball Governor Dewey grabbed and ran with 10 days ago.

In the same spot where he accepted the Democratic nomination nearly three months ago, Mr. Truman touched off a miniature version of the bedlam that broke loose after that 2 a. m. acceptance speech.

The crowd yelled for four minutes before he spoke. Multicolored balloons and signs reading "Vote for a Tru-Man" and "We're for Harry" danced around the hall.

They roared when he compared GOP unity proposals to a "company union" and referred to the Republican "new look." And they shouted "no" when he asked: "Do we want that kind of unity?"

But these ad libbed lines got the best hand:

"Peace is the goal of my life. I'd rather have lasting peace in the world than be President. I live for peace, I work for peace and I pray for peace."

Police estimated the crowd at about 12,000. It filled all but the top rear tier of the horseshoe balcony that looked down on the scene of three nominating conventions in a month.

Disputes Rival's Claims

Without mentioning Dewey's name, he said "nothing could be further from the truth" than his opponent's claim that a country united behind a GOP President and Congress will strengthen our voice in world affairs.

"The United States is the hope of the world because we are a free people and because we are prosperous," he said.

"When these freedoms begin to be cut down and when our great prosperity begins to wane under the dead hand of reaction, then our chances of leading the world to peace will surely be weakened."

Gov. Dewey, who early last week started plugging for unity to strengthen America's hand at home and abroad, conferred yesterday on

Mrs. Bushfield Named South Dakota Senator

Pierre, S. Dak., Oct. 6 (AP).—Mrs. Vera C. Bushfield was named United States Senator from South Dakota today. She succeeds her husband, Harlan J. Bushfield, who died September 27, and whose term expires with the present Congress.

The appointment, by Gov. George T. Mickelson, was made with the understanding Mrs. Bushfield will resign shortly before December 30, when the Eightieth Congress reconvenes. The Governor said the Senator elected November 2 then will be appointed.

Phone Girl Directs Rescuers To Home of Gassed Couple

"Something horrible has happened," a woman's voice moaned. "My husband . . . collapsed . . . I fell, coming to the phone . . ."

The quick-thinking Silver Spring telephone operator tensed at the switchboard, demanded the woman's phone number.

"Shepherd 2260," mumbled the trailing voice as operator Miss Antoinette Capone hastily connected the call with Silver Spring Rescue Squad.

Then only the plunk of a telephone receiver as it fell to the floor.

Miss Capone, and her supervisor, Mrs. Mary B. Craft, traced the address of the phone number; directed the rescue squad.

An Atomic Energy Commission statistician and economist, Mrs. Zoe Huie, 52, and her husband, Byron S. Huie, 67, Reconstruction Finance Corporation examiner, were alive in Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, last night because of the operator's quick thinking and action.

They were found overcome by carbon monoxide poisoning from the coal furnace in their rambling, brown shingle home, 2500 Forest Glen rd., Silver Spring. They were revived by the rescue squad, assisted by a neighbor, Dr. Kenneth E. Blundon, 2501 Forest Glen rd. Huie was reported in fair condition, his wife in good condition, last night.

The operator, Miss Capone, 23, of 6519 7th pl. nw., a slight brunette known as "Nitze," later observed: "Really, I didn't do anything, much." Her supervisor, Mrs. Craft, lives at 802 Spring st., Silver Spring.

Police said the couple returned from a vacation in Atlanta, Ga., Tuesday night and built up a fire in the coal furnace before retiring. They awakened about 5 a. m., with headaches and nausea, then returned to sleep. Later they awakened, tried to open doors to the screened porch when he collapsed and she struggled to the phone, about 11:30 a. m.

"Another half hour and they would have been seriously crippled," said Dr. Blundon.

Montgomery Charter Draft Upheld in Test

Ruled Constitutional By Court of Appeals; Complaint Dismissed

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

The Maryland Court of Appeals ruled in effect yesterday that the proposed Montgomery County charter, as originally drafted should be voted on at next month's general election.

A ruling by Montgomery County Circuit Court on July 29 that a clause of the charter is unconstitutional and should be deleted was reversed by the higher court decision.

The Appeals Court also dismissed a bill of complaint filed by Hubert A. Schneider in which the Bethesda attorney who contested legality of the charter had asked for an injunction prohibiting the charter referendum.

To Study Opinion

There was some speculation over the full implications of the brief announcement and attorneys said they would withhold comment until they studied the court's opinion.

Chief Judge Ogle Marbury, of the Court of Appeals, told The Washington Post by telephone last night that the court "did nothing else" but reverse the lower court decision and dismiss Schneider's bill of complaint.

He was uncertain when the written opinion will be issued.

Charter leaders in the county greeted the news joyfully and said that plans already are under way for "a vigorous campaign" before the November 2 election.

"We are highly pleased because the controversial points of the proposed charter have been approved by the highest court in Maryland," said Col. Norman B. Ames, chairman of the county charter committee.

"Should Allay Doubts"

"This should allay the doubts of all and pave the way for efficient government in Montgomery County, and it is hoped that all voters and residents will unite in this effort," he said, adding:

"It is further hoped that those who actually opposed charter on

Comic Books Purge Due to D.C. Policeman

Capt. Murphy Began Campaign Here, Then Publishers Joined It

The Nation's comic book publishers launched an effort to clean up their publications after a Washington police officer warned them of the bad effects "horror and crime" stories were having on youngsters.

Capt. Murphy

The effort of the industry to police itself will be apparent within the next six weeks when "approved" comic books will carry a star insignia on the front cover.

The police officer is Capt. William Murphy, now commanding officer of the Fourteenth Precinct, who started the job last summer when he was head of the police juvenile bureau.

Murphy first approached local distributors, who agreed to stop distribution of "harmful" books.

Captain Murphy said he felt the "horror" books had a disturbing effect on youngsters, possibly implanting criminal notions.

The publishers got in touch with Murphy and volunteered to take action.

"The cooperation was remarkable," he commented.

Finally the publishers decided to form an association to self-censor their books.

To earn the star of approval, the comic book must live up to a standard of ethics, which has been devised by the Associatio nof Comics Book publishers, in New York.

The standard of ethics calls for toning down lurid covers, and cutting out stories of women criminals and pictures of nearly nude women, according to Philip Keenan, president of the association.

In addition, the association has asked several leading educators and public figures in New York to serve on a committee to decide what is acceptable for comic books, Keenan said.

Approximately 35 publishers print 60 million copies of 300 various comic books each month, he said. Of these publishers, 16 have already joined the association and are abiding by its decisions.

Cost of Uniforms Cut

Army Is Asked for Officers To Train High School Cadets

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

The Board of Education yesterday cut the cost of high school cadet uniforms by a third and called on the Army to provide reserve officers for training cadets.

The two actions were part of a six-point program recommended by Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning and adopted by the board to encourage enlistments.

Corning reported that while in 1940 more than 31 per cent of boys enrolled in the white high schools participated in cadets, the figure has dropped to 12.5 per cent this year.

Corning's report came in response to a letter from Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, commanding officer of the Military District of Washington, threatening to withdraw Army support of cadets unless enrollments are increased.

Feller Loses 2-Hitter to Braves, 1-0

Holmes' Single in 8th Wins Series Opener for Sain Before 40,135

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Boston, Oct. 6.—Boston's team of destiny, the Braves, barged into the World Series lead today exactly like a team of destiny—contriving a 1-0 victory over Bob Feller's 2-hit pitching for the Cleveland Indians.

In Johnny Sain, the curveballer, the Braves produced a man of their own who could outpitch Feller on a day when Feller was superb—and in Right Fielder Tommy Holmes, the Braves had a man who could break up a ball game.

Sain tied into Feller in a World Series classic and was the opening game winner for the Braves and their 40,135 alternately apprehensive and wild-eyed fans when Holmes' bat cracked out an eighth inning single to left.

Until then the pitchers were in complete command. Sain was pitching a four-hitter, and Feller was pitching one-hit ball. And then the strategy of Cleveland Manager Lou Boudreau backfired in the eighth inning.

Boudreau Orders Stanky Passed

Feller tempted the Braves, to his sorrow, by walking Catcher Bill Salkeld with none out, and Mike McCormick nudged the runner to second with a sacrifice bunt.

Now Boudreau's master-minding called for a deliberate pass to eighth-place hitter Eddie Stanky. Sain flied out harmlessly to Walter Judnich, but with a count of one-and one, Holmes whipped a line single to left and Pinch-runner Masi joyfully pranced home with the day's only run.

With the second and last hit of the day off Feller, the Braves revamped tonight's World Series picture. The Boston Club, the somewhat despised 2-to-1 underdogs of yesterday, now are labeled equal choices to win the series.

And tomorrow they will shoot with the No. 2 pitcher and workhorse teammate of Sain's, Warren Spahn, a 15-game winner. But Cleveland will be coming up to that second game with a well-rested pitcher in 20-game Bob Lemon, in contrast to Feller's mere two-day rest.

Judnich Takes Third Strike

Sain was reaching greedily for his 1-0 victory when the Indians came to bat in the ninth, and moans were in the throats of Braves' fans when Boudreau lashed a line drive into center field. It evolved as merely a long out, however, with Mike McCormick camping under it, and when Joe Gordon fouled to Alvin Dark for the Indians' second out, Sain appeared home.

But not yet—Sain wasn't getting over the hump that easily. Ken Keltner grounded to Third Baseman Bob Elliott and horror seized Braves Field in the next moment. Elliott's throw was a panicky heave that sailed over First Baseman Eddie Stanky's head against the field boxes and Keltner was waved to second by Umpire Bill Summers who knew the ground rules.

Sain bent back to his task, with the tying run now in scoring position. He worked on Judnich, got the first strike over. The next pitch produced strike two, as Judnich swung futilely. And now Sain curve-balled a bewildered, bat-on-shoulder Judnich on the third pitch, and the Braves had their victory.

It was a grim thing all after-

Red Feather Drive Starts Here Today

Goal of Welfare Campaign for 104 Agencies and USO Is $4,566,790

The 1949 Red Feather Campaign to aid the many in need begins officially today.

The District Commissioners, mindful of the mounting appeals for help from young and old, yesterday urged that "each of us . . . devote ourselves to the welfare of our community by working for and supporting generously this indispensable civic organization, the Community Chest Federation."

In a special proclamation, they established this day as Red Feather Day. The twentieth annual campaign seeks to raise $4,566,790 for 104 health, welfare and recreation agencies and the USO. It will continue through November 4.

The Commissioners' statement declared that the proposed contribution of a day's pay from all who have incomes "is in the American pioneer tradition, when neighbors gathered together for one day's full service to a neighbor facing building, plowing or harvesting emergencies."

Thousands of volunteer workers will assist in the drive, making door-to-door canvasses in residential areas. Chauncey G. Parker is general campaign chairman.

Today is the official beginning of the drive despite the fact that several units got a head start of a week or more. These include special gifts, Government, business I and II.

Today, at 12:30 p. m. in Hotel Washington, G. Howland Shaw, former Assistant Secretary of State, and Morgan Beatty, news analyst, will address the sixth annual joint meeting of men's service clubs. At the same time, in Hotel Burlington, key workers in the Government unit will meet for a progress report.

Russia Discloses New Demand for Italian Navy Units

Moscow (Thursday), Oct. 7 (AP). Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov has made a new demand that the Italian government turn over Italian naval units to Russia immediately, it was disclosed today.

The Soviet news agency Tass said Molotov made the demand after summoning Italian Ambassador Manlio Brosio to the Foreign Ministry.

The Italian ships in question were the vessels which, according to the peace treaty, Italy is required to hand over to Russia.

(A Moscow radio broadcast heard in London quoted Tass as saying Molotov had seen Brosio October 4 and reminded him that under the peace treaty Italy is committed to turn over to Russia 33 ships within three months of the date the treaty came into force—December 15, 1947.

("Nevertheless," Molotov's statement said, "the Italian government has not turned over a single ship to the Soviet Union to this date." He said the Soviet government "insists the Italian government should immediately take steps to carry out . . . the provisions of the peace treaty."

PHA Again Bars Sale of Land For Greenbelt Church Sites

By Walter T. Pulliam
Post Reporter

The Federal Government's model town of Greenbelt, Md., appeared destined yesterday to remain a town without churches—at least, as long as the Government owns it.

Despite pleas from leaders of six religious groups active in the 8000-population community, the Public Housing Administration reaffirmed its refusal to sell town land for church sites.

PHA would "like to accommodate," said Robert A. Marshall, acting director of PHA's Information Division, but, he added, PHA hands are tied by Supreme Court decisions outlawing Government aid to religion.

Under the rulings, Marshall said, PHA cannot legally donate or set aside land for churches. And selling them small tracts, he added, is out since PHA proposes to put the depression-built town in its entirety on the block.

Greenbelt churchmen, who said $75,000 to $100,000 already had been raised for buildings, announced formation of a joint, interfaith committee to continue the fight.

The Rev. Eric T. Brand, leader of the group, charged PHA officials with "passive coolness and disinterestedness" and asked how much longer the Government could defy "the American religious tradition by the omission of church buildings in this 'ideally planned community.'"

Greenbelt was completed in 1937. Since then Protestants and Jews have held services in the school auditorium and Catholics in the town theater. Two years ago Methodists erected a small temporary structure on a site obtained from PHA on a short-term lease, which expired July 1. The lease, however, has been extended another year, PHA officials said.

Town Manager Charles T. McDonald, who has appealed to PHA Area Director Joseph C. Gray, said a survey two years ago showed approximately 1600 Protestants, 1100 Catholics, 400 Jews and smaller numbers of what were classed as "independents" within the community.

When the town's religious leaders first sought church sites, McDonald said, PHA told them they might obtain such on 99-year leases and later that they might purchase property on restricted deeds.

"On the strength of these commitments, the different church groups proceeded with campaigns to raise funds and now have sufficient money to begin building," McDonald said.

Council Told Big 3 Won't Talk With Reds Till Blockade Ends

The Berlin Story

Russian Attitude Hardened At Very Moment Envoys Hoped for Berlin Accord

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.

THE three Western governments had appealed to Stalin to lift the blockade; then they had tried, and failed, to work out an agreement with Molotov in weary meetings that dragged on all through the first half of August. Now they felt the time had come to go back to Stalin with a series of questions.

Molotov's position on a number of crucial points had seemed to contradict what Stalin had said on August 2, when he first saw the three Western envoys in Moscow. On August 23, when Stalin received the Westerners for the second time, American Ambassador Bedell Smith tried to get clear and definite answers on two points.

The first was this: Was Stalin willing to lift the blockade completely? Or was he willing only to lift those restrictions that had been imposed after June 18, thus leaving the earlier blockade measures of April and May in full force?

Molotov, who, of course, was present, said the Soviet government would lift only the restrictions imposed after June 18. When the three envoys objected (according to the State Department version), "Stalin then suggested that it might be better to say 'the restrictions lately imposed,' and confirmed that if there were any imposed before that date they would also be lifted."

There had been restrictions, and serious ones, before June 18—among them the inspection of every passenger and every piece of baggage, the licensing of every bargeload of freight and the closing of the automobile highway for bridge "repairs." The Westerners thought Stalin's assurance was good, and they went on to the second point in dispute—the Berlin currency.

HOW DID STALIN propose to have the four powers control the money to be circulated in Berlin? He answered that the same kind of currency would circulate in Berlin as in the wider Soviet zone of Germany outside the city. The Soviet-zone bank that printed and issued the money, he said, would have to control its use in Berlin and in the Soviet zone alike; but—and this was important to the Westerners—a financial committee representing the four powers would work out arrangements for controlling the currency "and would supervise what the bank was doing."

This again was satisfactory to the Western envoys. They were willing to have Soviet-zone money used in Berlin, but they insisted on some four-power arrangement that would prevent the Russians from printing unlimited quantities, from flooding Berlin with uncontrolled paper money, from buying up enterprises in the Western sectors and disrupting the economic life of the city.

Stalin, in turn, now asked for assurance on the one point that bothered him more than any other: namely, the Western allies'

Agency Adjourns, Subject to Call, For Detailed Study Of Western Stand

By Walter Kerr

Paris, Oct. 6 (NYHT).—The United States, Great Britain and France told the Security Council of the United Nations today they are willing to discuss the whole German problem with the Soviet government, but not until the Russians raise the Berlin blockade.

The blockade, they reported, is a threat to international peace and security, and direct negotiation in the four-power Council of Foreign Ministers is out of the question until the threat has been removed.

Among the delegates who listended to the Western spokesmen was Andrei Y. Vishinsky, the Soviet Union's First Deputy Foreign Minister, who announced yesterday that his government would not participate in the Security Council's discussion of the case. True to his word, he did not participate, but he sat through the morning and afternoon meetings—alternately reading a newspaper, listening, writing notes and listening again.

Reds Take No Chances

His presence was explained by the fact that there is some question as to whether he can exercise the veto unless he is present and participating in a vote. Therefore, he was taking no chances that a sudden recommendation for Security Council action be proposed in his absence. Perhaps for the same reason the Ukrainian chair was occupied by Vasili A. Tarasenko.

Today's two meetings were taken up by presentations of the American, British and French charge that the Soviet Union's blockade of the former German capital constitutes a threat to the peace. The Russians, having denied the accusation, said the matter was one for discussion by the Council of Foreign Ministers and not the United Nations. The West, however, refusing to bargain under what it says is duress, insists the blockade be raised before any direct talks begin.

On this note the Security Council adjourned this afternoon subject to the call of its President, Juan A. Bramuglia, the Argentine Foreign Minister. Before it were statements of the Western position which will have to be studied in detail. It is doubtful that another meeting will be held before Saturday.

Stand Reaffirmed

In offering to meet with the Russians once they end the blockade, the Western powers were saying nothing they had not said before They were just repeating a willingness to work for a general settlement once the use of force or the threat of force has been removed.

The complaining states reaffirmed today their decision not to suggest a solution to the Council but to leave all recommendations to states which are not parties to the dispute.

The speakers were Dr. Philip C. Jessup for the United States, Sir

Boss Crump Gives Backing To Dixiecrats

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 6 (AP).—Tennessee Democratic political leader E. H. Crump tonight indorsed the States Rights presidential ticket of J. Strom Thurmond and Fielding L. Wright.

Crump, head of the powerful Shelby County Democratic organization, tonight broke a long silence on the stand of the organization.

"We have decided to go for the States' Rights ticket for President," he said.

"Wallace is completely out.

"Truman has sold the South down the river for Negro votes in large northern cities.

"Dewey is no friend of the South. His argument against fair railroad rates for the South, and his other ideas on things dear to the South are too much. Therefore, Thurmond of South Carolina and Wright of Mississippi are the men for us to vote for. They stand for what a great majority of people in this section stand for."

Crump said he has "no comment" on how the organization stands on the candidates running for Tennessee Governor and Senator o the Democratic ticket.

A States Rights rally will be held Thursday night in the center of the Memphis business district.

Chiang Yields Manchurian Capital to Reds

Nanking, Oct. 6 (AP).—The government announced today it had abandoned Changchun. The Manchurian capital had been turned into a military liability by months of Communist siege.

It was believed President Chiang Kai-shek made the decision in order to concentrate government strength against the growing Red peril in North China and South Manchuria.

Some experts believe Chiang also may be ready to tell his troops to quit Mukden and fight south into China proper.

(The abandonment of all Manchuria reportedly has been urged often by United States military advisers in Nanking. They want the government to bring all its force to bear in North China, clear out the Communists, and then fight back into Manchuria, a great industrial prize.)

There was no indication, however, that the government means to leave Mukden. Lieut. Gen. Teng Wen-yi said fresh troops were pouring ashore at the south Manchurian port of Hulutao.

Japanese Cabinet Quits in Scandal

Tokyo (Thursday), Oct. 7 (U.P.).—Prime Minister Hitoshi Ashida and his ministers decided to ttake after eight months in office as the result of a scandal involving high government officials. It was the sixth cabinet of the occupation.

Earlier the cabinet met in emergency session, at which Ashida and his ministeres decided to take "political responsibility" for a bribery conspiracy that led to the arrest of Suehiro Nishio, former deputy premier, and another high government official.

The fall of the government sprang from the cracking of the sensational Showa Denko case. It involved not only Nishio but also cabinet member Takeo Kurushu, who was arrested last week on charges of accepting bribes from the country's biggest producers of fertilizers.

Army Passes on Plan Changes

Final Approval of Bay Bridge Clears Way for Sale of Bonds

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 6 (AP).—The decks were cleared today for the sale of bonds for Maryland's ancient dream, a bridge across Chesapeake Bay.

A spokesman for Governor Lane announced the Army Department has given final approval to plans for the crossing between Sandy Point on the Western Shore and Kent Island on the Eastern Shore.

The proposed new Chesapeake Bay bridge and two other bridges, one already completed, will enable motorists to bypass Washington, Baltimore, Wilmington and Philadelphia in a trip from Richmond to New York.

The new bridge will tie in with the coastal highway that now crosses the $5,500,000 Potomac River Bridge between Morgantown, [illegible], and Newburg, Va.

Assistant to the Governor Louis J. O'Donnell said latest revisions to the design of the span had been approved after examination by Army enginers

As a result of the Army action, the State is now prepared to complete the draft of self-liquidating bonds to pay for the 37-million-dollar structure.

PEOPLE In The NEWS

By Sam Stavisky

Robust Karl T. Compton, Research Chief, Is Far From Cloistered Type of Scientist

Karl T. Compton, newly appointed chairman of the National Military Establishment's Research and Development Board, is the exception who probably proves the rule that scientists are frail, pale men who dread fresh air.

The man who quit the presidency of Massachusetts Institute of Technology to head peacetime military research is a "man's man." He is, notwithstanding 61 years and snow-white hair, a robust individual, athletically built, with a love for the wild outdoors. Dr. Compton and his wife have gone off on canoe-and-camp jaunts through the woods of Maine and Minnesota, roughing it for weeks at a time.

23 Honorary Degrees

But, of course, it is not as a man of brawn but as a man of brain that Compton was selected for one of the Nation's top scientific posts. He is a physicist, educator and administrator. His achievements have been rewarded with 23 honorary degrees.

When it comes to degrees, the Compton family is prolific. The Compton brothers—Karl, Wilson, and Arthur—have among them so many honorary degrees they are difficult to compute.

Brother Wilson, three years Karl's junior, is president of Washington State College. Brother Arthur Holly, five years Karl's junior, is a Nobel Prize winner in physics and chancellor of Washington University in St. Louis. Karl himself had also distinguished himself in the field of physics as a Princeton professor when called to M. I. T. in 1930.

Father and Mother, Too

Their father, Elias, was a professor of philosophy at the College of Wooster, Wooster, Ohio, and their mother, Otelia, was awarded an LL. D. by Western College, Oxford, Ohio, for her achievements as wife and mother. She was also selected as "Mother of the Year" in 1939.

It was at M. I. T., a rigorous training school for scientists and leaders of industry, that Karl displayed his talent for dealing with people as well as with laboratory problems. This ability was recognized during World War II when he was placed in charge of the field service of the Office of Scientific Research Development. It was Compton's task to round up qualified "combat" scientists for handling spot problems in the theaters of war. A colleague summed up "K. T.'s" knack this way: "He gets things cooking in short order."

As a scientist, Dr. Compton contributed to the development of radar, the atom bomb, synthetic rubber. Since the war, he has served as deputy to Dr. Vannevar Bush, whom he succeeds as head of the Research and Development Board. He has spoken out for universal military service, for the Marshall Plan, and for freedom of scientists from congressional committee harassment.

Unlike many scientific men, Dr. Compton doesn't get ill at ease in the presence of the press. He answers questions clearly and simply. But when reporters by various indirections seek to get him to discuss a hush-hush project, Compton may reply with the following story:

"At a banquet in his honor, a bishop spilled the salt cellar. To cover his embarrassment, the bishop sprinkled the salt over his shoulder . . . and to his consternation the salt fell all over a dowager. She, however, wasn't upset. She merely murmured: "Now, now, bishop, you can't catch me that way."

plans made in London in the spring, for setting up a west German state.

The German politicians in the western zones were about to meet at Bonn on the Rhine on September 1 to start writing a west German constitution. Stalin was still bent on delaying these plans, although he had said he would not make delay a condition of lifting the Berlin blockade.

What he wanted now was a formal "indication" to the public that the plans would be postponed. The Westerners rejected this, and refused to budge. Next, Stalin suggested putting a couple of sentences into the public announcement of the Berlin settlement, saying something like this: "The question of the London decision was also discussed, including the formation of a western German government. The discussion took place in an atmosphere of mutual understanding."

Ambassador Smith was doubtful; he thought it would look like a condition imposed on the West. The three envoys gave no commitment to Stalin on this point beyond saying that they would consult their governments and let him know.

THE WESTERN ALLIES had not always seen eye to eye on the formation of a west German state. The French, for example, had never liked the idea; they had agreed to it in London with great reluctance and distaste, and they would not have shed tears if it had been postponed. Now Washington, London and Paris set out to see how far all three governments could go to satisfy Stalin.

The answer, as Smith got it from Washington, was just about what he had told Stalin at the first meeting on August 2. The Western governments were immovable. They would not refuse to discuss the German political problem with the Russians at some future time. But they would not tie their hands now, nor would they alter the London decisions as part of the present discussions over Berlin.

They would be willing to announce publicly that they still wanted a four-power agreement setting up a government for all of Germany, and would "make a sincere endeavor" to find out whether there was a "real prospect" of such agreement. In any case, the three governments repeated, the process of constitution-making in western Germany would not stand in the way of a later agreement with the Russians.

Meanwhile, on the basis of what had been said by Stalin, the three envoys and Molotov agreed at last on August 27 on the wording of instructions to be sent to the four commanders in Berlin.

THE INSTRUCTIONS were brief. They provided that the following steps be taken simultaneously "subject to agreement being reached among the four military governors for their practical implementation":

1. Restrictions were to be lifted from communications, transport and commerce between Berlin and the western zones and to and from the Soviet zone of Germany; and

2. The German currency of the Soviet zone was to be substituted for the Western currency in Berlin; the Soviet-zone bank that issued the money was to regulate its circulation within the city, but a financial commission representing the four military governors was to be set up to prevent abuses.

Even this last agreement was not easy, in spite of the weeks of work that had gone into it. The Westerners reported home that they found Molotov and his aides "less pleasant" than before.

It had been planned to issue a public announcement when the instructions were finally sent to the military commanders; but Molotov now wanted to include a sentence which would, in effect, have delayed the forming of a west German state. There was a wrangle over this point, with the result that the four men could not agree on the wording of any public announcement at all.

NOT ONLY WAS Molotov more truculent, but the news from Berlin was ominous. On August 27, the very day when the instructions were agreed upon in Moscow, a mob of 4000 German Communists invaded the Berlin city hall in the Soviet sector and took possession of the chamber where the non-Communist City Council had been meeting.

The German police of the Soviet sector, always subject to Soviet orders, looked on but did not interfere. The next day a smaller crowd returned, and a Communist councilman let them in. The City Council was unable to function in its own building.

In Moscow the three envoys suggested to Molotov that he tell his military governor to keep a peaceful atmosphere for the coming talks in Berlin. Molotov snapped back that his military governor did not need such an order. The agreed "directive" to the four military governors finally left Moscow at midnight on August 30, with a deadline requiring a report by September 7.

The disputed points about the blockade seemed to have been settled in principle. Now it was up to the four military men to work out the details within a week. But the Western governments were uneasy.

Molotov's changed manner, and the continuing disorders in Berlin, had made them suspicious of a last-minute hitch. It was not long before their suspicions were dramatically confirmed.

Council Told Big 3 Stand

Alexander Cadogan for Great Britain and Alexandre Parodi for France. Throughout the papers they read were these outstanding points:

1. That their countries were in Berlin by "rights" and that they intended to stay.

2. That any Soviet effort to dislodge them by force would be more than dangerous.

3. That they would negotiate directly with the Russians in a Council of Foreign Ministers on the entire German problem—but not until the blockade was lifted.

4. That this blockade was a threat to the peace.

5. That it was imposed as an offensive measure long before the currency reform was carried out by the Western powers and not, as the Soviet government claimed, as a defensive measure to protect the economy of the Soviet zone after the currency reform.

6. That in both Moscow and Berlin the Russians had not negotiated "in good faith to reconcile existing differences.

An unmistakable warning was delivered by Dr. Jessup, who told the Council the three governments were determined "to take such measures as may be necessary to ensure the safety and subsistence of our force in Berlin and of the population committed to their charges by four-power agreement, pending action by the Security Council."

Sir Alexander referred, as did the others, to the impossibility of direct negotiation at this time.

"The blockade continues," he said, "and with it the duress which makes discussions unacceptable."

Once he mentioned the silence of Vishinsky.

"How can we progress toward a solution of difficulties if one party refuses to join in discussions? Have they no arguments, or is it that their minds are already made up to refuse acquiescence in anything that this Council may recommend? Is that the way by which the Soviet delegation seeks peace and understanding?"

New Meeting Of Cominform Is Reported

Berlin, Oct. 6 (AP).—A meeting of the Cominform was held recently in Dessau, with German Communist leaders taking part, Die Neue Zeitung reported today.

Dessau is in the Soviet occupation zone. The organ, the American Military Government's official newspaper, said one of the major items for discussion was "the attitude of the Cominform in the event of open conflict."

Persons close to the central secretariat of the Communist-led Socialist Unity Party (SED) were cited as sources for the report.

At its last officially announced meeting in Romania the Cominform (Communist International Information Bureau) assailed the Yugoslav leadership under Premier Marshal Tito as anti-Soviet and a deviation from the true Marxist line.

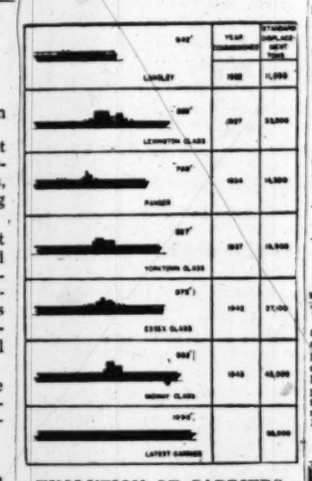
Neu Zeitung said political officers of the Soviet military administration in Germany, representatives of the Communist parties of Czechoslovakia, Poland and Hungary were among those who attended the Dessau meeting.

For the past three weeks there has been speculation in Western political circles that a Cominform meeting had been held or was being held somewhere behind the Iron Curtain.

If the report in Neue Zeitung is true it would be the first Cominform meeting on German soil and probably the first to have German Communist representation.

Israeli Troops Shelled

Jerusalem, Oct. 6 (AP).—An Israeli army communique said today sporadic shelling by Arab troops continued through the night. Mortar fire was directed at Israeli forces near Jaffa gate, the communique said. One Jewish soldier was wounded.



EVOLUTION OF CARRIERS

Marines Storm Ashore With Own Air Support

San Diego, Calif., Oct. 6 (AP).—United States Marines made history for their proud corps again today. For the first time in war or peace they stormed ashore with their own planes giving the entire air support.

The landing on barren San Clemente Island was a phase of the largest Navy amphibious exercises of peacetime.

Peru Snipers Battle

Callao, Peru, Oct. 6 (AP).—Infantry patrols today were mopping up rebel snipers who, fearing they would be shot without trial, were putting up a "suicide stand" after failure of the sailors' revolt last weekend.

U. S. Unmoved By Russian Atom Proposal

Paris, Oct. 6 (NYHT)—The United States has decided, it became clear today, that the new Russian atomic proposal does not represent any basic change which can encourage the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission to return immediately to work.

In the face of Russian bloc contentions that the Soviet proposal is constructive and worth immediate consideration, the United States sticks to its position that the current U. N. General Assembly must give a big vote of approval to the atomic control principles of the U. N. majority—principles that are rejected by Russia.

Still Trading Punches

With that as a starter, the United States wants the U. N. to devise an effective method of maintaining steady and continuing pressure on the Russians in an effort to persuade them into recognition of the control principles indorsed by the majority.

In the political committee of the General Assembly, general debate on atomic energy was completed today, with the East and West still trading punches.

Hector McNeil, British Minister of S[illegible], tried to explain why the West fears Russia, why the West doesn't want to hand over the atomic secret to the Russians on the Russians' terms.

Soviet Expansion Outlined

"Who should not fear a power," he asked, "a great power which has acquired Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Ruthenia, the eastern half of Poland, the Kurile Islands, northern Sakhalein and one-sided treaty rights in Port Arthur?

"Which holds in thrall Poland, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Rumania, Hungary, Albania and, until recently, Yugoslavia? Which incites and encourages rebellion in Greece and Indonesia, sets seige to Berlin, daily terrifies Turkey and Persia?

"And who foment strife in every non-self-governing territory, battening and fattening upon misery, hunger aand discord wherever it can be fomented? Are these the vestments of the peach-maker, the virtues aand characteristics of the good neighbor?"

Remington, Called Red, Asks $100,000

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—William W. Remington, suspended Commerce Department employe, filed a $100,000 damage suit today against Miss Elizabeth T. Bentley and two other defendants.

He said Miss Bentley, admitted one-time Soviet espionage agent and former Communist Party member, had falsely named him a Communist on a September 12 "Meet the Press" radio program.

In his complaint, Remington says that he is not now and never has been a Communist or Communist sympathizer.

The other defendants named were the National Broadcasting Co. and the General Foods Corp., sponsor of the program.

Miss Bentley repeated on the broadcast some of the charges against Remington which she had made before the House Un-American Activities Committee the previous month.

The complaint, filed in Federal Court, said the program was heard over the radio network and seen by owners of thousands of television sets.

It greatly damaged Remington in his profession of economist and in his employment and in "bringing him into public odium and contempt," the complaint said.

Remington was director of the export-program staff of the Department of Commerce.

Miss Bentley told the congressional committee Remington was one of the Government officials from whom she obtained confidential wartime information. She also named him as a Communist and repeated the charge in the radio program although told she had no congressional immunity on the broadcast.

Remington testified before a Senate investigating committee that he talked to Miss Bentley, thinking she was a reporter, but said he gave her no secret information. He also denied any Communist affiliation.

NBC and General Food officials said they had no immediate comment.

The suit is similar to one filed last month by Alger Hiss for $50,000 damages against Whittaker Chambers, senior editor of Time magazine.

Hiss, former State Department official, said Chambers made false statements that Hiss was a Communist on an August 27 "Meet-the-Press" program.

However, the radio network and program sponsor were not named in Hiss' suit.

Special Assistant Attorney General Thomas J. Donegan declined to discuss the nature of her testimony.

Miss Bentley also appeared before the jury prior to its indicting of 12 top Communist Party leaders last July. They were charged with seeking the violent overthrow of the American Government.

In testimony before the House Un-American Activities Committee last August, Miss Bentley said there was a widespread wartime plot among U. S. Government officials to turn over secret data to Russia.

Counsel for the 12 indicted Communist national committeemen today moved for a dismissal of the indictments.

In papers filed before Federal Judge Murray Hulbert, the Communists' counsel said the indictments were returned solely as a result of "bias and prejudice" of members of a Federal grand jury.

This bias, the counsel said, was induced by a "deliberate" Department of Justice campaign and "an atmosphere of hysteria."

The Communists' lawyers also contended the grand jury was impanelled illegally because Negroes and members of the "laboring group" were excluded.

United States Attorney John F. X. McGohey asked the court to consolidate the conspiracy indictment and individual indictments for purposes of trial, scheduled to begin October 15.

Those indicted included William Z. Foster, national chairman; Eugene V. Dennis, general secretary; Carl Winters of Detroit; City Councilman Benjamin Davis, John B. Williamson, Henry Winston, Jacob Stachel, Irving Potash, Robert G. Thompson, John Gates, Gilbert Green of Chicago and Gus Hall of Cleveland.

Reds Challenged

Vote Test Proposed In Berlin

Berlin, Oct. 6 (AP).—The American Military Government tonight challenged the Russians to permit a citywide election in Berlin to test how the people feel.

Col. Frank Howley, United States commander in Berlin, announced approval of a request by the city government to conduct elections as scheduled on November 14.

He said he expected the British and French to do likewise and the Russians "to refuse or give an evasive answer."

Thus far the Russians have hamstrung the proposed election by forbidding required publication of notices in their sector.

In the 1946 election Communist-led Socialist Unity Party (SED) got only 18 per cent of the vote. Col. Howley added:

"It is a fair assumption that when and if democratic elections are held the people of Berlin will express in unmistakable terms their disapproval of the obstructionist tactics of the Communists."

In the other developments today the Russians announced they planned ground-to-air target practice in one of the air lift corridors at a height of 2500 feet. It was not determined whether the practice actually took place. The air lift planes fly at much greater heights. The American planes hauled another 4133 tons of supplies in a 24-hour span to Berlin.

France Warns Of Force in Coal Strike

Paris, Oct. 6 (NYHT).—Robert Lacoste, Minister of Industry and Commerce, said in a radio broadcast tonight that the government was ready to "take all necessary measures"—presumably police and troop protection—to assure resumption of work in the strike-bound coal mines of north France.

The minister's radio announcement generally was interpreted as a warning to miners in the General Confederation of Labor (C.G.T.), whose leaders are Communists.

Some Ready to Return

Employes who belong to the non-Communist force Ouvriere (Workers' Strength) movement and the Christian Workers' Confederation are said to be ready to return to work, following concessions by the government which have not yet been detailed officially.

Meanwhile, both Communist and non-Communist unions in other industries were increasing their strike pressure against the cabinet's economic program. There was a threat to close down more railway stations in the north, where the coal mines were unproductive for the third consecutive day.

The Association of Little Business Enterprises increased the strain by announcing that its members would refuse to pay the increased taxes ordered by the government.

Moreover, the C. G. T. raised its demands for a basic wage increase to 15,000 francs a month, up from 14,300 francs the pro-Communist union previously had been asking.

More Railroaders Out

Railroadmen in the channel port of Calais decided to join the stoppage that started yesterday in Lorraine, and halted all local trains in the Moselle Department.

Paris had no taxis. Drivers, acting on the orders of the Communist-led General Confederation of Labor, left their cabs in garages to protest against gasoline allotments.

Seamen belonging to the CGT ordered a full day's strike Friday in all French ports. Fishermen in the ports of Calais and Bordeaux agreed not to put out to sea on that day.

Alvey, 37, of Forsythe, Mont., is pictured after his rescue from the isolated mountains east of Casper, Wyo., where he lay for 20 days beside the burned wreckage of a plane in which he and a companion crashed. The plane held the charred body of the companion. Alvey was found near starvation and with a broken leg. "I had a box of candy bars and I guess they saved my life," he told rescuers. "I rationed myself to two a day and they held out 12 days. There wasn't anything to eat the last week"

Farley Talks To Franco on Spain as Ally

Madrid, Oct. 6 (AP).—James A. Farley saw Generalissimo Franco today and told him he hopes the United States will restore relations with Spain in a common stand against Russia.

Spain, blacklisted by the United Nations, must be part of a cooperating chain of western European nations, the former Democratic National Committee chairman told newsmen when he emerged from a 90-minute conference with the chief of state at El Pardo Palace.

Similar views were expressed Thursday by Senator Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.), chairman of the United States Senate's Armed Forces Committee, after meeting with the Caudillo.

(In London an official British source said Britain's attitude of distaste for Franco remains unchanged, and he expressed doubt that any of the big three Western powers would seek withdrawal of the 1946 U. N. resolution condemning Franco's government. Most U. N. members have withdrawn their Ambassadors and Ministers from Madrid.

(A British foreign office spokesman described as untrue reports published in the United State that Secretary of State Marshall suggested to Britain that action be taken to withdraw the 1946 resolution.)

Farley, in Spain on business, has been urging the return of the American Ambassador to Madrid in an immediate resumption of relations as a step toward unifying western Europe against communism.

Montgomery Warns Of War Danger Reality

London, Oct. 6 (AP).—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, military boss of the five-power Western alliance, warned today against "underplaying the danger of war."

"Of course we do not want to overstress the danger and get in a panic," he said in a recruiting address, "but it is doubtful if we have yet reached the stage where mankind can by reasoning alone put an end to war; that time is not yet."

Czech Gag Measure Passed Unanimously

Prague, Oct. 6 (AP).—The Czechoslovak Parliament passed a new bill tonight "for the defense of the peoples democratic republic." The vote was unanimous.

The measure would punish anyone making statements against the nation or any of its friends or utterances which the government might say advocate fascism or nazism.

Tattooed Skin, Ilse Koch Case Evidence, Gone

Munich, Germany, Oct. 6 (AP).—American war crimes officials reported today the disappearance of the tattooed-skin lampshades which had been tagged as evidence for the Ilse Koch case. Perhaps, they said, someone took them as souvenirs.

The officials said the question of whether the gruesome ornaments actually belonged to Frau Koch had never been determined. An Army review board recently reduced her life sentence on war crimes charges to four years. The action aroused much criticism in the United States.

War crimes officials said the tattooed skin, a shrunken human head and other gruesome ornaments were found by American troops who liberated Buchenwald Camp. But Frau Koch, wife of one of camp commanders, had left there two years before, the officials said.

The articles were brought to Munich for use in the Buchenwald case involving the woman and 30 other defendants.

Before the case came up they were sent to Nuernberg to be used by the international military tribunal which tried Hermann Goering and other high Nazis.

"The articles never came back to us," said a war crimes spokesman.

(L. C. Schmuhl, deputy warden at the Indiana State Prison, said at Michigan City, Ind., today he had two pieces of tattooed skin from Buchenwald Camp. They were left behind by a war crimes investigation team which collected the lampshades as courtroom evidence, said Schmuhl, a former allied military government official, who was commander of the camp for a brief time.)

Oil Center Afire After Java Fighting

Batavia, Java, Oct. 6 (AP).—Press reports from Soerabaja, Dutch naval base, said huge fires were sweeping the refining town of Tjepoe today as the result of fighting between Communists and Indonesian republican forces.

Smoke was visible in Semarang, 80 miles away, the reports said. A Dutch army intelligence report said outlying sections of the town were burning but not the refineries. The only developed oil region and refineries in Java are at Tjepoe. They represent the republic's only internal source for motor fuel.

Army reports said loyal republican troops were up against a mass uprising led by battalions of oilfield workers who originally were organized to burn the refineries in case the Dutch attempted to occupy the area.

An Indonesian division which originally sided with the Communists apparently has gone over to the Government, the army report said.

(Indonesian officials arriving in Singapore told a news conference the Communist uprising had cost 1009 lives.)

Clemency Is Urged for Condemned Nazis

A two-man civilian commission has recommended clemency for an undisclosed number of the 139 Nazi war criminals whose death sentences were stayed earlier this year by Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall.

The Army announced the commission's findings yesterday but declined to identify the reprieved Nazis pending final action by Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the American military commander in Germany.

The 139 condemned prisoners are among the so-called "small fry" Nazis who were tried and convicted for war crimes by American military courts at Dachau, site of the notorious German concentration camp.

They include 17 Nazi soldiers condemned to death for killing unarmed American prisoners of war in the Malmedy massacre, during the Battle of the Bulge.

Stay Is Ordered

Attorneys for the entire group tried unsuccessfully to get the United States Supreme Court to review their cases last spring. Shortly after that appeal failed, Royall ordered the death sentences stayed and appointed Justice Gordon Simpson of the Texas Supreme Court and Judge Edward Van Roden of Delaware County, Pa., to investigate the Dachau trials.

The jurists examined the trial records of the 139 condemned prisoners, including claims that the prosecution had introduced evidence obtained by improper methods.

They concurred in recommending commutation in a limited number of cases based upon the circumstances of the individual trials.

They also recommended that Clay establish as soon as practicable a permanent clemency system for the review of all war-crimes sentences.

The Army said the entire report has been turned over to Clay for his consideration and action on the clemency recommendations and on the procedural changes suggested by Simpson and Van Roden.

The two jurists limited their review to the Dachau trials, which were conducted by the United States alone and not by the combined Allied powers, as in the Nuernberg trials.

They did not consider the case of Frau Ilse Koch, the "Belle of Buchenwald" whose life sentence was reduced recently by Clay to four years' imprisonment.

Accompanying the Army announcement was a summary of the disposal of more than 1600 war crime cases tried by the United States Army at Dachau.

It showed that 1672 sentences ranging from prison terms to death originally were imposed. Of those, 1090 were approved on review, 69 were disapproved, 256 were acquitted, and 255 defendants had their sentences reduced.

One defendant died in prison and another was extradited to Poland.

The recapitulation showed that 426 of the original 1672 were condemned to death, but the death sentences were upheld in only 299 cases. Of those, 160 have been executed and the remaining 139 won temporary stays when Royall ordered his investigation.

FBI Probes Rep. Thomas

By the United Press

Informed sources said yesterday the FBI is investigating charges that Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) has required his office employes to "kick back" part of their salaries.

The charges were made by Columnist Drew Pearson in recent articles denouncing Thomas and the House Un-American Activities Committee which he heads.

Thomas' only comment thus far has been that "I refuse to be intimidated."

It was said the inquiry was ordered with the approval of Attorney General Tom C. Clark.

Clark and Thomas have been waging a running battle over the House committee's investigation of wartime Soviet espionage. The committee has demanded prosecution of four alleged atomic spies, charging that Clark's failure to act is "indefensible." Clark countered that Thomas and his GOP committee colleagues have been playing politics.

Pearson's allegations were placed before the Justice Department by 17 New Jersey attorneys who demanded that Clark determine whether they were true and if any Federal law had been violated.

Assistant Attorney General Alex M. Campbell, head of the criminal division, promptly announced that their demand had been taken "under advisement."

Unemployment Hits U. S. Marine Trades

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

(Fifth of a series)

Unemployment has hit America's seafaring trades and promises to get much worse.

Already at least 15,000 merchant marine officers and men are on the beach waiting for jobs, the CIO Maritime Committee reports, out of some 125,000 men now active in the industry.

An expected 30 per cent cut in the United States operating merchant fleet during the coming year will make many thousands more idle. The situation is in sharp contrast to other American industry—at a high level of employment—and with Europe's ports, where there are more jobs than seamen.

Licensed Personnel Hit

Licensed personnel are worse off then unlicensed. A telegraphic poll made by the Masters, Mates and Pilots (AFL) in mid-September showed 4147 deck officers waiting for jobs. Fourteen hundred were on the beach in New York and 300 in Baltimore.

A total of 354 radio officers are awaiting jobs in New York, Boston, Baltimore, New Orleans and Houston. Just a year ago, there was a shortage of 220 radiomen at these ports.

The National Maritime Union (CIO) reports it has 6500 seamen unemployed, an increase of 80 per cent in the past year. Seamen average 8½ to 9 months' employment, the union says.

As there is little rotation of jobs among merchant officers, many veterans of the bridge have been out of work for months.

Priced Out of Jobs

Although the reason for the decline are complex, to a degree it is true that the seafarers have priced themselves out of jobs.

High operating costs make it difficult for American vessels to compete with foreign ships, except in the scheduled "berth" lines, where a Government subsidy makes up the difference.

Prior to a recent wage increase, United States able seamen averaged $307.94 a month in base pay and extras, according to the National Federation of American Shipping. Some comparisons: British seamen, $123.99 a month; Norwegian, $119.58, and Netherlands, $100.49.

The monthly wage list on an American Liberty ship totals $14,000, compared to $4,300 for British-operated Liberties. Over-all merchant marine pay has nearly tripled since 1939.

No Cut Proposed

No one, however seriously contends that American merchant marine standards should be cut to meet foreign maritime competition. The merchant marine is one of the few areas where the American high living standard comes in direct competition with cheaper foreign labor and United States mass production methods and other improved technology have been unable to offset the wage difference.

At the moment we are meeting the foreign competition in a portion of the merchant marine by Government subsidy. Most leaders of the industry believe that substantial extension of the subsidy is necessary if the Nation is to maintain the merchant fleet we require.

Labor, however, must take responsibility for some other of the industry's ills. Strikes—particularly the "quickie," unauthorized stoppages which have delayed sailings and held up cargo—have hurt American shipping.

Communist Influence

So has Communist influence within unions. There is a widespread opinion in the United States that large numbers of American merchant seamen are Reds and that they may cause trouble at sea in these tense times. It has been suggested that our merchant marine crews might be disloyal in case of war with Russia, would employ sabotage and perhaps even seize ships.

Most shipping company officials and Martime Commission chiefs scoff at such suggestions. They declare there have been absolutely no strikes at sea, and that since the Algic case in 1937, when the strikers were jailed as mutineers, none in foreign ports.

Top shipping chiefs say that shipboard discipline has improved lately and that Communists are earmarked and would be quickly thrown into the brig in case of war. They declare that President Joe Curren of the National Maritime Union has conducted a thoroughgoing house-cleaning of Communists in union posts since his victory over the Reds and predicts that the labor situation on the East and Gulf coasts should materially improve.

But the West Coast, where Harry Bridges has tied up the waterfront with a month-old strike, is a different matter. Apparently the lines have formed for a life or death struggle.

After more than a decade of trouble, the maritime industry needs a period of peace. With all its other troubles—shrinking American experts, expanding foreign merchant fleets—a series of crippling strikes might all but finish our troubled merchant marine.

Greece Asks Military Aid

Greece is asking the United States for more military aid to bolster the Greek campaign against Communist-led guerillas.

State Department officials said yesterday a note outlining proposals for xpansion of the Greek armed forces, and for increased American help, was given to the United States Embassy in Athens Thursday. It was sent to Paris for consideration of Secretary of State Marshall.

President Truman on Tuesday reported to Congress that aid to Greece and Turkey has been a "conspicuous success" in helping to combat the spread of communism.

The Greek armed forces, advised by American officers, number about 300,000. What further expansion was proposed and how much American assistance would be required were not disclosed.

B-29 Testing Electronic Device Explodes in Midair, Killing 9

Waycross, Ga., Oct. 6 (AP).—A B-29 Superfortress bomber exploded high over Waycross today, killing nine persons and spreading fragments of bodies and plane over 20 acres.

The big four-engine bomber was on a special research mission testing secret electronic equipment, said public relations officer Capt. Harold R. Daniels at the plane's base, Warner Robins, Ga.

"The whole town" heard a roar "like a terrific thunder clap" and hundreds stood frozen watching the disaster, eyewitnesses said.

Four of those aboard leaped from the hurtling wreckage and landed safely by parachute in a farm field.

Four bodies were trapped in the tail section, which snapped along with one wing from the main fuselage. Five other bodies were found scattered in two to four feet of water in a swamp at the edge of town where the wreckage fell.

Daniel said several civilians were aboard the plane as electronic experts. He said guards were sent by air to recover and protect as much of the confidential equipment as possible.

Capt. H. W. Moore of Wilkinsburg, Pa., one of the survivors, said he could not discuss the cause of the explosion or how he and the others escaped.

He said the craft was to land "somewhere in Florida."

One motor was buried in mud more than 250 yards from the largest remnant of the big plane. The Waycross Journal-Herald, which first reported the crash, said "flesh, legs and arms are all over the area."

U. S. Air Might Demonstrated

Elgin Field, Fla., Oct. 6 (AP).—Combined armed forces today staged a thunderous and flame-filled demonstration of vastly augmenter air power.

The demonstrations were given a touch of realism by a couple of unscheduled incidents, including a breathtaking fall by a paratrooper whose main chute did not open. He had to use the emergency chute in a last split-second of drop.

In three hours of demonstration on the vast proving ground, observers from all branches of the service saw how the United States armed forces plan to conduct an invasion if World War III should come.

Draft Could Take 4 Out of 100 Workers

The draft could take as many as four out of every 100 workers away from their jobs, the Census Bureau reported yesterday.

The bureau based this on a sample survey taken in July. The purpose of the survey was to determine the possible impact of the draft on a labor force already tight pressed for workers.

The bureau's figures boiled down to this:

There are 7,500,000 civilian men in the draft-age group—19 to 25 years old—and 6,500,000 of them were employed in July.

About 4,000,000 of the working men are World War II veterans. They are not subject to call under present draft regulations.

The draft-age non-veterans in the working force number 2,500,000—about four per cent of the total working force.

The bureau cautioned against taking its figures as more than a "very general" indication of the "possible effect of the induction of these men on the size and composition of the civilian labor force."

A precise evaluation of the draft's impact, it said, would require further knowledge of such matters as:

1. How many the armed forces actually will take in.

2. How many "will volunteer from other groups in the population."

3. How many will be deferred for physical disability or other reasons.

Also it said the figures for July included a number of full-time college students who were in the working force during their summer vacations but could not be counted in the year-round labor force.

The draft-eligible nonvets were "almost as heavily concentrated in agriculture as in manufacturing," the survey found.

There were 24 per cent of them in farming and 28 in manufacturing. Another 7.9 per cent were engaged in construction work, 16.7 in wholesale and retail grade trade, 10.1 in service industries, and 2.5 in public utilities and elsewhere.

Japan Seen GoingChristian

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 6 (AP).—Christians must be prepared to go underground in Asia if Communists win control of that continent, Representative Walter H. Judd of Minnesota told the World Mission Assembly tonight.

Judd, a former medical missionary to China, is a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

He said that if Communists gain control of Asia, Christians will be in the same position as they were in the days of ancient Rome.

"Communists never will permit Christians to continue their missionary work in Communist-dominated areas," Judd said, "and we certainly must be prepared for the eventuality of a Communist victory in the Far East.

"This means that Christians must be prepared to go underground—not to wage a destructive campaign against the enemies of Christianity., but to retain in those areas the constructive influence that is Christianity."

He urged a shift in emphasis by the Christian missionary movement from constructing great institutions of nobility.

"Christianity is not built by great buildings," Judd said. "It is a thing of the Spirit and we must send men who can spread the Christian gospel either by word or Christian example."

Japan may soon become a Christian nation, the Asembly was told by the head of the National Christian Council of Japan.

"It's amazing how our people have lost all prejudices and misunderstanding of Christianity," said the Rev. Michio Kozaki. "There is a lot to do and many obstacles, but Japan stands at the threshold of becoming Christian."

Atmospheric Data Collected

By the United Press

Airborne naval scientists have collected data on atmospheric phenomena which should be a boon to astronomers and the weather man, the Navy revealed yesterday.

It said the scientists gathered their information aboard a B-29 which flew at 35,000 feet in an experimental flight from Andrews Air Force base, Md., to Great Barrington, Mass.

Their data included history's first accurate measurements of the sun's infra-red rays, which give the sensation of heat, and information on a "mysterious" absorption band in the infra-red spectra of the atmosphere.

The Navy did not elaborate on the "absorption band," but it said the scientists found a kind of "window" in the atmosphere at 35,000 feet and above. At those altitudes, it said, the atmosphere is clear because there is almost no vapor.

It said the heat from infra-red rays is so intense that life on earth might not be possible except that a good deal of it is absorbed by vapor in lower atmospheres.

The Navy said the data collected should prove valuable in weather forecasting and will give astronomers "a new basis for far more accurate evaluation" of both the intensity and absorption of light.

The experiments were a joint undertaking of the Naval Ordnance Test Station, Inyokern, Calif., where the B-29 was outfitted, and the Johns Hopkins University physics department.

Navy Ship Power Plants Able To Supply Cities in Emergency

The Navy is able—though not particularly willing—to supply emergency electric power to shore towns and cities in strike, drought or disaster, electrical engineers assembled here were told yesterday.

Specifically, F. E. Anderson, electrical engineer for the Navy's Bureau of Ships, explained technically how some Navy vessels can readily rig up such service from anchorage outside the afflicted area.

But he also wove into the explanations a past history of such service, from the 1929 aid to Tacoma, Wash., by the aircraft carrier Lexington, to auxiliary power service to Portland, Me., last November.

Most adaptable vessels, he said, are destroyer escort ships, turbine electric propelled. They would indicate such vessels as the USS Maloy and the USS Foss, the ones that took over the five-month job at Portland when draught lowered local power output.

The service, he said, is costly, far above electricity producing costs of electric company plants. It also removes the vessels from fleet service. And reactivating Navyl vessels now in use, he said, would be even more costly.

First Navy service to supply power to a shore city to any great extent was the Lexington's duty outside Tacoma, Anderson told the engineers. For one month, because of low water supply, the Lexington's geneartors poured its juice into regular power lines in the distressed city.

Cherbourg, France, in 1944 after the Allies' invasion, proved the next big test, he said. There the USS Donnell, docked in a British port with 60 feet of its stern blown off, was towed to the harbor and connected to land installations. For six months the ship stepped up the power in the city's lines.

Anderson spoke before an electric power session of the current Middle Eastern District Meeting, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, at Hotel Statler.

Army Erases Blot on Record Of Dying Veteran

By The Associated Press

The last blot has been cleared from Freddy Caruso's war record. The Army said yesterday it has granted an honorable discharge to the dying 23-year-old veteran.

Earlier, Governor Green of Illinois had pardoned Caruso from prison.

Caruso is dying in a Chicago hospital of a brain tumor that developed while he was overseas. In 1946 he was discharged from the Army because of a one-to-three-year sentence for larceny at Peoria.

When it became known he was fatally stricken, his parents, Leo and Carmen Caruso of Ashtabula, Ohio, moved to clear all blots from his record.

Upon being pardoned the young veteran was moved to a hospital, where he has remained unconscious much of the time.

The Army said yesterday it had granted him an honorable discharge.

11 Nations to Get Loans for Recovery

Eleven European countries will soon get long-term, low-interest American loans totaling 815 million dollars, the Economic Cooperation Administration announced yesterday.

The loans will be used for buying machinery and other goods needed to increase production, as part of the European Recovery Program. Country-by-country negotiation of the agreements is almost completed, an ECA spokesman said, and only the formalities remain to be carried out.

Countries and Amounts

The countries and the amounts involved are:

Great Britain, 300 million dollars; France, 170 million; the Netherlands, 95 million, of which 15 million are earmarked for the East Indies; Belgium and Luxembourg, 50 million; Ireland, 50 million; Italy, 50 million; Norway, 35 million; Turkey, 30 million; Denmark, 25 million, and Sweden, 10 million. Previously the ECA had made and announced a $2,300,000 loan for Iceland, mainly to develop the fishing industry there.

Although details of the 11 new loans have not been announced, they will bear 2½ per cent interest, with no interest payment due until June 30, 1952. The longest of the loans will be for 35 years.

Each of them will contain a clause waiving interest payments in any future year when the borrowing country's balance of payments is unfavorable. This will resemble the so-called clause in the 1946 American loan to Britain.

Waiver Clause Outlined

In the new loan agreements, the waiver will be granted if the borrower finds its foreign exchange and gold resources running low, and if the International Monetary Fund certifies that its balance of trade is adverse compared to the 1936 to 1938 average.

Completion of the 11 loan agreements marks the passing of an important milestone in the ECA's career, a little over six months after Congress passed the original Economic Cooperation Act.

Under this act, a billion dollars of the first year's expenditures of $5,300,000,000 for European recovery was earmarked for loans and for guarantees to private American investments in recovery projects. The billion was authorized as a so-called public debt transaction, and therefore did not have to be approved by the Appropriations Committees of Congress.

Any loan made from this billion had to be approved by the National Advisory Council, the top interdepartmental body that determines American foreign economic policies. When each loan agreement has been signed, the money will be turned over to the Export-Import Bank, which will advance the funds to the borrower and administer their use.

Although the act of Congress did not say so, the loan money will be used in general for productive purposes, such as the building of new factories or power projects, whereas the free grants from ECA have been used largely for food, fuel and other consumable goods.

For 'Fairness'

Committee Will Study Trade Pacts

President Truman yesterday handed an interdepartmental committee the job of passing on reciprocal trade agreements to see that they meet a congressional mandate for "fairness" to American producers.

The seven-member group was set up under the one-year trade extension act which was pushed through the waning days of the Eightieth Congress as a compromise of Mr. Truman's demand for a two-year "as is" extension.

Under the law, the committee must consider all future trade agreements before they are put into effect and can recommend against any provision which threatens "serious injury" to the United States economy.

The President can put any agreement into effect, but if he overrules the committee in doing so, he is required by the act to explain to the Congress. Congressional Republicans insisted on this provision to place full responsibility on the President.

The law also empowers the Federal Tariff Commission to keep tab on operations of past agreements and to recommend changes if any of their provisions cause damage to United States producers.

Mr. Truman, in his order legalizing the committee, said its members could guarantee that future agreements will be fair to agriculture, business and labor as well as the United States armed forces.

Committee members are the Secretaries of State, Treasury, Defense, Agriculture, Commerce and Labor, and the economic cooperation administrator.

U. S. Export Surplus Drops to 2-Year Low

The United States export surplus—the amount by which exports exceeded imports—dropped in August to the lowest point in nearly two years.

For August it was $389,800,000. United States exports (including foreign aid and relief shipments) declined by 34 million dollars and imports increased by $39,900,000 over the previous month.

August exports totaled $988,200,000. This was the lowest since October, 1946, when a shipping strike dropped the monthly total to 500 million dollars and caused the export surplus to go below 250 million dollars for that month.

Imports in August rolled up to $598,400,000, third highest month of this year.

The August export surplus was $73,900,000 smaller than in July, and $113,800,000 smaller than the monthly average for the first half of 1948.

The Bureau of Foreign Commerce said increased shipments of wheat and other grains lifted total food exports in August to $215,500,000, highest since May, 1947.

There were declines in exports of textiles and the machinery-metals group to about one-half and two thirds, respectively, of the 1947 monthly average. Shipments of tobacco and tobacco products also dropped.

AUTOS WRECKED BY TORNADO—Knee-deep in water, National Guardsmen at Pompano, Fla., prepare to salvage autos overturned and wrecked in the storm which swept Florida. A tornado within the hurricane caused the damage

Miami, Fla., Oct. 6 (AP).—Damage from a hurricane which swept across south Florida yesterday will be comparatively light in Florida, a preliminary investigation today showed.

The hardest hit was the little town of Pompano, 35 miles north of Miami. There 25 houses were demolished, and seven persons hurt in one of three tornadoes spawned in the storm.

Cuba received the full blow of the storm with 11 dead, 300 injured, and crop damage placed at six million dollars.

The hurricane was no longer a danger to the mainland as it moved in a northeastward direction at sea today, the Weather Bureau said.

The Lake Okeechobee region where hundreds of acres still are under water from the mid-September hurricane, breathed easier as the second storm passed to sea without adding any appreciable amount of rain.

The hurricane poured six inches of rain on Miami. Several outlying communities were under water.

200 Are Killed In Iran Quake

Tehran, Iran, Oct. 6 (AP)—Historic Meshed was reported today ripped by an earthquake which killed 200 persons and injured thousands.

Dispatches to the newspaper Keihan told of great damage in the Iranian shrine city, 460 miles east of Tehran. The quake struck last night.

Part of the Mosque of Gowharshad was said to have collapsed. Destruction was spread throughout the walled city of five gates, which is the capital of Khorasan Province.

The city contains the mausoleum of the Imam Riza, visited annually by thousands of pilgrims. The Inam Riza, who lived from 770 to 819, was eighth in line of succession after Mohammed's son-in-law Ali.

Violence Flares Again in Oil Strike

By The Associated Press

New violence marked the CIO Oil Workers' strike at six California refineries Wednesday.

Ten police officers were injured when police and pickets clashed near the Standard Oil refinery at Richmond.

Several pickets were clubbed and eight were jailed. The pickets and police fought hand to hand, the police using their clubs and the picket hurling rocks.

The disorders came when nonstriking office employes sought to park their automobiles near the oil plant.

Men wearing thick leather gloves began punching holes in automobile windows parked in the company lot. An officer attempting to arrest one man was surrounded by a crowd, his club wrested from him and used to beat him to the pavement.

Peace talks seeking an end of the month-old strike over wages have been adjourned with no date set for another meeting. The companies have rejected a union offer to take a 12½-cent hourly wage boost and submit to arbitration the question of another 8½-cent raise. The union originally demanded 21 cents.

The strike picture elsewhere:

No progress was made toward ending the stalemated 34-day old strike of West Coast maritime workers. The entire American President Lines passenger fleet became strikebound with the arrival at San Francisco of the last APL vessel, the President Cleveland. The strike involves four seafaring unions and the CIO longshoremen.

In an East Coast shipping dispute, President Truman's aid will be sought. The dispute threatens a work stoppage by 45,000 longshoremen from Virginia to Maine next month.

Joseph Ryan, president of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association, said Tuesday night the union and ship owners will ask President Truman to help change the effect of a United States Supreme Court decision. Both sides claim its interpretation by the Wage and Hour Administration prevents them from reaching a settlement on a new contract.

The Supreme Court ruled that night and weekend work performed in excess of 40 hours a week must be paid for at a rate of one and one-half times the present overtime rate of $2.62½ an hour.

Ryan said the union will not accept a contract without straight and overtime rates in it.

Glaziers Back Negotiators On Wage Hike

Striking members of the AFL Glaziers' Union, Local 963, last night expressed confidence in their five-man committee that has been negotiating for wage increases amounting to 5 cents an hour more than management has offered.

On advice of the committee headed by Paul W. Jones, union business manager, members meeting at the Pythian Temple, 1012 9th st. nw., rejected a proposal to increase their earlier demands.

An AFL organizer from the International Brotherhood of Painters, Harry Pedersen of New York, is expected in town today, Jones said, to assist in attempts to settle the strike of the 150 glaziers who walked out Friday.

The walkout followed expiration Thursday night of the union's one-year contract with 13 contractors. The union is asking for $2.25 an hour for glaziers and $1.20 to $1.80 an hour for other glass workers—an average increase of about 8 per cent, according to Jones. Management has offered 5 cents an hour less than the union demands.

Jones said that the union offered to submit the issue to arbitration, but management representatives refused at a deadlocked four-hour session Tuesday.

Meat Price Drop Seen Continuing Through Month

Chicago, Oct. 5 (U.P.).—Retail meat prices, which have declined the last two weeks, will drop even more during the rest of the month, a spokesman for the Nation's retail meat dealers predicted tonight.

George Dressler, secretary of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers, said he expects the decline to continue at least until the first part of November.

Wholesale prices as reflected by the Dun & Bradstreet Index already are at their lowest point since July 22, 1947.

Dressler said he expects retail prices to tumble considerably during the next three or four weeks.

"When the leveling-off period comes, meat prices should stay more or less even until next summer."

'Low Tide' Author Sued by the Kellys

Santa Monica, Calif., Oct. 6 (AP).—A family of six sued an author and his publisher for $180,000 today, charging they have been brought into public disgrace because their neighbors recognize them as characters from a book.

The plaintiffs are Reginald Kelly, his wife Jean, their three children and the children's grandmother, Mrs. Ynez Whitcomb, all of Venice. They charge that details of their private lives are reflected in "Low Tide," a novel written by John Truesdell and published last year by Dodd-Mead & Co., Inc.

Lewis Would Double Dues of 600,000 Miners to $4 a Month

Cincinnati, Oct. 6 (AP).—John L. Lewis asserted today membership in the United Mine Workers "has become increasingly valuable," and proposed that dues be hiked to $4 a month.

The proposal, which was referred to a convention committee, would mean a 100 per cent increase for most miners, whose present dues average $2 a month.

Lewis asked that the initiation fees be boosted from $10 to $50, of which the international union would get $30, the local union $10, and the district organization $10.

The national organization would benefit mostly from the proposed increase in dues. It would get half of the $4. It now gets 90 cents, although the dues vary from district to district.

Would Yield $14,400,000

The UMW would receive $14,400,000 from its 600,000 members under the new proposal. The officers reported more than 13 million dollars in the treasury on June 30.

The dues plan, offered in a special recommendation of the officers, probably will be acted on early next week.

The 1900 miners who are on the new $100 monthly pension rolls, would pay $1 a month to the international. They are exempt from paying dues at present.

Lewis justified the boost in dues by saying:

"A new member immediately upon admission has an equity in all the financial assets of the organization, participation in its wage structure and improved working conditions, the protection of the organization and all its services . . . and such other services as will be increasingly established."

Behind the scenes is a proposal also to increase the constitutional salary of President Lewis. It is now fixed at $25,000, but he was voted a substantial grant two years ago. His salary now is reported to be about $35,000.

The officers' report, which condemned the Republican-dominated 80th Congress and suggested the defeat of Republicans and Democrats alike if they voted for the Taft-Hartley act, was adopted without dissent.

Lewis attacked President Truman yesterday, but did not formally indorse Republican Thomas E. Dewey for President.

Mr. Truman replied today by saying that Lewis had "made a great man" of former Vice President John N. Garner early in the Roosevelt administration.

Thurmond Opens Fight for Virginia's Votes

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Roanoke, Va., Oct. 6.—Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina tonight launched his campaign here to win Virginia's 11 electoral votes in his States Rights campaign for the Presidency.

Governor Thurmond, speaking to about 600 persons in the American Legion auditorium, renewed his attack on his three major opponents for their support of a Federal civil rights program.

Virginia sponsors of the States Rights campaign are counting on Governor Thurmond's swing through the State this week to enlist thousands of new supporters. Their estimate of his strength in the Sixth Congressional District, where Roanoke is located, runs as high as 40 per cent of a vote which may total around 50,000.

The Dixiecrats believe the race in this area is between Thurmond and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

Republican leaders here, however, question whether the States' Rights group will poll more than 10 per cent of the vote. They expect Dewey to carry the district, but believe his major competitor will be President Truman.

Governor Thurmond arrived at the Roanoke Airport about 7 p. m. from New York, where he spoke at a luncheon. With him were his attractive wife, Jean, 22, and J. O. Emmerick, publisher of the McComb, Miss.; Enterprise Journal. From Roanoke, the Thurmond campaign party will go to Lexington and Charlottesville for speeches Thursday. Thurmond will speak twice in Richmond on Friday. On Saturday he will attend the football game between Virginia Military Institute and William and Mary College at Norfolk. He will speak at Williamsburg Saturday night.

Governor Thurmond was warmly applauded at the Roanoke rally. He said Truman, Dewey and Henry Wallace, the Progressive candidate, by their support of the civil rights program, are "committed to an unconstitutional and un-American program."

Thurmond struck especially hard at the Fair Employment Practices Program which has been set up in Governor Dewey's home State. He said the New York law makes it unlawful to ask a man his birthplace or to show a birth certificate, to ask about his religion and excludes many other questions. He renewed earlier charges that Communists could use a Federal FEPC law to force saboteurs "into all the secret places of our defense program, including the atomic laboratories."

Earlier in the day in New York Governor Thurmond said that if the South's lynchings need the remedy of a Federal law so do the North's gangster slayings.

The Governor made his single Northern campaign speech at a luncheon of the Overseas Press Club. He predicted his party will get more than 100 electoral votes.

FCC Radiotelephone Hearings Begun

Hearings on new regulations for mobile radiotelephones, opposed by several private users as hampering efficiency because of restricted wave lengths, opened yesterday before the Federal Communications Commission.

Representatives of 13 public groups and private industries—part of about 100 expected to appear during an eight-day period—voiced their opinions. The plan is designed to convert radiotelephone operation from an experimental to a permanent basis.

Spokesmen for police organizations indicated general approval of frequencies allotted them. Private groups, however, were less well satisfied.

Daniel E. Noble, vice president of Motorola, Inc., a manufacturer of equipment, suggested extensive revision, particularly more frequencies for railroad mobile radiotelephones than are proposed.

Commissioner E. M. Webster cited a tremendous demand for the limited available frequencies, not only from railroads but from such groups as sand and gravel companies, rainmakers and undertakers.

I HATE DANDRUFF!

Thousands weary of ordinary preparations that are no more effective than plain water and brushing have found that Double Danderine gives real dandruff relief!

Double DANDERINE GUARANTEES DANDRUFF RELIEF

Kills dandruff-causing germ*—on contact!

Refreshingly fragrant and easy-to-use, it contains an ingredient used by many hospitals. Provides amazing relief, even in some of the most severe cases.

Dandruff is a stigma, both socially and in business. By hurting your looks and your popularity, it does you great harm. That's why finding really effective relief is important.

You cannot get this relief by using ordinary preparations that simply remove loose dandruff. Plain water and brushing will do that. To get real relief from the most common kind of dandruff you must destroy the germ which authorities explain is its cause. And Double Danderine actually kills this germ on contact!

That's why we say Double Danderine guarantees dandruff relief. Try it. If you're not completely satisfied, return the empty bottle and your money will be refunded.

*Pityrosporum Ovale, the germ which leading authorities say is the cause of the most common kind of dandruff.

DOMAR "life-like" COOKIE CUTTERS 19¢ EACH

The Cutest Things You Ever Saw!

Clever cutters that mold figures with eyes, nose, mouth and other indented details.
The variations in "action," posture, colorings, combinations are almost endless, as you'll soon find once you get started. Any easy twist of head, arms, legs, tail creates another and another delightful variation of the basic figures. Let the children join in the fun, too. They'll adore it. And their riotous imaginations will yield many entrancing animation ideas.
By cutting out a supply of small dough "rounds" you can have elephants balancing themselves on balls, juggling them, or sitting on them. Have clowns pulling donkeys by fine cord or wire, or attach balloons to their hands by the same device. Have the clowns stand on their heads on elephants' backs, or combine dough figures with clowns standing, feet or head down, on the elephants. Or combine two or three elephants, each balancing their front feet on the other's back.
You'll have fun seeing how many gay circus "people" you can create. And we venture to say you'll get almost as big a bang out of them as the children will.

That's the exact size of the clown. The animals are even larger. There are 11 cutters to choose from—each on a card at 19c. Instructions and recipes on how to make "life-like" cookies are given on the back of each card. For gift giving you will find two sets of 5 each in boxes at 95c.

MAIL ORDERS FILLED ON SETS OF 5

The new life-like cookie cutters come one on a card and in 2 sets of 5 in a box, easily mailed. The set of five illustrated is 95c. If you wish Santa Claus to be included add 19c. The other set available consists of the good Angel, Baby Duckling, Mary's Little Lamb, Bunny Rabbit and Teddy Bear, this set of 5 is also 95c. Mail orders promptly filled upon receipt of check or money order. No charge for postage.

Red Feather

Today the Community Chest Federation of the National Capital area begins its drive for $4,566,790. This one coordinated campaign replaces 104 separate drives, saving all of us both time and money. The amalgamation of all appeals for funds into one major drive is the cheapest and most efficient way yet devised for meeting community welfare needs. Chest activities in Washington have been streamlined, with the new United Community Services replacing the old Chest organization and the Council of Social Agencies. The test of the new broadened base of representation will be in the response.

In addition to financing the six member Chests, the campaign this year must provide funds for increased hospitalization costs and for the United Service Organizations, reactivated to care for men called into military service. Campaign officials suggest gifts of one day's pay for persons making under $5000 a year, and from $50 up for persons earning more than that, with particular emphasis on increasing the number of contributions over $100. The need is real, and the Red Feather is one red activity which it is wholly American to support.

Atomic Propaganda

When Mr. Vishinsky dropped his atomic bomb in the General Assembly's Political Committee last Saturday, the American delegation seems to have been caught flat-footed. Mr. Austin's first off-the-cuff response in the lobbies was that it was an "Oriental maneuver" and nothing more. Later the United States delegation issued a two-paragraph release noting that the Vishinsky resolution "fails to carry any assurance that the Soviet Union is prepared to accept the control plan of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission." Only by Monday did Mr. Austin get around to an extended—and not very incisive—reply exposing the weaknesses and insincerity of the Soviet resolution.

The burden of all three reactions was in effect a flat "no" to the Russians, perhaps the unwisest sort of response. No one could have been under the least misapprehension as to the propagandistic purpose of the Russians in making their proposal. It was recognized as such at once by the delegations of the Western powers. That very fact makes all the more puzzling why it was not immediately seized upon and dealt with as such.

It is one thing to dismiss a Russian concession, however insincere, as "propaganda" and let it go at that. It is quite another thing to take up the challenge and turn it back to its source with a redoubled challenge to talk turkey. The American delegation, had it been on its toes, could easily and promptly have removed the barbs from the Soviet propaganda spear and held it up for all to see as the piece of duplicity it was. Technically the delegation kept on solid ground by declining to cloud the issue with a counterthrust. Propagandawise it allowed itself to be put in the position of refusing to consider the Russian proposal. We think Mr. Austin missed the bus in this case.

Prison Walls

The position of the foreign diplomatic corps in Moscow reminds us of the story of the penitentiary inmate who asked a visitor what time it was. "What do you want to know for?" was the reply. "You're not going any place." If Moscow does not resemble a penal institution, it is not for lack of trying on the part of the Soviet Foreign Office. The latest maneuver is an order which prohibits members of the foreign colony from venturing beyond the city limits of Moscow. The vicious circle became complete when censors at first held up mention of the new regulation to the outside world. Or maybe the iron curtain merely became entangled in its own strings.

Not that the restriction means any real change. Technically, diplomatic personnel have had the right to travel anywhere in Russia, but red tape has so snarled the issuance of permits that it has become a practical impossibility. All the present order does is to narrow the area in which foreigners can move without permits. But already the insulation of the foreign colony had become virtually total with the promulgation of a decree which in theory at least forbids Russians outside the Foreign Office from even talking to strangers. And of course, the functions of newspaper correspondents in Moscow for some time have been reduced to reading Soviet newspapers and reporting official handouts. Any attempts at initiative are quickly quashed by the censors.

Undoubtedly the formalization of the restrictions is intended as retaliation for the ouster of Jacob Lomakin as Russian consul general in New York. The Soviet retorted to this action by the State Department, it will be recalled, by closing its consulates in this country and demanding the withdrawal of American consular personnel from Vladivostok. The new regulation seems to be a rather juvenile effort at "last tag." The temptation probably will be strong for the United States to reply in kind. It ought to be resisted, however, for the American moral position is the stronger if this country does not resort to an iron curtain of its own. Besides, the great need is for the Russians to obtain more rather than less knowledge of this country. Far from being an indication of strength, the official Soviet fear of foreigners, a product of the inbred mental processes of the Kremlin, is a devastating confession of weakness.

Railway Wages

To the extent that it represents the amicable settlement of a situation that might have developed into a strike, the 10-cent-an-hour wage boost granted by the railroads to two operating unions appears to be in the public interest. The agreement with the Order of Railway Conductors and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen was achieved for the second successive year without governmental intervention—something that is becoming quite a novelty in the railway labor field. It is significant that the 15½ cents an hour settlement accepted by these two organizations last year later became the pattern for the entire railroad industry, even though three other operating unions agreed to it only after a strike. In granting the present increase without further protest, railway managements are probably hoping that it will again set the general pattern.

But the two unions presently involved represent only 175,000 of the 1,400,000 railroad employes. Direct negotiations with 16 nonoperating unions comprising more than a million members have brought no agreement and the dispute is now before a mediation board. Talks with three other operating unions are continuing. However, these unions—representing engineers, enginemen, firemen and switchmen—are among the more militant railway organizations. Their refusal to accept the pattern last spring resulted in Government seizure of the railroads. Now they represent themselves as unwilling to accept the 10-cent boost and demand instead the difference between the 15½ cents recently granted and the 30 per cent increase they had originally asked, plus extension of the 40-hour week to cover their members.

Until now railroad employes have not participated in the third-round wage boost accorded most industrial workers, and to that extent their request for a cost-of-living adjustment merits consideration. On the other hand, the railroads, in company with most public utilities, are caught in a squeeze between rising operating costs and a fixed rate structure. This summer the Interstate Commerce Commission granted the railroads a 22 per cent increase in freight rates and a 10 per cent hike in passenger fares. The railroads' chief complaint is that ICC action always lags behind the need. Currently their request for another 8 per cent freight increase is pending. Despite this, railway profits this year appear to be good for peacetime, though of course they do not approach the lush returns rolled up during the war.

The real criterion of whether the present increases actually are in the public interest will be whether the railroads are able to absorb the added costs through operating economies—which a relaxation of some of the featherbedding rules might make possible—or whether they intend to lean on the ICC for additional revenue. If the latter is the case, then the present concessions are both inflationary and a threat to railroad traffic. In respect to passengers at least, rate increases appear already to be approaching the point of diminishing returns.

None But The Brave

The affair at Boston yesterday was one of those rare and precious dramas which have an esthetic effect analagous to that of classical music. It was the sort of game in which power is subordinate to pattern and the issue depends upon recognizing the break when it comes and exploiting it to the utmost. As one inning followed another swifty and without score, with each pitcher apparently invincible, it became clear that the issue depended upon which side could contrive by any device to maneuver a single run round the bases. And since these arts, or "fine points," as the grandstand critics used to call them, are said to have survived in the National League after the other had abandoned them, it is appropriate that the Braves should have triumphed yesterday, even though the Indians outhit them by 4 to 2.

The break did not come until the end of the eighth, when the unfortunate Mr. Bobby Feller, pitching a bit too cautiously to the Braves' catcher, Mr. Salkeld, no very formidable batsman, allowed him to walk. Mr. Southworth, making the most of it, replaced Salkeld as a baserunner with another catcher, Mr. Masi, much fleeter of foot. With nobody out, the situation called, of course, for a sacrifice and Mr. Mike McCormick put down his bunt so neatly and so close to the first baseline that it was uncertain for an instant whether it was fair or foul. At this point Mr. Boudreau, playing by the textbook, decided that the stage must be set for a double play by walking Mr. Stinky Stanky, and obliging the pitcher, Mr. Sain, who batted next, to hit along the ground. Mr. Southworth countered by sending Mr. Sisti to first to replace Mr. Stanky. Mr. Feller must have thrown his first pitch to Sain an inch or so too high, for Sain sent the ball into right field where it was caught. Thus there remained Mr. Tommy Holmes to be reckoned with. Mr. Holmes singled down the third-base line and Mr. Masi, racing from second, reached home an instant sooner than Mr. Mitchell's throw from short left field.

Thus it took but one scratch single to vanquish the great Bobby Feller when he was pitching one of the greatest ball games of his life. But he neither made his fate nor deserved it, for it was an occasion on which the prowess and skill on each side were so evenly matched that everything depended on the judgment of the managers. In the clutch Mr. Boudreau's judgment proved inferior to Mr. Southworth's; and that was that.

Mr. Lewis' Bouquet

John L. Lewis has conferred upon President Truman a special favor which no other American could have given him in similar measure. That favor consists of a tirade studded with all the epithets in Mr. Lewis' vocabulary from "oppressive" to "malignant." We may assume from the tenor of the Lewisian performance before the United Mine Workers' convention that the old master of spleen had no intention of giving Mr. Truman's slumping presidential stock a boost. Indeed, his characterization of the President as a hypocrite and as one of the "politicians who have undertaken to drive their dagger to the heart of organized labor" is ample evidence of his own "malignant personal hatred." But it seems unlikely that any miner needed to be reminded of the fights between the UMW and the Administration. The more far-reaching effect of the speech is to refresh the minds of millions of Americans as to the courageous manner in which the President thwarted Mr. Lewis' efforts to wreck the economy of the Nation to enforce his demands.

Mr. Lewis' contribution to the President's campaign is the more valuable because Mr. Truman himself has been reluctant to talk about his triumph over the UMW chieftain's lawlessness. In subduing Mr. Lewis and terminating the coal strikes that were costing the country millions of dollars and workers thousands of jobs Mr. Truman used certain provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act which he had vetoed and which he is now seeking to repeal. It is rather difficult to claim great credit for constructive action taken under a law that one is trying to get rid of. That is why Mr. Lewis' opposition, venomous though it may be, is doubtless welcome at the White House.

We doubt, however, that even Mr. Truman appreciates the extent of the service that the heavy-browed boss of the miners has rendered him. Down at Dallas the other day when Attorney General Clark lauded the President's courage for having stopped "Joe Louis," the President spoke up and said, "No, Tom, you are giving me too much credit. It was John Lewis I stopped in the Federal courts." To anyone who knows his recent history, the task of stopping John L. Lewis' assaults upon our war-racked economy looms up infinitely larger than the feat of halting even our most famous pugilistic champion in the ring. In its contests with the hate-infested UMW leader the Administration succeeded in establishing once more the principle that even a powerful union cannot thumb its nose at the Government in a ruthless defiance of the law. It was an achievement of real significance, which, incidentally, Governor Dewey will doubtless have to follow up if he goes to the White House. That is probably why Mr. Lewis ignored the Republican candidate in his speech. Meanwhile it is curiously paradoxical that the foremost recognition of this milestone in modern democracy comes through the cynical thrusts of Mr. Lewis.

Russian Star

We had not noted anything peculiar about the new yellow postage stamp issued in commemoration of the Gold Star Mothers, except the difficulty of discovering which side of the thing was the top, until one of our correspondents sent us a copy of Linn's Weekly Stamp News. There we were disconcerted to read that the star on the stamp is not one of the pointed or spangling kind favored in our own American heraldry, but rather one of the pot-bellied sort with stunted angles used in the insignia of the Red army and in Russian decoration generally. Indeed, it seems that not very long ago the Russians issued a stamp of their own which had precisely the same kind of star on it.

Thus the suspicion that leaps immediately to mind is that some more strange hanky-panky has been going on in the Government service that Mr. Thomas and his colleagues had better look into. But on careful second thought we are inclined to dismiss the whole thing as another of those interesting but irrelevant coincidences. If the Russians, generally speaking, prefer their stars a little fatter than we do it is probably just because the nights are much longer over there and because, in spite of all the five-year plans, their systems of artificial illumination are not as good as ours, and also, perhaps, because Comrade Stalin, who sets the style in all these matters, has been putting on a good deal of weight recently. The queer thing, come to think of it, is that the Russians should still be satisfied with a single star. You'd suppose they would want the whole heavens.

FRAIL OF HEART

In the midst of happiness my heart was broken
So softly that only I heard:
Nothing had happened, there was not spoken
One cruel word.

It broke of its own weight, its own small measure.
There was no salt in my weeping.
Surely a heart so frail is nothing to treasure—
Not worth keeping.

Playless Capital

Nobody.—well, almost nobody—was particularly concerned because there was no dramatic culture for one third of the people of the Capital City and no legitimate theater open to Negro Washington. It was just a custom, or some sort of pattern, as they called it. Like voices in the wilderness were the voices of those who not only loved the theater but loved justice and civil rights as well.

For nearly two years they made public appeals and called upon theater-loving people to encourage the owner of the National Theater to change his policy. They asked the people to make known their desires for the continuance of the theater here, and to urge the President and the officials of the Public Buildings Administration to release the Belasco. However, at that time we still had a theater in Washington and the 14,000 Theater Guild subscribers had their seats.

But suddenly, although it had been an understood possibility for at least a year, white Washington has no theater. And no theater for white people is a vital, serious and important matter. A great cry is heard about the cultural shame and disgrace that our fair city faces. I quite agree that it is a disgrace for any city, and especially for a great Capital City, to have no theater, even as it was a disgrace to have a theater for some people and not for others. And we are told that the 14,000 Theater Guild subscribers are heartbroken, and that they "will run, not walk, to the nearest entrance" if only somehow Washington can have a theater again.

It is unfortunate that this show of enthusiasm came so late. Perhaps Mr. Marcus Helman would have ventured the financial risk that he feared was involved in a change of policy if he had been properly assured of such enthusiastic support from these 14,000 subscribers. However, I am glad to know that there is this great enthusiasm, and I am sure the knowledge of this support from such a large group will greatly encourage those who are working on the problem of providing a theater for Washington.

Meanwhile, deprived of the culture that we would not share we may grow in our understanding of what it means to others to be deprived of cultural opportunity.

Carrier Bombing

In a letter, published September 29, a person identifying himself as "Taxpayer" attempted to ridicule the effectiveness of the Air Force's precision bombing techniques, especially the use of heavy bombers in carrying the atomic bomb.

He suggested that carrier-based fighter planes be used for precision bombing with the A-bomb. Here, of course, he has erroneously accorded dive bombing, which can be described as erratic at best, the accuracy of precision bombing. Besides, since when has pin-point perfection become a requisite in atom bomb technique?

If another war crystallizes, we shall not find ourselves fighting a third-rate air power like Japan again. Should an aircraft carrier dare come within range of Russian aviation in wartime, it would be like shooting fish in a barrel for high flying Soviet bombers.

One near-miss by an atom or germ bomb and any naval vessel is put of of commission; its crew is killed outright, and the permanently radio-active or germ infested ship is no longer usable.

If "Taxpayer" is really concerned with what he believes is a waste of money on building so-called "fat, unmaneuverable bombers," common sense will tell him that it would be a far greater waste to build an aircraft carrier which has much less chance of evading action than the now obsolete B-36 or the 600 mile-an-hour B-47.

"Ambassadress"

Why do so many correspondents, and especially society columnists, persist in referring to the wife of an ambassador as "the ambassadress"?

Surely they ought to know that the wife of an ambassador has no official title as such. If the United States had had an embassy in Denmark when Mrs. Harriman was our envoy to that country she might have been called our ambassadress.

The wife of an ambassador is no more an "ambassadress" than the wife of a doctor is a "doctress" or the wife of a general a "generaless." Obviously such usage would be absurd. So is that of "ambassadress."

AWVS Food Parcels

The necessity continues for sending food parcels to the war-torn countries. The American Women's Voluntary Services will accept orders for 10-pound food parcels for $3.50 each, which price includes the cost of the food, the packing and wrapping and mailing (all done by volunteer workers), and the postage.

Due to the postage reduction permitted by ERP on food parcels, 10 pounds can be now sent for the same price as the former seven-pound package. The card of the sender is contained in the package, which is mailed direct to the recipient. Some choice is permitted in the selection of the contents, while the particular needs of each country are borne in mind.

At this season we must begin to think of Christmas parcels, because October 15 is the latest date at which holiday orders can be filled. The AWVS has prepared a special 11-pound parcel which costs $4.00. This contains plum pudding and other suitable delicacies enclosed in festive wrappings.

AWVS has lists of accredited names. Order blanks are now going through the mail to those who have already used the AWVS service. A phone request to DU. 1481 between 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. weekdays except Saturday will start one in your direction, or you may drop into the office, 1800 Connecticut ave., during those hours, for further information.

"Newspaper Court"

It was a pleasure to read your October 4 editorial, "Newspaper Court," but I think both The Washington Post and Mr. Sulzberger of the New York Times are on the wrong track in trying to develop, or "impose"—to use Mr. Sulzberger's term—a sense of responsibility on the press by means of a board, or even a court. Such boards have been established in other professions, but only after those professions adopted measurable and scientific methods in their work. The press has not done this.

All sorts of standards and principles of journalism have been adopted through the years, but since they were based on personal or group prejudice or predilection, instead of on determinable fact, they did not last. I believe it now is possible for journalism to give itself the only basis upon which a genuine sense of responsibility can be developed, namely, by informing the reporting and editing of news with the methods and discoveries of the social sciences.

It is curious to me that most of the science editors of newspapers seem really to be "physical or natural science editors," who seem to go out of their way to report some new discovery of primary interest to professional chemists, say, or to engineers, while carefully overlooking scientific developments in the humane studies that everybody—Joe Doakes as well as chemists and engineers—is interested in.

Do I exaggerate? Most newspapers and wire services employed highly capable reporters to cover the recent centennial in Washington of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Yet these experienced newspapermen saw nothing significant in the fact that this organization of scientists—largely in the physical and natural sciences—devoted 12 of their 27 lectures and symposia to the social sciences!

Beyond a report of a radio interview on "What Hope for Man?" I saw nothing in any paper about these readable and important lectures. The big news of the centennial was contained in them, yet the newsmen's necessarily labored efforts were given to reporting advances in physics, in oceanography, biochemistry and similar sciences, because, I suppose, the press believes that that is the only way to "cover science."

I do not criticize the able men who reported the centennial—all were victims of the old-fashioned concepts of news that govern the operations of every city room in the land, the concepts that give priority to all sciences except those of most importance to journalism—those studying man.

So far as I know, there can be no better way to develop a sense of responsibility than to establish fact, and there is no better way to determine fact than by the methods of science—with all due respect to a "nose for news" and "news sense." News of politics can be political science, news of business can be economics, news of crime can be criminology, news of love can be psychoanalysis—and vice versa. (Those four subjects cover most of the news appearing in The Washington Post, except for the sports pages.)

May I therefore suggest that the social science component of news stories be searched for by the reporter and editor along with the traditional elements: who, what, when, where, why, and that it be incorporated into the story along with those elements, and, if not assimilable to the same extent, be given at least in a shirt-tail. By substituting, or at least adding, "human fact" to "human interest" the story would gain in human interest, and, more to our point, in social responsibility.

If this admittedly difficult technique could be tried, I predict that the city room routine would be transformed, leading to the transformation of the character of the news, and the first real advance in methods of journalism. This could not have been tried before because the social sciences, which should be at the base of journalism, had not advanced to their present high and usable level.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Underdog Fight

ALMOST without interruption from now until the week-end before election day President Truman will be on the road carrying his uphill, underdog fight to the country. The President and the men immediately around him refuse to believe that the voters have in overwhelming numbers made up their minds and that nothing said or done between now and November 2 can change the outcome.

During the brief interval in Washington the President and his advisers reviewed the strategy of the past two weeks and plotted the attack to come. Greater emphasis from here on out is to be put on the "constructive" side of issues rather than on denunciation of the Eightieth Congress and the Republican leaders whom President Truman is blaming for the failure of his domestic program.

Thus, in his speech on social security, the President will say that the constructive effort of the Democratic Administration was to expand social security provisions so that two million additional persons would be put on the rolls. In contrast, the Republican Congress, the President will say, acted to cut off 750,000 who were previously covered.

In virtually every talk in the next few weeks, as the campaign strategists plan it, emphasis is to be placed on the Taft-Hartley Act and its threat to trade unionism. This emphasis represents the influence of Clark Clifford, special counsel to the President, who maintains close relations with both AFL and CIO leaders.

Clifford has become convinced that the Taft-Hartley Act is a wedge that will be used to shatter the economic power of mass trade unions in the not-too-distant future. The drive against the unions will gather momentum with the unemployment that would come with a recession or depression.

IF THE threat of such an attack can be driven home, it is believed that organized labor can be spurred into getting out the labor vote in the large cities. Besides repeatedly injecting the Taft-Hartley threat into his back-platform speeches, according to present plans, the President will make a major talk on that theme either in Chicago or in Akron, Ohio.

The fact is, of course, that it is only at this eleventh hour that labor has begun to try to organize seriously for the Truman-Barkley ticket. The disaffection both before and after the Philadelphia convention resulted in a kind of paralysis that has only now been thrown off.

In Michigan, with its great industrial centers, the CIO United Auto Workers has taken over the Democratic Party. But with the the deadline for new registrations less than a week away, there is no indication of a rush of new voters who might be expected, with union urging, to vote Democratic.

In New York, David Dubinsky, head of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union, has informed the White House that he will do everything in his power to help the President. Registration figures show, however, a drop in New York City of 234,585 below 1944. This is bad news indeed for the Democrats, whose chances of carrying New York State were slight at best and dependent on a huge vote in the city.

BY WAY of contrast it is revealing to look back at the Democratic campaign of 1940. That campaign, too, was conducted in an atmosphere of deepening crisis with the formerly free countries of western Europe under Nazi tyranny.

President Roosevelt, running for reelection to an unprecedented third term, started out by saying he was "to busy" to campaign. Except for brief "non-political" inspection trips to developing war industries, he would confine himself to a few nationally broadcast speeches.

It was the late Wendell Willkie who barnstormed across the country speaking often a dozen times a day, frequently pausing in the course of a motorcade to address street-corner groups. The Willkie campaign in its intensity was a precedent for President Truman's present strenuous effort.

Willkie succeeded in forcing Roosevelt off his high, nonpolitical "too busy" plane. As reports showed certain States wavering, FDR went out and made political speeches that had never been on the original schedule limited to four or five addresses.

If he was to make a real try for reelection, President Truman, in my opinion, had no choice but to do what he is doing. He could hardly have remained in Washington to represent himself as the indispensable man in resolving the East-West riddle. Reports have come to the White House that the underdog appeal is taking hold. Resolutely from now until November the President will show his fighting spirit in the face of seemingly hopeless odds.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Dilemma Of European Defense

LIPPMANN

WHILE THERE is general agreement in this country that the defense of western Europe is a vital interest of the United States, the question of ways and means presents many difficult, though not necessarily insoluble, problems.

The real situation was defined authoritatively a few days ago by the Deputy Army Chief of Staff, General Collins, when he said in an address at St. Louis that the manpower and industrial potential of the western Europeans "is still great . . . and with worldwide cooperation, there is a daily increase in their strength to defend themselves . . . at the moment, however, their domestic problems are so great that their military potential is near an all time low."

It follows from this that the development of adequate military power will take time. At best one cannot count on much less than two years. Even if we suppose that Congress were called into special session right after election in order to ratify an alliance, to authorize and appropriate for military lend-lease, and to impose the industrial controls needed to manufacture the munitions and equipment, time would have to pass before European continental armies existed which could fight an effective holding operation between the Elbe and the Rhine.

DURING the period of preparation the defense of western Europe would depend, as it does today, not upon our ability to hold the Red army but upon our ability to deter the Kremlin from ordering it to march. The crucial question is whether the deterrent effect of American air and sea power would be sufficient, or can be made sufficient, to meet the additional strain that would be created by serious measures to arm western Europe.

We must not underestimate the additional strain. As things are now there is a real though precarious balance of power which preserves the peace: our ability to devastate the Russian cities is balanced by the Red army's ability to overrun the cities of western Europe. But if effective measures were taken and completed to arm western Europe, the balance of power would have turned radically against the Russians. Their cities would still be vulnerable to the atomic bomb; the western cites would be secure against the Russian infantry.

THE PERIOD when western Europe was arming—but not yet effectively armed—would inevitably be one of extreme danger. The bitterness of the Russian reaction to the economic Marshall Plan has been considerable; against a military Marshall Plan it would surely be even more violent, especially if the formation of a western German government were followed, as many who sponsor it intend, by the re-creation of the German army.

DURING this ultimately critical period, our problem would be how to defend western Europe while it is being organized to defend itself. The basic strategy of containing the Red army at the Elbe by the threat of retaliation inside Russia might not be sufficient. In any event the continental Europeans would not believe it was sufficient. Additional measures would have to be taken at once, with the forces we can soon make available, to barricade western Europe.

HOW MUCH can be done is a technical question on which there is as yet no agreed opinion among the professional military men. It would, however, be imprudent to assume that enough can be done, enough that is to say, not only to convince the Russian military commanders that a march to the west would be too expensive but also to convince the people of France and of the Low Countries that the Russians were convinced.

THE QUESTION, then, arises as to whether diplomacy and statesmanship might resolve the dilemma of how Europe is to be defended during the dangerous period while it is being organized to defend itself. It is, I think, at least conceivable that this could be done.

The essence of the problem is to convince the Kremlin first, that it would be exceedingly dangerous to invade western Europe and, second, that the arming of western Europe is in fact defensive. On the first point, there is no need to wait for several months to debate and ratify a military alliance: it would be useful to have an explicit declaration now, supported by Mr. Dewey, that any advance beyond the armistice lines would be an act of war against the United States. That declaration could be confirmed later by treaty. But it should be made now.

ON THE second point, to induce the Kremlin to accept the arming of France and the Western Union, the best hope lies, it seems to me, in coupling a military lend-lease program with an offer to negotiate the military evacuation of Germany on the basis of a treaty which left Germany neutralized and disarmed under something like the original Vandenberg-Byrnes proposal.

Such an offer would not entail a sudden American withdrawal from Europe. It would entail a withdrawal from Germany into western Europe as and when the Russians withdraw from Germany into eastern Europe. We should still be nearer to the Ruhr than the Russians. But it is conceivable that they might be willing to withdraw from the middle of Europe and to accept the organization of a western European defense system if the Germans were not incorporated into it.

AND IF they were not willing, our position would certainly be no weaker, and probably it would be stronger. By making this offer, we would show the Europeans that our policy is in fact defensive and that we are not bent on re-creating the military power of Germany. By bringing on negotiations which postpone the showdown, we should relax the tension, gain time for our own Government to become stable under a new administration, and allow the civilized world to calm its nerves and collect its wits.

Barkley Says GOP Would Exploit West

Casper, Wyo., Oct. 6 (U.P.).—Senator Alben W. Barkley, Democratic vice presidential nominee, charged tonight that the Republican policy for the West is one of "inaction" and "exploit tion."

Continuing his bid for Democratic votes in the West, Barkley concentrated on the Western "record" of the two major political parties in his prepared speech.

"The leadership of the Republican Party stands . . . for the exploitation of the West, principally by those powerful financial interests which control it," he charged.

"The Democratic Party stands," he said, "for the development of the West by Westerners, for Western benefit and automatically and inevitably for the benefit of the whole country."

Despite Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's campaign words on belief in the West, Barkley said, the "record of the party which he (Dewey) represents does not support or substantiate them."

Huge Crowds Hear Truman in Philadelphia

the Berlin crisis with John Foster Dulles, U. N. delegat eand Dewey's chief foreign policy adviser.

And yesterday Mr. Truman cut his Eastern swing short by a day to confer Saturday with Secretary of State George C. Marshall. He originally scheduled an atomic energy speech for tonight but changed his topic. Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross said he wanted to give that subject more thought.

All afternoon the President stumped Philadelphia and Camden, in nearby New Jersey, milling through this convention city during the height of the big noon and 5 o'clock street throngs.

The crowds laughed, cheered and showered his parade with confetti as it snaked from the depot to the hotel, and again on the 40-mile round trip to Camden. A few boos mingled with the cheers and some Dewey-Warren banners were flaunted.

En route to his hotel, the parade stopped at Independence Hall. The President posed beside the Liberty Bell and visited historic Congress Hall with Mrs. Truman.

Then he signed the hall's visitors' book. Here's how he signed it: "Harry S. Truman, Independence, Mo.; temporary address, 1600 Pennsylvania ave., Washington, D. C." He leaned smilingly over Mrs. Truman's shoulders as she signed her own name. She put ditto marks after the President's "temporary address."

There were shouts of "Where's Margaret?" and "Where's the daughter who sings?" as he rode through the crowds. Margaret did not come along on this trip. One Truman fan shouted this hoarse admonition to reporters in the press bus: "You Republicans write him up right!"

Save for his brief foreign policy reference, the President tonight stuck chiefly to his favorite subject, "the Republican, do-nothing Congress," and his price and labor quarrel with it.

He tied Governor Dewey ever more closely to Congress, saying GOP leadership "directions" from Albany were to "hang around a week or two and then go home."

Then he charged an "unholy alliance of big business and the Republican Party" brought about the "murder" of OPA. He said Republicans took credit for it at the time but now blame high prices on "everything and everybody."

"They're using the farmer as their whipping boy in the cities, and labor as the their whipping boy on the farm," he said, adding:

"I want to say something to you here and now—I don't talk out of both sides of my mouth at the same time. I am just as strong for the welfare of the farmer as I am for the welfare of the city worker."

Accusing the GOP nominees of singing "sweet lullabis," he said they are dodging issues because they "are ashamed to tell where they stand."

Still pouring it on, he said Republicans are planning legislation "even more reprehensive" than the Taft-Hartley Act, even while they are telling labor they are for collective bargaining.

"They just say, turn all these Democratic programs over to us and we will take care of everything," he continued.

Sounds Like Company Union

"Do you know what it sounds like to me? It sounds like a 'company union.'"

En route to Camden, the President stopped at the "Chapel of the Four Chaplains," named after the four chaplains who went down with the USS Dorchester, in February, 1943.

At the Hunting Park Veterans Barracks, where veterans are given priority on all housing assignments, and at Richard Allen Homes, largest of Philadelphia's low-cost housing projects, the parade stopped again.

At the Allen project, Mr. Truman denied low-cost housing is "a burden on the taxpayer."

"Eventually they pay themselves out," he said. "I can't understand for the life of me why the real estate lobby won't let us build more of these."

At Camden City Hall, Mr. Truman faced a crowd of 15,000 on Roosevelt Plaza named after the late President, who made three campaign visits there.

Courage Is Praised

Mayor George E. Brunner introduced him and Archibald Alexander, Somerfield County lawyer and Democatic Senate nominee, made another speech praising the President's "courage" on the civil rights issue.

But in his own speech, Mr. Truman did not refer to his civil rights stand or his row with the South. He lashed out again on the price and labor issues instead and hit the Republican platform as a lot of "lies."

"They (the GOP) didn't mean a word of it," he said.

Ironically, Walcott was the butt of a story Truman told tonight at Convention Hall.

Truman quoted Joe Louis' comment after the fight:

"Well, he could run away, but he couldn't hide."

"Don't let the Republicans hide," was Mr. Truman's moral.

Democrats to Mobilize New Voters for Truman

Roy C. Baker of Sherman, Tex., president of the Young Democratic Clubs of America, announced a 16-member advisory committee of Young Democrats to help bring out the vote.

Two of the committee members are the President's daughter, Margaret Truman, and Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., son of the late President.

"We intend to explain the Democratic principles and record to young voters in every county in the United States," Baker said in a statement.

Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan, former president of the Young Democrats of Colorado; Representative Lyndon B. Johnson, nominee for United States Senate from Texas; Representative Olin E. Teague of Texas; Gov. John O. Pastore of Rhode Island; Gov. Clarence W. Meadows of West Virginia.

Lieut. Gov. Elbert N. Carvel of Delaware; Mrs. Dorothy M. Vredenburgh, Vredenburgh, Ala., secretary of the Democratic National Committee; Robert F. Wagner, jr., chairman of the New York City Planning Commission; Edmund G. Brown, district attorney of San Francisco.

Dr. Josephine M. Pisani of New York City; Miss Katherine Cullinan, regional director of the Young Democratic Clubs of America, Providence, R. I.; Mrs. Helen Warvel Noland, Bloomington, Ind.; Edward F. Pritchard, jr., Lexington, Ky.; and Judge William Wehrman, Covington, Ky.

Without Secrecy

Firm Foreign Policy Urged By Warren

Chicago, Oct. 6 (AP).—Gov. Earl Warren tonight called for an American foreign policy without "vacillation or appeasement," and built around the full knowledge and understanding of the people.

Coming into the heart of the Midwest, the Republican vice presidential candidate in a prepared talk termed the GOP platform "clear aand straightforward" in its foreign policy definitions.

Warren cited platform declarations for collective security against aggression, and full support of the United Nations.

The Republican foreign policy plank and the uttterances of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican presidential caandidate, and Senator Arthur Vandenberg, blueprint a "hopeful and confident approach" to difficult foreign problems, Warren asserted.

"No Bluff," He Says

"There will be no vacillation or appeasement — no bluff. Just sound, practical American determination based upon the realties of the day."

"Foreign policy," he declared, "is not something to be conceived in secrecy and carried out privately by any one man in the White House, the State Department, or anywhere else.

If our foreign policy is to have spirit and forcee, it must have the full understanding and approval of the American people themselves."

Warren cited the World War agreements made at Tehran, Yalta and Potsdam as examples of "under-the-table secret arrangements."

It is five years since Tehran, he said, and more than three years since Yalta and Potsdam, and still the people "have had no full disclosure."

"It is still being disclosed in now-it-can-be-told articles and best sellers, written for profit by former Government officials. And all of it has been bad—bad for us and bad for our friends overseas."

The American people, he asserted, "are paying the penalty" for "too many officials who regard the American Government as their special toy while they are running it, and as their source of profit when they get out of it."

The No. 2 GOP candidate picked Chicago for a review of Republican foreign policy concepts at a Republican rally in international amphitheater.

The vice presidential special was two hours late arriving here as the result of what might have been a serious accident.

Shortly after 6 a. m. the Governor and his family were routed out of bed and the train stopped when a conductor spotted flames streaming from the trucks of the private car.

Examination disclosed an axle had burned through as a result of a hotbox. Only because it was the center axle of a three-wheel truck probably prevented at least a bad derailment, members of the train staff said.

Warren clambered out in the chill dawn east of Maysville, Ky., to survey the damage.

The car was cut loose and another car was attached at Cincinnati. The damaged car will be brought to Chicago in time for the train's departure at noon Thursday.

Dewey to Start Sunday Night On Swing Through 9 States

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 6 (U.P.).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey today completed plans for a nine-State campaign swing which begins Sunday night and will take him through the Middle West and so far South as Kentucky and Oklahoma.

The Republican presidential candidate will make at least 38 campaign appearances during the eight-day trip, including major speeches at Pittsburgh, Kansas City and St. Paul.

Dewey worked out his itinerary today in a conference with his campaign manager, Herbert Brownell, jr., and a group of top political strategists.

Not only will the Governor make an intensive campaign in President Truman's home State of Missouri, but he will go as his Democratic opponent recently did into the coal mining and farm country of southern Illinois.

Calls Truman Unfit

The Illinois phase of his trip may represent an effort to woo the vote of the United Mine Workers of John L. Lewis who yesterday assailed Mr. Truman as unfit for the Presidency. Lewis, in his blast at the President, also criticized the Republican Eightieth Congress, but he refrained from a stand on Dewey.

Dewey's trip will take him into Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Missouri, Minnesota, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois and New York. These are the States in which he will make appearances, although his train will touch other States in moving down through the Nation's breadbasket.

Brownell would not discuss the subject of Dewey's three major speeches. They will be at Pittsburgh on October 11 at 8:30 p. m. (EST); Kansas City, October 14 at 9:30 p. m. (EST), and St. Paul, October 15, at 9:30 p. m. (EST). The Pittsburgh and Kansas City speeches will be carried over CBS, and the St. Paul address over ABC.

Mum on Truman Visit

The Dewey staff, meanwhile, remained mum about what the New York Governor will do when the President stops in Albany next Friday morning.

In some States, Republican Governors have visited the campaigning Democratic President briefly to make a perfunctory, official welcome.

Oct. 11: Pennsylvania — Erie, Sharon, Newcastle, Rochester and Pittsburgh.

Oct. 12: Kentucky — Lexington and Louisville. Indiana — Evansville. Illinois—Carmi, Mount Vernon and East St. Louis.

Oct. 13: Oklahoma — Vinita, Claremore, Tulsa, Sapulpa, Bristow, Chandler, Oklahoma City, Holdenville and McAlester.

Oct. 14: Missouri — Joplin, Monette, Springfield, Kansas City.

Oct. 15: Minnesota—Albert Lea, Austin, Owatonna, Waseca, Mankato, Le Sueur, Shakopee and St. Paul.

Oct. 16: Indiana — Rensselaer, Michigan—Owasso.

Oct. 17: Owasso (spending Sunday at home of his mother).

Oct. 18: New York—Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Utica and return to Albany during afternoon.

Wallace Assails Rise of Military

San Francisco, Oct. 6 (AP).—Henry Wallace said today the military—by what amounts to a "coup d'etat"—has taken over civilian power to a greater extent than ever before in American history.

And he said some generals "freely admit" that we are turning planes and guns over to Chiang Kai-shek in order to "build China into an attack base for the war the Pentagon boys are so blithely planning."

In a speech prepared for delivery before the Commonwealth Club, the Progessive Party candidate for President made perhaps his most strongly worded assault on United States foreign policy of the campaign.

Wallace denounced the Truman doctrine of aid to nations fighting communism and said that under it:

1. "Any dictatorial satrap" in the world can "hit the American Treasury jackpot" by raising the cry that he is afraid of Communists.

2. Russia and communism have been built up as a "gigantic red herring" to divert attention from a plan to restore a "lushly profitable war economy" to America.

The candidate said Gen. George Marshall's "sincere" effort to get the Chinese people together in a unified and stable government was "about the last gasp of American liberal foreign policy."

After this, said Wallace, came the "coup d'etat" in which not only military leaders but also financial leaders came to unprecedented power in the Government.

Wallace quoted Gen. Claire Chennault as telling Congress last March 10:

"Modern bombers operating from airfields in China are within much closer range of Russia's industrial areas than bombers based in the United States. In fact, Siberia east of Lake Baikal could be isolated from the remainder of Russia by air attack launched from these Chinese fields. China bases are even closer than North African bases and next to what we consider the superstrategic Middle East."

Wallace recalled that Franklin D. Roosevelt made a famous "forgotten man" speech before the Commonwealth Club 16 years ago. And then he said:

"The forgotten common people of this land and many other lands all over the world feel this strange fear of what may be cooked up for them by the bomb-happy boys in the Pentagon, and the power-happy boys of the great cartels, whose new version of an old American creed seems to be, 'all men shall be cremated free and equal.'"

Wallace said of the war fears: "I know these things are not all our fault. But neither are they the fault of any other nation, or group of nations."

the controversial points will join in the effort which will bring to our county the kind of government it deserves."

David E. Betts, Rockville attorney associated with Schneider in the legal test on the charter issue commented: "We have accomplished what we set out to do even though the ruling is contrary to our beliefs."

He said that Schneider initiated the court test in "the sincere belief" that the charter document was unconstitutional and should be amended.

Schneider based his charges that the charter conflicts with the Maryland constitution on his belief that the constitution requires adoption of the annual budget in May instead of June as is specified in the charter.

Both Schneider and Betts contended the County Circuit Court ruling was a victory for them. They appealed to the higher court because the lower court denied their request to restrain the charter referendum.

Women in Court Fight Over W. C. Fields' Body

Los Angeles, Oct. 6 (AP).—Two women opposed sach other in court today over disposition of the body of comedian W. C. Fields who died on Christmas Day, 1946.

Mrs. Magda Michael, Fields' business secretary and executor of his estate, stated that the widow has refused to allow cremation, although Fields directed it in his will. Mrs. Harriet V. Fields, who was estranged from the actor for some 30 years, has asked the court that she be given the right to dispose of Fields' body in any way she sees fit.

U. S. Checks on Alcohol Output for Emergency

The Government is checking to see whether industry could make all the alcohol the country might need in an emergency.

The National Security Resources Board said it did not plan to stockpile alcohol "at present" but it wanted to survey production and storage facilities available to distillers and industrial alcohol plants.

Dr. Ashworth, 71, to Leave District Post

Dr. Reid R. Ashworth, 71-year-old head of the Health Department's Bureau of Food Inspection, whose retirement has been postponed three times by the District Commissioners, will leave his post December 1, when the present extension expires.

Ashworth

Commissioner Guy Mason, who made the announcement, said Walter W. Burdette, Dr. Ashworth's assistant, is being considered as a successor.

Dr. Ashworth joined the Health Department in 1901 as dairy herd inspector and has been a director of the food inspection services for 33 years. He is credited with developing a system for rating barns, cattle and milk plants with numerical score cards for inspection purposes.

110,000 Plant Accidents

Richmond, Va., Oct. 6 (AP).—John Hopkins Hall, jr., State commissioner of labor and industry, has reported that Virginia's industrial workers were involved in about 110,000 accidents in 1947. He said yesterday that these accidents cost industry directly and indirectly between 14 and 15 million dollars.

Youth Drinking May Be Probed

Grand jury action in the current drive to halt juvenile drinking in Prince Georges County loomed as a possibility yesterday.

Connie B. Gay, proprietor of the Club Hillbilly, one of the establishments charged with selling beer to minors, appeared in Upper Marlboro yesterday to post bond for a second arrest.

State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie called for Gay and was closeted with him for more than an hour. Bowie said he had asked about published statements attributed to Gay that he had been threatened with loss of his liquor license if he did not purchase certain brands of beer and install certain kinds of pinball machines.

The State's Attorney declined to comment on his talk with Gay. Gay was released without posting additional bond since he already is under $500 bond for his first arrest.

Pope Deplores Efforts to Bar Religion in Schools

Rome, Italy, Oct. 6 (U.P.).—Pope Pius urged Catholic teachers tonight to oppose "pernicious attempts to separate religion and education" and to combat "the exaggerated importance given to technical and material education."

The Pope spoke from his summer home at Castel Gandolfo to a gathering of South American Catholic teachers.

"Educate youth for peace," the Pope said, "Develop in the souls of children and young people the hierarchical spirit . . .

"Mitigate as much as possible the atmosphere of independence and excessive liberty which youth of today breathe and which would bring them to reject every authority and every control."

Teachers, he said, must "oppose the pernicious efforts which aim at separating completely religion from education and from school, or which try to establish education on a purely naturalistic foundation."

Race Bet Records Are Found in Raid

Papers indicating they were owed about $90,000 in racing bet debts were found on two men arrested in a raid on an apartment at 2151 California st. nw.

One said he was a former New York physician who found gambling in Washington more profitable than practicing medicine in New York.

Dove Schwartz

Vice Squad Lieut. Roy Blick said five of his men had to break in the door of the first floor apartment at 3 p. m. when it was slammed in their faces. They arrested Dr. Max Schwartz, 54, who lives there, and Louis W. Dove, 40, of 1796 Columbia rd. nw., charged with setting up a gaming table.

Detective Sergt. James Roche said Schwartz told him he owns the apartment house. Roche said in Schwartz's possession were found horse race betting slips ranging from $400 to $10, a promissory note for $25,000 and another for $10,000 apparently made out to Schwartz by two businessmen, and $134 in cash.

Blick said the raiders found Dove in the bathroom, tearing up betting slips and throwing them into the toilet. On him, said Blick, were found an IOU book listing about 40 debts totalling approximately $55,000, and $530 in cash. Dove is listed in the city directory as a news dealer at 1796 Columbia rd. nw., living at Apartment 523, 2480 16th st. nw.

Blick said Dove was a known gambler, had been convicted in 1934 of "permitting gaming."

Other evidence seized by the raiders included a radio they said may have been used to receive racing results, and a clock with a special second hand. The raiders said they remained in the apartment long enough to "accept" several bets over the two telephones—one for $200—and a complaint from a bettor who said he'd got a "wrong steer."

Schwartz and Dove were released in $2000 bond each for appearance in Municipal Court today.

Slayer Hunt Redoubled

Ferndale, Md., Oct. 6 (AP).—Reinforcements from Baltimore's Police Department and the State police today started a new attempt to solve Glen Burnie's double slaying case.

Governor Lane personally put them on the prowl at a two-hour strategy conference.

The Baltimore police force, which is under his jurisdiction, assigned three detectives on the case full time. They will work with Chief John H. Souers, jr., of the Anne Arundel County police and a detail of State troopers.

Mahlan's car was found the next morning off a side road about 3 miles southeast of Glen Burnie. There were bullet holes in the front windows, blood stains all over, and one of Mary's shoes in the back seat.

A thousand searchers combed the area for three days before a road worker stumbled on the bodies in a secluded clearing 6 miles west of Annapolis, a dozen miles from Mahlan's car. John and Mary had been shot in the head.

Husband Indicted In Death of Wife

The District grand jury yesterday indicted a 30-year-old elevator operator on a charge of first-degree murder of his wife, although a coroner's jury held the death to be accidental.

The defendant charged with the capital offense is Rubie J. King, of 1421 1st st. nw. The deceased was Mrs. Lucinda E. King, his wife of three years. King had declared that his revolver discharged accidentally, but witnesses said King was known to have beaten her on several occasions. She was attempting to effect a reconciliation with him April 28 when she was slain, it was said.

56 True Bills

This was one of 56 indictments returned by the July grand jury which ended its term of service yesterday. Other indictments charged ten persons with burglary and six with robbery.

James L. Walter, 34, of 703 Randolph st. nw., was charged with housebreaking and grand larceny in an apartment he once rented t 804 Taylor st. nw. According to the charge, Walter returned to the apartment on four occasions in July and August, used his key to get entrance and took out and sold more than $300 in furniture.

Second-degree murder was charged to James F. Lewis, 40, of 1135 10th st. nw. The deceased was Irvin Holman, 24, no known address, who was beaten to death with a club. Also charged with second-degree murder was Alvin N. Johns, 24, of 1402 S st. nw., for the fatal shooting of Zeb Jeffries, 29, of 1505 Vermont ave. nw.

Five persons were charged with possession of numbers slips and operating a number lottery here. They are Robert C. Thorpe, 42, of 609 New Jersey ave. nw.; Edna Sellman, 45, of 1244 1st st. sw.; Minnie B. Weaver, 27, of 16 L st. sw.; James Chandler, jr., 28, 728 19th st. nw., and Odell Harris, 23, 730 19th st. ne.

Maurice Johnson, 25, 1221 Wylie st. ne., was charged with the robbery of Aaron C. Selis, junk dealer at 1125 1st nw. on August 14. According to the charge, Johnson beat Selis brutally and snatched a bag containing $1687 from the junk dealer's hand.

Traffic Bribe Charged

A cab driver was indicted on a charge of trying to bribe a policeman to "forget" about a traffic ticket. According to the indictment, Freddie H. Austin, 31, 2917 12th st. ne., was arrested for speeding on Lincoln rd. ne. Fearful that it might cost him his hacker's license, Austin allegedly offered $10 to Traffic Policeman Clifton L. Fones.

Mrs. Margaret L. Seymour, 55, was charged with running a bawdy house in an apartment at 1801 Calvert st. nw., and with accepting the earnings from two prostitutes there.

Harry Tegge To Head Jury

Harry W. Tegge, 39, assistant manager of the Shoreham Hotel, yesterday was named foreman of the regular District grand jury for the next three months.

The grand jury was sworn in yesterday at District Court.

Named deputy foreman was Robert E. Wilhelm, 39, of 4812 Georgia ave. nw., manager of the Deal funeral home.

Tegge resides at 1 Scott Circle.

Gustavis H. Babb, 32, metallurgist, 323 14th st. ne.; Marshall B. Barner, 55, a cook, 713 11th st. ne.; Abraham Bennett, 34, liquor store clerk, 5013 3d st. nw.; Mrs. Hazel R. Burruss, 61, of 4700 Upton st. nw.; Keith V. Carpenter, 27, chief of the audit section for the Civil Service Commission, 315 Parkland pl. se.; Kermit A. Christian, 41, property clerk, 626 21st st. ne.; Joseph Crawford, 41, stock clerk, 715 Gresham pl. nw.; Mrs. Anna B. Creel, 49, housewife, 1612 Montague st. nw.; Mrs. Eddie M. Edwards, 46, housekeeper, 2703 P st. nw.; John C. Fitzgerald, 42, commodity specialist with the War Assets Administration, 4615 8th st. nw.; Mrs. Olga V. Fonville, clerk, 5367 Blaine st. ne.

Mrs. Gertrude O. Foreman, 39, housewife, 6728 Eastern ave. nw.; Harry E. France, 55, architect, 1829 P st. se.; Nicholas Hamaty, 23, clerk, 1208 Orren st. ne.; James M. Klasock, 56, fingerprint analyst, 300 Powhatan pl. nw.; Miss Carolyn Linder, 25, secretary, 1630 K st. ne.; Charles E. Lombardy, 33, shop planner, 1714 D st. ne.; Ernest W. Keisner, 41, 2737 Devonshire pl. nw.; John E. Stamp, 27, cableman, 1601 26th pl. se.; Mrs. Leonelda G. A. Volkman, 54, clerk, 1114 Abbey pl. ne.; Mrs. Ruth M. West, 50, housewife, 5319 Ames st. ne.

Funeral Rites Set Friday for Woman Slain in Grill Tragedy

Funeral services for Mrs. Claudia Jean Jaskowiak, 31, who was killed early Tuesday, will be held at 9:30 a. m. Friday at Ryan funeral home, 317 Pennsylvania ave. se. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Mrs. Jaskowiak, estranged wife of T/Sergt. Walter A. Jaskowiak of Bolling Field, was stabbed in the heart about 2:15 a. m. Tuesday at the Star Grill, 1104 8th st. se., by Marine Pfc. Clyde S. Jordan, 23, of Camp Lejeune, N. C., who then killed himself. Mrs. Jaskowiak lived at 428 8th st. se.

The commandant, Potomac River Naval Command, has ordered an autopsy on the Marine's body and investigation into the tragedy. Services for Jordan will be held up pending completion of the autopsy at Naval Medical Center, Bethesda.

Burial arrangements for Mrs. Jaskowiak were made by Sergeant Jaskowiak. The couple married in March, 1942, in Texas, later were divorced, then remarried, and separated last June, according to police.

Jordan, a native of Harriman, Tenn., was a veteran of the Iwo Jima campaign.

King Solomon Lodge Observes Ladies' Day

Ladies' day was observed yesterday afternoon in a special program staged in Masonic Temple, 801 13th st. nw., by King Solomon Lodge, No. 31, F. A. A. M.

The program for the women followed the regular communication of the lodge and was staged under direction of Past Masters Charles Jeter and I. Robert Stickney.

Barney Breeskin and Robert Simpson were other orchestra directors who entertained. The balance of the program included two technicolor movies and refreshments.

If Stomach Gas or Sour Food Taste Robs You of Sleep

Here's How You May Help, Whether You Eat 500 Pounds or 2000 Pounds of Food In a Year

You can't feel cheerful, be happy and sleep well, if your stomach is always upset. As age advances the "old stomach" needs more help. The reason is this:

Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that 888 Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the 888 Tonic formula which contains very special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, 888 Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is 888 Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people 888 Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of 888 Tonic from your drug store today. 888 Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Once-Famed Stage Beauty Dies Unknown

Hollywood, Oct. 6 (AP).—The story of Gladys Lanphere Benjamin, 55, once a leading beauty of Broadway and Hollywood, neared its end tonight on a morgue slab where her body awaited the arrival of relatives to claim it.

Mrs. Benjamin

The onetime singer of stage and revival missions and leading lady in the movies died Sunday night in a bottle-littered hotel room where she had registered with a man under an assumed name.

For two days her identity was unknown. The only clue was the name "Gladys Benjamin" embroidered on her undergarments.

After long checking, police were able to identify the dead woman through friends as the former wife of New York broker Park Benjamin, brother-in-law of the late singer, Enrico Caruso.

Born in Wichita, Kans., the singer began her career in a Chicago choir and went to New York in 1921 to study voice. There she sang with Evangelist Billy Sunday's revivals before meeting Benjamin.

The broker was married and had no children but he became so captivated that he divorced his wife and married the choir singer.

But the romance ended in a Reno divorce in 1940 and Benjamin returned to his former wife who had married again and then was widowed with a fortune estimated at millions.

Following the divorce, Gladys Benjamin went downhill. She had a half dozen arrests to her record on drunk charges. She fell victim to concer and underwent a major operation in a charity ward.

Independents' Sales Rise 8% Here in Month

By S. Oliver Goodman

August sales of Washington independent stores showed an overall increase of 8 per cent as compared with the same 1947 month, the Commerce Department reported yesterday.

For the first eight months this year, sales of local nonchain stores held 6 per cent above the like period last year.

Biggest decreases were recorded for men's apparel, liquor retailers and jewelry stores.

Individual groups displayed the following percentage changes for August and the first eight months as compared with like 1947 periods:

	August	Eight months

WHO'S WHO TODAY: John H. W. Roper, supervisor of customer accounts of the Washington Gas Light Co., yesterday was elected vice chairman of the accounting section of the American Gas Association . . . J. E. McCombs, Washington general agent of Berkshire Life Insurance Co., was honored by his colleagues on his fifteenth anniversary as agency head. At the same time, it was announced that Lester C. Burdette in McCombs agency led the company in September sales.

OVERSUBSCRIBED: Investment dealers were cheered by the announcement that an offering of $75,000,000 Pacific Gas & Electric Co. 3⅛ per cent bonds, due 1982, had been oversubscribed. The issue was priced at 100.517 to yield 3.10 per cent to maturity. The bonds were quoted at a premium soon after the underwriters disclosed the oversubscription.

UNFINISHED JOB: Life insurance salesmen have yet to convince most people that they need to provide their survivors with more than just enough money to bury them, a Philadelphia insurance man said. The insurance selling job done so far is only "modest," said Clifford H. Orr, general agent in Philadelphia for the National Life Insurance Co. of Vermont. He addressed the American Life Convention, a meeting of 1000 executives of 222 American and Canadian insurance companies in Chicago. "It appears we have never been able to insure much more than one year's income of the American family," he said. "The job of raising the sights of the great bulk of the people above the burial fund concept still remains to be accomplished."

FEWER STRIKES: After a record high of 4985 in 1946, the number of strikes in the United States declined to 3600 in 1947, and a further decrease has occurred this year, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute. During the first six months, the number of strikes declined to 1460 this year from 2307 in the corresponding period last year.

BULLS AND BEARS: Hemphill, Noyes & Co. in current market letter said: "The failure of typical war stocks . . . to record a pronounced resistance to decline, together with the better than average performance of public utility stocks (traditionally 'defensive' issues) have been cited as evidence that the market is discounting the probability of severe deflationary shocks to our economy" . . . Sherman, Gleason & Co. Inc. said: "The market decline of the last three months has done nothing to change the fundamentals which eventually will form the basis for the sharpest stock price advance yet seen in 1948."

COMMENT: P.E.H. Leroy, Goodyear Tire & Rubber vice president in charge of finance, made a statement in Akron that is widely seconded. Goodyear common, he said, is earning at the rate of $12 a share annually. Of this total, $4 is paid out in dividends and the balance goes back into the business. He placed the value back of Goodyear common at $95 a share compared with the stock market value of less than half this amount, a situation not only true of Goodyear, "but in most blue chip securities on the stock exchange." The stock market is so depressed and the investing public's confidence so weakened as the result over the last 15 years of moving away from private enterprise, he said, "that we have this ridiculous relationship of actual to market v[illegible]

Clouds Noted In Long-Term Trade Outlook

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States said yesterday the immediate economic outlook is "very strong" but it warned that "more soft spots are beginning to appear."

"We now face the difficult task of steering a middle course in our policies so as to check inflation without precipitating contraction," the chamber said in a report prepared by Dr. Emerson P. Schmidt, its director of economic research.

The report stressed the importance of maintaining a high rate of new capital investment as the surest antidote to depression. It urged investors to divert funds into housing and service establishments when the boom in industrial plant expansion begins to taper off.

'Soft Spots' Listed

Among the "soft spots" the report listed declining grain prices, shorter work weeks in some coal mines and textile mills and indications of slackening demand for nondurable goods.

"Clearly some of the soft goods lines are in for some trouble or readjustment," it said.

"This ought to be reflected in more favorable consumer prices, providing we can avoid a fourth round of wage increases that would simply pay out more purchasing power, which would tend to raise prices."

The report said the installment buying controls and bank lending restrictions authorized by the summer session of Congress are beginning to put the brakes on credit expansion.

Signs of Tighter Money

"These steps constitute the beginnings of what may be an era of tighter money," it went on. "In the past, very few booms have come to an end except through a growing scarcity of money."

It was at this point that the report issued the warning about "steering a middle course" and said government had the "greatest responsibility in steering this course."

"The immediate outlook for ceiling or capacity production and employment is very strong," it said. "Nevertheless, in the last 60 days there has been something of a decline in optimism for a long-term future.

"Whether this pessimism is traceable to the clouded international outlook or to the stock market doldrums or to some other factor is hard to determine."

Lasker Research Award Goes To Veterans Administration

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—The Department of Medicine and Surgery of the Veterans' Administration is the 1948 winner of the Lasker award in the fields of scientific and medical research.

Dr. George Baehr, president of the New York Academy of Medicine and chairman of the awards committee, also announced today these individual Lasker awards:

For outstanding administrative achievements:

Dr. Martha M. Eliot, associate chief, United States Children's Bureau, Washington, D. C., "for organization and administration of the research grants division of the National Institutes of the United States Public Health Service."

Dr. R. E. Dyer, director, National Institute of Health, Bethesda, Md., "for organization and administration of the research grants division of the National Institutes of Health of the United States Public Health Service."

Dr. Baehr said the group award especially honored Dr. Paul R. Hawley, former VA chief medical director, and Dr. Paul B. Magnuson, present chief medical director, "in recognition of the efficient program developed by them to provide modern medical care for the millions of veterans who helped in the defense of America during World War II." Dr. Hawley was named chief executive officer of the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Health Service plans after leaving VA.

Gen. Hawley

Dr. Dyer

Dr. Eliot

Dr. Magnuson

The awards were given through the American Public Health Association by the Albert and Mary Lasker Foundation.

Individual winners receive $1000 each and a gold replica of the statue, the winged victory of Samothrace. A silver statuette goes to the group award winner.

Presentations will be made November 11 at the Public Health Association's annual banquet in Boston.

Cut Proposed In Maryland Income Tax

Baltimore, Oct. 6 (AP). — The Maryland Board of Revenue Estimates proposed today that a scheduled jump in the State tax on earned personal income be rescinded.

Under an act of the 1947 Legislature, the rate on 1948 income is to rise from its present 2 per cent to 2½ per cent.

The Legislature also voted to increase the rate on corporate income from 1.5 per cent to 4 per cent, which the board proposed be retained. The unearned income rate also would remain at 5 per cent.

The Revenue Estimates Board decided that the jump in the corporate income tax rate will be necessary and that it is not feasible to cut the unearned income rate.

It will take an act of the 1948 General Assembly to keep the earned personal income increase from becoming effective.

The board estimated that, by retaining the 2 per cent levy on earned income and jumping the corporate rate, the State will collect almost twenty-six million dollars from the three income tax sources next year.

This was based on a 10 per cent increase over the 1947 taxable basis.

The newly revised over-all estimate for State revenues for 1949 placed total receipts from taxes $116,352,500 and from all other sources at $24,831,370, or a grand total of $141,183,870.

Sales tax receipts included in the total were estimated at $27,500,000.

Walter E. Kennedy, director of the retail sales tax division, said the revised income tax estimates were based on Government reports showing that during the first quarter of this year 11.6 per cent more wages were paid than in the corresponding quarter of 1947, and the second quarter payroll increased by 9.6 per cent.

Berlin Plans Drastic Wood-Cutting Program

Berlin, Oct. 6 (NYHT.). — A drastic wood cutting program will be started immediately in blockaded Berlin, Western occupation officials announced today. The wood choppers will fell trees not only in the forests in the city, but also in parks, along tree-lined avenues and even in some private gardens.

The decision for this action, which was necessitated by the blockade of traffic from the west and also the lack of access to normal wood supplies from the Soviet zone, was arrived at only after detailed consultation with forestry experts, Western officials said in a formal statement.

Discoverer of Treasure Says It's Not $100,000

Gads Hill, Mo., Oct. 6 (U.P.).—Harry W. Wilcox, 30-year-old Ozark timber worker, said tonight he found "nothing like $100,000" in a cave believed to have been a hideout of the Jesse James gang.

Wilcox told Missouri highway patrolmen he found some molded currency, a hatful of coins and a muzzleloading Army rifle, model 1863. He didn't say what kind of coins he found. Earlier, a banker said he had seen at least $10,000 in gold coins which Wilcox was reported to have found in the cave.

Dr. C. L. Hall, Orthopedist, Is Honored

Dr. Custis Lee Hall, Washington orthopedist, yesterday was named president of the Ambulatory Fracture Association, at a meeting of its board of governors at the Mayflower Hotel.

Dr. Hall

Announcement of Dr. Hall's appointment was made at the association's banquet last night at the Mayflower. The new president, who lives at 3920 Harrison st. nw., is orthopedic consultant at St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Dr. A. H. Diehr, a retiring member of the board, said that other appointments included:

Dr. R. A. Vargus, of San Bernandino, Calif., first vice president; Dr. Frank Weber, of Olney, Ill., second vice president; Dr. Herman W. Wellmerling of Bloomington, Ill., secretary-treasurer, and William S. Watson, business manager.

Dr. Wayne Brewster, of Holdredge, Nebr., and Dr. Irving Scott, of Sullivan, Ind., were elected to the association's board of governors. Dr. Herman W. Wellmerling and Dr. E. G. Housman, of Aurora, Ill., were reelected to the board.

Dr. Diehr said the group will meet next year in Toronto, Canada.

Sullivan Declines State House Race

Concord, N. Hamp., Oct. 6 (AP).—Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan won't be running for a seat in the New Hampshire House of Representatives after all.

He was nominated in last month's primary by one "write-in" ballot for the Democratic nomination from his home ward in Manchester.

2700 Connecticut Ave. Asks Rent Increases

A request for rent increases on 70 apartments at 2700 Connecticut ave. nw. was filed with the District Rent Control Administration yesterday.

2 New Cases Of Polio Here

Two new polio cases were reported in Greater Washington yesterday, raising the area total to 195, compared to 46 for this date last year.

The new cases were a 5-year-old boy from the 5500 block of North 10th st., Arlington, at Children's Hospital, and a 26-year-old woman from the 1500 block of T st. nw. at Georgetown Hospital. A 7-year-old boy from Purcellville, Va., also was admitted at Children's.

A 'Fast Unto Death'

Chicago, Oct. 6 (U.P.).—A retired musician said today he had begun a fast "unto death" in his hotel room to save the world. John A. Bender, 60, said he had some tea and toast Sunday, and since then has had no food.

Lutherans Reelect Dr. Fry

Philadelphia, Oct. 6 (AP).—The United Lutheran Church in America today elected for a third two-year term as president the Rev. Dr. Franklin Clark Fry of New York.

At the opening of the biennial convention in Philadelphia, where the church was organized 200 years ago, the more than 500 delegates gave fry 487 votes to re-elect him on the second ballot.

Also re-elected were the Rev. Dr. F. Eppling Reinartz of New Rochelle, N. Y., secretary, and Dr. Henry Beisler of Belleville, N. J., as treasurer.

The delegates, representing 1,880,628 members in 4070 congregations in the United States, Canada and four United States territories, also voted to receive as associate synods the United Evangelical Lutheran Church of Argentina and the United Evangelical Lutheran Church of Liberia.

The treasurer reported the per capita church-giving of the Lutherans has increased 300 per cent since 1939.

Beisler said the average yearly donations per member in 1939 was $2.21 while the 1947 average was $6.65 per person.

In his report to the delegates President Fry declared the church has made "noteworthy progress" in the last few years and listed these examples:

"Membership total has increased steadily.

"The 10-year downward slide of Sunday school enrollment has been arrested and encouragingly reversed.

One on the Aisle—

'Peggy' Pleasant Despite Treacle

By Richard L. Coe

"APARTMENT FOR PEGGY," at the Palace, is a pleasant little picture about married life under the GI bill. There's too much glucose in it for complete satisfaction, but some folks seem to like glucose.

(Favorite Reader probably will want to know what glucose is; it's a form of sugar occurring in fruits and honey.)

The story concerns a veteran studying at Cornell under the GI bill; his pert, resourceful wife who's making things do admirably with their 90 bucks a month, and a retired philosophy professor who gives up his plan to commit suicide when he finds he's of some use to the struggling married couple.

It's pretensions toward simplicity are somewhat hampered by the original premise of Faith Baldwin, a lady fictioneer whose industrious turnouts through the years have developed an understandable tendency to think of people in terms of cliches.

To Miss Baldwin, who wrote the original from which Director George Seaton wrote his screen play, college professors tend to ossify as they age. Now this may be perfectly true (in college professors who are personally unknown to me), but it has become trite to say so. Miss Baldwin's philosopher with the suicidal bent she has drawn from rock, and it is only by Edmund Gwenn's resourceful hoke that he comes into credible life.

The professor, when you first see him, is presumably happily sawing away in a small orchestra of the elder faculty. Secretly, he's planning to complete his book and snuff himself out, thereby making room in the world for more people. This, at least, is the reason given for his D-Day.

Faith Baldwin Connives

However, on meeting Jeanne Crain, who is up to her ears in housing problems, Miss Baldwin has him forget his lofty reason and just concentrate on his death urge, which is pretty handy for the plot, though it makes no sense, the logical step would be for him to hasten his passing and make way for the baby Miss Crain and William Holden are expecting.

Logic, to be sure, has no place here. It was Oscar Wilde who had Miss Prism remark: "The good end happily, the bad unhappily. That is what fiction means."

So it is with Miss Baldwin's people, except that the only villian is the urge to make quick money at selling used cars. This tempts Holden from his scholarly ambitions for a spell, but not even the birth of a dead baby keeps Jeanne and Bill from going on to their happy ending.

So much for the story. Its handling strives toward the required simplicity; strives, I say, because simplicity, particularly simplicity in Technicolor, is habitually viewed as daring foolhardiness among our movie makers and one is constantly conscious of the effort simplicity extracts.

Jeanne Crain as Peggy

Miss Crain is particularly charming and likable, much as she was in "Margie." One of her best scenes, a trio at tea in the professor's attic, is quite marred by the director permitting her to roam about the room. But her lushly wholesome quality is neatly exploited and you'll like her.

Holden, who's so effective a few blocks away in "Rachel and the Stranger," has less to do and some of it unlikely, but he's a capable leading man to have back on the screen.

The veteran Gwenn plays the widowed philosopher with his knowing aplomb, getting some moments of real feeling into a hospital scene where he confesses how the young couple saved him from death. If professors were as Miss Baldwin has conveniently dreamed this one, it would be a wing-ding part. As it is, it's workmanlike.

Still, for sticking closer than usual to the facts of life and for coming up with an air of general pleasantness, "Apartment for Peggy" is no cause for critical catcalls.

"APARTMENT FOR PEGGY." Twentieth Century-Fox release produced by William Perlberg. Directed and written by George Seaton from a story by Faith Baldwin. Photographed by Harry Jackson. Music by David Raksin. At the Palace.

manual of arms with other phases of military training.

The schools may include the cadet training period within the school day rather than after school hours as an experiment.

Opportunity for cadets to drill more than the two 90-minute periods a week presently prescribed by regulations.

A guidance program to acquaint boys with the benefits of cadet training and a program to give public recognition to cadets to improve the morale of the corps.

Corning gave the board five reasons for the declining interest in cadets:

An extension of the physical education program six years ago encouraged more boys to go out for athletics to the detriment of cadets, Corning said.

Another factor, he said, is the cost of the uniform which has been rising every year. Under the plan approved yesterday the cost will be cut from $35.50 to $23 for a private's uniform and from $38.50 to $30.65 for an officer's uniform.

The jackets and trousers of the private's uniform and the jacket of the officer's uniform will be reconditioned and redyed Army surplus. Caps, officer trousers and other parts of the uniform will be of new materials.

Cadets in the Negro high schools have used the reconditioned outfits for several years and found them satisfactory, Corning reported.

The draft is a third factor that keeps boys out of cadets, the school head said. "Boys, faced with probable military service, have stated flatly that since they were going to have such service without choice, they would wait for it and not take it in advance voluntarily," Corning said.

"One of the most disturbing incidents in the history of the Cadet Corps was the withdrawal of Army instructors which was forced by the Economy Act of 1932," he said. "Restoration of such instructors would have a very beneficial effect."

The resulting program was less attractive, he said. Selection of honor guard companies was ended, as were the sham battles that concluded the annual competitive drill and the White House reception for commanding officers of school units. Close order and extended drills were simplified and shortened.

Col. L. S. Mann of the Military Order of the World Wars, one of two speakers to appear at the meeting, said that General Gay is studying the possibility of assigning reserve officers on inactive status to the high schools.

Both Colonel Mann, and Lieut. Col. Richard Riddell of the Reserve Officers Association, criticized the present method by which boys are excused from the cadet corps.

A three-man committee, appointed at last night's meeting of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants of the District, will meet with Dr. Corning Monday at 1 p. m. to discuss the declining enlistments in the corps.

Appointed by a voice vote of the 31 members present at the meeting in the Old Union Firehouse, 19th and H sts. nw., were A. J. Driscoll, Herbert Leeman and Fred A. Emery. Emery said the committee also will see District Commissioners and District military officials to inquire whether the Army Department can supply cadet uniforms free of cost to the students.

New Propeller-Jet Bomber Motor Revealed by U. S.

The Air Force announced yesterday a new combination propeller-and-jet engine which it said will enable bombers to fly farther, faster and higher.

The new engine is a development of the Pratt and Whitney R-4360 Wasp major, a 28-cylinder power plant used in the giant B-36, the B-50 and some other large aircraft. The engine will be used in the Boeing B-54, a modification of the B-50.

Power delivered to the propeller shaft in the new engine will be increased from 3500 to more than 4000 horsepower. In addition, "several hundred pounds of jet thrust" will be added by using a variable discharge nozzle.

Officially designated the R-4360-VDT, the new engine increases efficiency and adds power by putting exhaust gases to work.

Roughly, it does this: the exhaust is used to operate a turbine compressor which forces air into the piston engine. That eliminates a gear-driven compressor or impeller which used at least 500 horsepower and makes that power available to the propellor shaft.

The gases which pass the turbine wheel are then directed through an exhaust nozzle with a variable opening, so that speed of the exhaust can be changed to give it the most efficiency. The action is like that of an ordinary jet engine, but is improved through use of the variable nozzle. Such nozzles are being developed also for pure jet engines.

The Air Force described the new engine as "an outstanding power plant development." It added:

"Airplanes can take off with heavier loads of cargo, fuel or bombs, and they can climb faster. Bombers powered with the VDT can go into and away from target areas at high speeds and at altitudes of nearly 8 miles."

(World War II bombing altitudes generally were 5 miles or less, although some missions were run at higher levels).

Professional Photographer Finds Gov. Dewey Is Not the Ideal Subject

By Ollie Atkins

MUCH as been said in professional photographers' circles about what a tough man Gov. Thomas E. Dewey is as far as photographers are concerned. Having just returned from a trip with Dewey and his party and having been in Albany, N. Y., and made private sittings in the GOP nominee's office, I feel qualified to report on the kind of man he is with photographers.

Photographically, Candidate Dewey is a problem. A photographer cannot feel at ease with him. He does not make good close-up smiling pictures. He does not do the spontaneous thing — actions which might in themselves produce casual pictures.

President Coolidge sported Indian headgear to please the lensmen, F. D. R. ate hot dogs for the cameras, President Truman is a wonderful sport in front of the lenses and has even chucked snowballs on the White House grounds for the film boys. Not so with Governor Dewey—he maintains a reserve which produces an aloofness evident in his pictures.

There is no question but that great dignity is required of the President's office. But I notice that the warmth and human qualities which mark a man such as Bernard Baruch do not appear photographically in Governor Dewey. I cannot imagine the GOP nominee feeding squirrels in the park—or even in the park, for that matter.

Dewey is a man of trained methodical thinking. The spontaneous actions which are the heart and soul of great candid pictures are hardly compatible with his nature. A certain of planning goes into most pictures but some things just happen and this is where Governor Dewey checks out.

Some have criticized Governor Dewey for not trying on the many hats constantly being presented to him. I can readily understand why as a candidate he refuses to risk having an over-size cowboy model sink down over his ears. Furthermore, that mustache of his calls strictly for the Homburg style of hat.

The Dewey team, the group of advisers and experts around him, are just his opposite as far as cameras are concerned. They cooperate beautifully with the photographers and many excellent pictures result. Handling press relations for Dewey are Jim Haggerty, formerly of the New York Times, and Herb Campbell, who works with the photographers. Both of these men are extremely competent and the fact that Dewey is hard to approach is softened by the good will and excellent cooperation Haggerty and Campbell give the lensmen.

This is a black-and-white reproduction of one of 68 beautiful natural color pictures by Charles Eliot Perkins, 1645 Hobart st. nw., which are on display until October 31 in the Arts and Industries Building of the Smithsonian Institution

SLATED FOR the October 13 session of the National Photographic Society meeting in the National Museum is a lecture demonstation on new amateur photographic equipment by Marshall Aiken of Fuller & d'Albert. Aiken, who has been in the photo materials business for 18 years, will also describe in "non-technical" terms the purposes and qualities of many of the photographic printing papers now available.

The semiprofessional group named the Allied Photographers Association of 734 Park rd. nw., announces a contest to select "Miss Lens Queen of 1948." Selections will be made from pictures and the winning girl will become "Miss Capital Classic," reigning at the grid contest, and get other prizes.

Amateur photographers are invited to enter Sears Roebuck's local-national snapshot contest with more than $10,000 in prize money in the offing. Send your prints to either the Sears Wisconsin ave. or Sears Bladensburg rd. stores from now through November 12. Weekly awards are also being given.

Rules of the contest permit an unlimited number of black and white pictures in any size up to 8 by 10 inches. Pictures may be of any subject. Judges will select the best four photos from each weekly contest and at each store giving Washington a total of eight prints in the big-money national competition. Judges are: Hugh Miller of The Washington Post; John F. Allen, National School of Photography, and Joe Tenschert, commercial photographer.

H. R. Harmon of Ansco will give a demonstration-lecture on "The Simplicity of Color" photography at the October 11 session of the Old Dominion Camera Club at 8 p. m. in the Buckingham Community Building, 313 N. Glebe rd., Arlington. Visitors are welcome.

If you have a friend getting married soon you might like to know that a new wedding photo album is now made which plays the wedding march when the cover is lifted. No, we do not have the price on this item, but we assure you it cannot be cheap.

A lot is being currently written about the $700 Foton 35 mm camera and all its features. To this I have only the comment that this automatic fool-proof machine will destroy one of the photographers' most prized possessions—the excuse for a picture failure.

Lubar's, 1300 G st. nw., announces the opening of a camera corner devoted to handling all types of photographic equipment. The camera corner is under the management of Sam Solomon, well known among Washington camera addicts. Amateurs are requested to submit prize prints to Solomon for display in the store windows.

46% of Permits Issued in 1 Day

The District's Central Permits Bureau, in its first month of existence, managed to issue 46 per cent of the permits requested within 24 hours, it was reported yesterday.

The bureau, which was established to simplify the District's permit-granting procedures, issued 615 permits for 682 buildings valued at $2,920,771 during September, in addition to many other types of permits. It officially opened September 1 under B. H. Benson, superintendent, and D. W. Warnock, assistant.

The principal cause of the slower procedure in the 54 per cent of the permits issued was the necessity for preliminary inspections and checking of plans. In recent weeks, the Department of Inspections staff has been working overtime on Saturdays to speed the plan checking.

The principal type of held-over permit application has been in new construction, where the average tie-up has been 51 days. The remaining types in the delayed category were issued within 10 days.

Pupils Check On Parents' Auto Driving

If you see Arlington school kids lining the streets these days, jotting gleefully in little black books, don't run for the psychiatrist.

They're keeping tabs on their parents — noting whenever the elders zip through a school zone at 25 miles an hour or violate any other traffic safety rules.

It's all part of a new safety program cooked up by Arlington's traffic safety officer, Sergt. Frank Palmer. And frankly, says Palmer, if the youngsters get enough black marks on their elders, "they ought to get the Christmas presents they want next December."

The program began in Arlington's Fairlington Elementary School this week when fourth, fifth and sixth graders wrote letters home warning their parents "the contest starts now and ends Christmas."

The same technique will be followed in all other county elementary schools. The contest is reciprocal, too—when parents catch their children violating pedestrian safety laws, they, too, can ask for "a nice Christmas present."

Two of the Fairlington School youngsters who this week put their parents on warning were 11-year-old Nancy Miller of 4100 S. 33d st., and Joseph Thompson, 10, of 2745 S. Buchanan st.

Joe told his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ross V. Thompson, that a request for a camera would be "a bit unreasonable," so he modified it to a gift of picture postcards, which can be traded with other collectors. Nancy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Archie E. Miller, will get her a tennis "raquet" if she wins.

In their letters, the children urged parents to slow to 15 miles an hour in school zones and offered other advice to reduce pedestrian hazards.

100-Ton Rock Wrecks Train

Pittsburgh, Oct. 6 (AP).—A huge boulder knocked a fast Pennsylvania Railroad train off the tracks at suburban Bellevue today, killing two crewmen and injuring 12 passengers and trainmen.

Dead were engineer J. G. Lightburn and fireman R. G. Rombke, both of Crestline, Ohio. They were the crew of the second of two locomotives hauling the Fort Pitt Express out of Pittsburgh bound for Chicago.

"I never saw anything like it," said Ed Snyder, an ambulance driver for 20 years. "A boulder twice as big as my ambulance came tumbling down the hillside and into the train."

H. D. Kruegle, railroad official, estimated the weight of the rock at "about 100 tons."

E. W. Shenk, 54, of Beaver, engineer on the first locomotive, said:

"We had no chance to avoid crashing that rock. We had just rounded a curve and there was that huge boulder on the track."

The boulder jack-knifed five of the nine cars and derailed both locomotives. The engines were criss-crossed across the tracks, which were torn up for 200 feet. Both engines overturned. The last four coaches stayed on the rails.

Freed of Disorderly Charge, Man Plans Brutality Complaint Against Two Policemen

A man acquitted yesterday on a disorderly conduct charge said he will file a formal complaint of brutality today against the two policemen who arrested him.

Fred S. Haskell, 50, a carpenter, 2544 14th st. nw., said Thirteenth Precinct Pvts. R. C. Longnecker and R. H. Callow beat him so severely five stitches were taken in his scalp at Emergency Hospital. Haskell was charged with using loud and boisterous language in his apartment. The policemen said they heard it from the hall outside.

Haskell's lawyer, Harry J. Ahern, contended that since the noise was not made in a public place his client was innocent. Judge Nadine L. Gallagher agreed. Ahern said he would file formal charges of brutality against the policemen at police headquarters today.

Navy Chief Petty Officer Archibald I. Koester, Falls Church, who said 15 stitches were taken in his head for wounds caused by policemen's clubs, went on trial yesterday on charges of drunk and disorderly conduct. Seventh Precinct Pvt. Frederick Gibsom said he used his club "two or three times" in arresting Koester at 1081 Wisconsin ave. nw. "in self-defense and to maintain the arrest." The case continues at 1:45 p. m. today. Koester faces later trial on two counts of assault on an officer.

Lemon Goes Against Spahn Today

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

BOSTON, Oct. 6—There's a muttering in Boston tonight wherever American Leaguers are gathered, and the name of Lou Boudreau is oft heard. He botched it for the Cleveland Indians in their 1-0 defeat by the Braves. At least that's the tenor of the biggest second guess in recent World Series history.

POVICH

The man who took the Indians to a pennant tie with his wizard handling of his pitchers and then won the play-off game personally with his hitting against the Red Sox is now being charged with stubbing his managerial mind. And it looks mighty like he did, in that winning eighth inning of the Braves this afternoon.

It was time for decision by Boudreau in that eighth. The Braves had a man on second with one out, in a 0-0 ball game, and Bob Feller now was facing Eddie Stanky, the eighth-place hitter. Boudreau cupped his glove toward Feller, commanded him to walk Stanky. The showdown would be with pitcher Johnny Sain, the next batter, and Tommy Holmes, the Braves' lead-off man. That's what Boudreau was inviting.

HE WAS making one of two choices—to pitch to Stanky and Sain, or to pitch to Sain and Holmes. There were some gasps when Boudreau chose the latter strategy. He had Feller going for him against Stanky, a right-handed hitter who in two previous times at bat had popped out feebly and grounded out with the same lack of vigor. The left-handed hitting Holmes, in contrast, had pasted three balls on the nose against Feller despite getting no hits.

Boudreau was influenced, perhaps by the hope that Sain might bang into a double play and thus solve all his troubles in one strike. But when that din't happen, and Sain flied to Judnich, the Indians were down to the nub, against the dangerous Holmes. They had invited what happened—the winning hit.

I HAVE IT straight from Chet Smith, the Pittsburgh chronicler, that eight National League managers stood up and cheered when Boudreau chose to play it that way. "That's going a long way to set up a double play," said Smith, "putting Stanky on and then taking a chance on pitching to Holmes. Maybe Boudreau doesn't believe the newspapers, that have been saying all year that Holmes is a .325 hitter."

At that, Boudreau almost got out of the mess he helped to create in that eighth inning. With runners on first and second and one out, he called for the Indians' fancy and somewhat copyrighted second base pick-off play—the one the Feller and Boudreau work better than any other pair in the business. Feller did whirl and rifle the ball to Boudreau at second, and it was close, but pinch-runner Phil Masi was safe, the umpire said.

The Indians have a special pride in their pick-off play. Feller is the champion of it. He maintains that any pitcher can do it, "if he has the guts to try it." The whole Cleveland staff is adept at the second-base pickoff, and it all but worked today.

At the game's finish, the Indians weren't happy at all. Boudreau and Feller looked as if they were arguing at least. Feller may not have liked the orders to pass Stanky. Certainly he didn't like the idea of losing a two-hit game after waiting 12 years to pitch in a World Series.

UNLESS YOU ARE a fan who can be fascinated by a pitching duel in which almost nothing happens except a lot of batting futility, you'd have to call this opening series game a dull affair for the first several innings. Going into the fifth, the Braves were hitless and the high mark of their batting success was posted when Earl Torgeson worked Feller for a 3-and-0 count before drawing a walk.

It got exciting, of course, in the final innings when the game could be won or lost on any pitched ball of either guy, but not until the seventh was there anything downright spectacular about the contest.

Then Robinson made a one-hand grab of Torgeson's smash and Feller got the put-out in a furious race to first against the Braves, plus a one-handed catch of Robinson's throw. It was the play that saved television.

Satchel Paige was in uniform for the Indians, after being shut out of their dressing room at his first try. Satchmo arrived at the park somewhat late and was refused admittance to the locker room by an attendant until Satch explained "I'se a ball player."

Pick-the-Winners Lineup This Week

THE WASHINGTON POST'S 1948 Pick-The-Winners football contest is under way. It will be held weekly through November 20. Better get off to a good start by entering today.

The first thing for you to bear in mind is that this is a contest of skill. Do not expect your luck to make you a winner. This contest is designed to reward those who know their teams and are students of football. Follow the accounts of the teams, study the scores week by week. Then make your choices of the winners.

The winner of each weekly contest will receive two (2) tickets to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia, November 27, and an all-expenses paid trip to the big game for two persons.

The person submitting the most accurate entry this week will also receive four (4) tickets to the Maryland-Duke game, October 16, at Griffith Stadium.

CONTEST RULES

All entries must be in the hands of the Football Contest Editor not later than 4 p. m. Friday of each week. Entries should be left at the Service Counter in the lobby of The Washington Post Bldg., 1337 E St. N. W.

The person submitting the most accurate entry each week shall be declared the winner. In case of ties, all persons sharing in the tie will receive duplicate awards.

The decisions of the judges shall be final.

Entries submitted must be legible with the selections listed in the order they are announced in The Washington Post.

Entries may be handwritten or typewritten. However, carbon copies and mimeographed copies or copies made by any other duplicating machine will NOT be accepted. You may submit as many entries as you wish.

No employe of The Washington Post or member of his immediate family is eligible to participate in this contest.

No person will be eligible to win the weekly contest twice.

Was Braves' Masi Out or Safe?

ON FATEFUL PLAY—The Associated Press sequence camera shows the eighth-inning play in which Phil Masi, Braves' catcher, was nearly picked off second base by Indians' Pitcher Bob Feller. Top, Masi digs in and heads back to second as Cleveland shortstop, Lou Boudreau, starts forward. Second from top, Masi slides into bag as Boudreau makes the tag. Third from top, Boudreau rises from action as Umpire Bill Stewart calls Masi safe. Bottom, Boudreau disputes Stewart's decision. On the next play, Masi scored the game's only run

Indians Made 3-5 Favorites In 2d Game

Boston, Oct. 6.—Warren Spahn, Boston's 15-game winning southpaw, tonight was named by Manager Billy Southworth to face Cleveland in the second game of the World Series here tomorrow.

Manager Lou Boudreau said the Indians would rely on Bob Lemon, who won 20 games for the Indians this year.

Following definite announcement of tomorrow's pitchers, James J. Carroll, St. Louis betting commissioner made the Indians a 3-to-5 favorite in the second game.

This means you would put up $5.00 to win $3.00. For the series, Carroll quoted Cleveland at 2 to 3 and 13 to 10 on Boston.

Neither choice was a surprise. Southworth on Sunday said it would be Johnny Sain and then Warren Spahn. Boudreau's nomination of Lemon was a command selection since Bob Feller worked the opener.

Both Well Rested

It was thought for a while that Boudreau would use Lemon in today's opener and then follow with Feller. But the Indian skipper decided against that, obviously with the thought of using Feller in three starts if necessary.

Both Lemon and Spahn are well rested. Spahn worked for the Braves Saturday, when they lost to the Giants. Lemon hasn't pitched since last Friday when Detroit batted him out in a three-run ninth-inning to deal him his fourteenth defeat of the year. Spahn lost 12 gamets while winning 15.

With Spahn and Lemon working tomorrow, the pitching lineup for the opener in Cleveland Friday will pit Gene Bearden, who pitched the Tribe to the pennant in the playoff with the Red Sox, against Bill Voiselle or Rookie Vern Bickford.

Southworth Lauds Pitching

Southworth described today's opener as "one of the best pitched games" in series history.

"Bob Feller was sensational and so was our Johnny Sain," Southworth said. "Just imagine Feller holding us to two hits and we needing only one of them to win."

"This is the first time I've seen Feller go nine innings," Southworth added. "What impressed me the most was the remarkable control he had over his curve.

"And Sain was equally steady. Every time Johnny Sain fell behind, he came up with his curve and put it just where it would do the most good."

The constantly cheerful Tommy Holmes, whose eighth-inning single enabled Pinch-runner Phil Masi to score the game's only run, was not adverse to being the club's spokesman.

Control Amazes Holmes

"We knew Feller was going to be very tough as soon as he started," Holmes said. "And with Johnny Sain matching him pitch for pitch, we knew it was going to be a 1-0 game. We concentrated on getting that run in every inning until we got it.

"I didn't think Feller was exceptionally fast today, but I really was amazed by his control," Holmes continued. "He whipped over his curve just before I hit a fast pitch that was high and outside with one-one count."

Little Eddie Stanky added to the Braves' happiness by reporting that his mended ankle did not hamper him at any time. "All I feel now is a very slight twinge," that infield sparkplug said.

Tribe Says Pictures Prove Masi Was Out

Boston, Oct. 6 (AP).—Bill Veeck, president of the Cleveland Indians, when shown the Associated Press picture sequence of the disputed play at second base in the eighth inning of the World Series opener, said tonight:

"They are very interesting pictures, but the game is over."

The sequence shows Manager Lou Boudreau of the Indians tagging Phil Masi of the Braves as he slid back into second after a fast peg from Pitcher Bob Feller.

Boudreau at the time argued with Umpire Bill Stewart's decision calling Masi safe. Masi went on to score the single run by which the Braves beat the Indians, 1-0.

Harridge Smiles

Will Harridge, president of the American League, when shown the pictures, only smiled and said:

"Officially he's safe."

Hank Greenberg, Cleveland vice president, said:

"These pictures certainly prove a point. There'll be a lot of controversy about them."

No baseball game ever has been reversed on the strength of photographs, and Indian officials made it plain no protest is either planned or possible under baseball rules.

"He was out," Manager Boudreau said flatly after the game. "I tagged him on the shoulder."

Feller Vehement

"It's a shame to ruin such a masterful pitching performance by one decision," Boudreau claimed evenly, adding, "But that's just my opinion. Stewart (Umpire Bill Stewart) had his. It isn't a complaint."

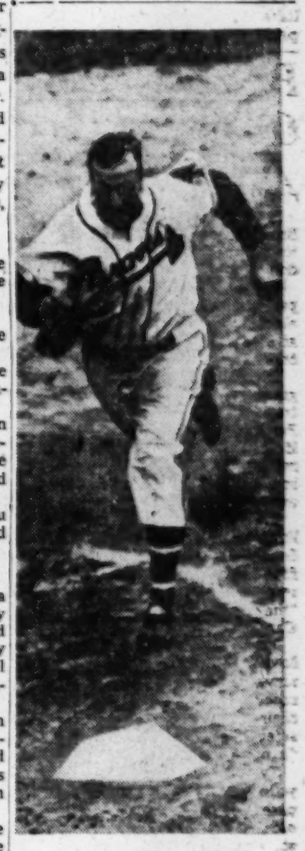
Feller, real victim, was even more terse in his comments. Immediately after the game, he said grimly, "Take a look at the pictures of it. We thought we had him on the trap."

Had Masi been called out, the inning would have been over. The next batter, Tommy Holmes, lined a single that scored Masi.

Indian club officials said that Boudreau and Feller have used the play successfully to trap runners off second at least a dozen times during the season.

The same officials said that Stewart, a veteran National League umpire who is considered one of the best, was possibly not accustomed to the Boudreau-Feller strategy.

Rarely has a World Series game centered so dramatically on a single decision.



BOSTON'S PHIL MASI
Scoring game's only run

Both Feller and his rival, Johnny Sain, were in magnificent form and had the eighth inning ended scoreless the brilliant pitching duel might well have gone into extra innings.

The pictures were taken by Associated Press Photographer John Lindsay using a sequence camera.

Braves Win on 2 Hits

noon between Feller and Sain. There was nothing to indicate that Feller was lacking in rest or anything else as he moved through the first four innings, disposing of the first 10 men he faced.

Not until Torgeson walked with two out in the fourth did the Braves get a man on base. Torgeson stole second, but Elliott flied futilely to left field.

The Indians produced the scoring threats of those early innings, thieving the National League's base-stealing thunder on two occasions. Keltner singled to left with one in the third, but Sain disposed of Judnich on a fly to Holmes and then watched Torgeson turn in a fancy play on Robinson's smash over first.

Elliott put Sain in a spot at the start of the third with a fumble of Hegan's grounder. Feller struck out, and Mitchell popped up to Elliott, but with two out Hegan stole second. Sain disposed of Doby on a ground ball to Dark.

The Braves suddenly threatened in their own fourth, without a hit. Feller walked Torgeson, who promptly stole second with two out, but Elliott was retired on a fly to Mitchell.

It was always apparent that the two clubs were playing for one run. Hegan singled into left with one out in the fifth and Feller sacrificed him to second. Sain got over that hump on Mitchell's fly ball to McCormick.

Doby sent alarm through the Braves' premises with a single into center that opened the Indians' sixth inning. Boudreau, disdaining a sacrifice, managered a ground ball to Stanky that served the same purpose. But Sain quickly took hold in that spot and got rid of Gordon and Keltner on fly balls to McCormick.

Feller was a fielding pitcher as well as a pitching pitcher today. In the Braves' seventh, he raced furiously to first base for a one-handed grab of Robinson's toss after the Indians' first baseman had smothered Torgeson's grounder. It was a close play with Feller getting the decision over Torgeson.

And on the next play, Feller made a one-handed stab of Elliott's smash into the box for another big putout.

Both the Indians and Braves were playing for the breaks—almost from the outset. But the Indians could precipitate nothing against the thoroughly-calm Sain who pitched four innings of hitless ball before the game's end, and got that big eighth-inning hit from Holmes, sweet Holmes.

World Series On Radio, Television

The World Series will be broadcast over the Mutual network starting today (WOL, 1260 on your dial in Washington) at 12:45 for weekday games and at 1:45 on Sunday if the series lasts until then.

WTTG (channel 5); WMAL—TV (channel 7), and WNBW (channel 4, televise the series at 12:45.

Sunny and Warmer

Boston, Oct. 6 (AP).—The sun will shine on the efforts of the Indians and the Braves to scalp one another at their second battle of the World Series in Boston tomorrow.

Or so the weatherman says.

Hard-Luck Feller Heartbroken

He Finally Hurls In Series But Loses

By Oscar Fraley

Boston, Oct. 6 (U.P.).—There were tears in the eyes and a catch in the voice of Bob Feller.

He stood in front of his locker, surrounded by the silent sympathy of his Cleveland Indian teammates, with the shattered fragments of a long-visioned dream scattered at his feet.

And the Iowa farm boy, who pitched one of the greatest games in World Series history only to lose, tried gamely to force a smile.

It was a pathetic sort of a grimace. He gritted his teeth and lifted his eyebrows to clear away the tears of a heart-breaking defeat.

For this had always been his ambition—to pitch a World Series triumph. And he had been going perfectly until burly Tommy Holmes broke up the ball game, and Feller's heart.

"It was only the second hit," Feller finally said. "I had to come in there so I did it with my fast ball. I had done it before and Holmes hit it back to me. This time he didn't."

Feller swallowed hard as he recalled the way that ball whistled through the infield and sent Phil Masi dashing home from second with the only run of the game.

"I don't feel too bad," Feller said, his eyes contradicting his words. "We didn't score because the wind was against our power, and you can't win without runs."

Feller's teammates undressed quietly and walked slowly to the showers. Manager Lou Boudreau, smiling through his disappointment, credited Boston's Johnny Sain with a "masterful" pitching performance for his four-hit triumph.

"We don't have a man in the American League who can come in there with a curve ball like Sain does when he is behind," Boudreau said. "He has a lot of confidence in it and deserves a lot of credit.

"But that boy," Boudreau pointed to Feller, "deserves just as much credit. He was magnificent and we feel pretty badly about not getting him any runs. I guess everybody knows now why I say he is the best pitcher in the game."

Feller, across the room, had regained his composure by now and he headed for the shower.

"I had my stuff and my arm felt fine," the big fellow said. "I've lost tough ones before and I've won my share, too. I had to come in with that fast ball because it has worked for me a lot of times before, you know."

Everybody in baseball knows that. But this was the time Bullet Bob wanted it most of all, to make his dreams come true, and the pitch which made him famous had let him down.

He'll get another chance come Sunday but it won't be the same. You felt that as his tears mingled with the pouring water in the secrecy of the showers.

Kirk Scores Easily With Straus Lass

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Laurel, Md., Oct. 6.—Nokomis, a fleet miss, sped to victory today in the $10,000 added Maryland Futurity, a Laurel fixture since the Labrot Stable's Springsteel won in 1931.

The daughter of Swing and Sway carrying the colors of H. L. Straus, president of the Maryland Breeders Association finished two and a half lengths in front of the Rarco Stable's Made It with Mrs. Janon Fisher jr's Roundelay third, an additional two lengths back.

Jockey Carson Kirk of Silver Spring, Md., was aboard Nokomis and took down his second stake in three tries here, having won the Richard Johnson Stakes last Saturday with Christiana Stable's Parliament.

A crowd of 10,000 installed the three-way Vanderbilt entry as the favorite and then watched the trio run out of the money circle on the muddy track. Nokomis, who qualified nicely last week by winning an overnight race, was clocked in 1:16, the slowest 6 furlongs of the Futurity in its history.

Bonsal Takes Bow

Nokomis was coupled in the betting with G. M. Cohan's Eddie Leonard as the Trainer F. A. Bonsal entry and returned a winning mutuel of $8.

Nokomis, duplicated the feat of her half brother, Quarter Moon, who rushed to victory in the 1943 Renewal. Made It was claimed for a mere $7500 when he made his racing debut at Atlantic City.

Made It set the early pace, gave up the lead to Nokomis midway of the stretch and then lasted to save the place money about two lengths in front of Mrs. J. Fisher, jr.'s Roundelay.

There was quite a commotion in the winner's circle after the Futurity running. Straus, president of the Maryland Horse Breeders Association, had been scheduled to present a trophy to the winning owner, but could not very well give the piece of plate to himself. Finally, John Pons, jr., first vice president of the breeders' organization was selected to make the presentation to Straus.

Straus is the owner of the Cherry Hill Farm near Reisterstown, Md., and Nokomis is the result of a mating of the fine broodmare Lady in the Moon to Swing and Sway. In addition to today's winner and Quarter Moon, Lady in the Moon produced the stakes winner New Moon.

Breeders See Movie

The Maryland thoroughbred breeders were out in full force to see the local youngster in action. Directors of the association remained in the Laurel clubhouse after the races to witness the premiere showing of the moving picture, "The Maryland Horse."

Made It, who was bred by Henry S. Horkheimer, broke so fast in the Futurity that he was about two lengths in front of the field after the first quarter mile. Meanwhile, Carson Kirk rated Nokomis along in the second position and then drove after the early leader from the head of the stretch. Nokomis earned a winner's share of $7,945.

The Ambassador Purse, seventh race and secondary feature, provided one of the most thrilling three-horse finishes of the meeting when Brookfield Farm's Icky gained a head decision over Mrs. Helene K. Haggerty's Curvaceous and Treptow Stable's Friar Tuck was a close third.

Double Pays $97.80

Mike Basile atop Curvaceous claimed a foul against Bobby Strange on Icky, but the stewards didn't take action and the payoff on Icky was $12.60 for $2. Icky was driven forward along the rail in the late stages and went the mile and a sixteenth in 1:49 2/5.

The lucky numbers in the daily double wagering were 4 and 2 and holders of $2 tickets on this combination collected $97.80. The first winner was Alfred Vanderbilt's Minx while J. Schwebel's Vim brought up the second half of the winning combination.

MINX, $21.20, $8.60, $6.40; WISECRACKER $6.00, $4.80; STARRY BANNER, $6.60.

MINX saved ground on the inside while setting pace and came on again when displaced. WISECRACKER forced pace, was in close quarters in stretch, closed fast when clear. STARRY BANNER, outrun early, improved position gradually on inside to attain lead and weakened. SHE DARES loomed a factor at head of stretch and tired. LIGHT NED could not reach contention. TILLEUL was outrun.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $2500. For 4-year-olds and up; claiming. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:01. Off at 2:02. Winner, J. Schwebel's br. g. (7) by High Strung—Chicotta by Chicle. Trained by Schwebel. Value to winner, $1625. Time, 1:17⅕.

VIM, $8.00, $4.20, $3.00; QUICK NEWS, $5.00, $3.40; LAST STRIDE, $6.40.

VIM, a strong contender early, fell back rounding turn, then came on strongly from head of stretch. QUICK NEWS moved to the lead rounding turn, tired in late stretch. LAST STRIDE, never far back, was sent to outside entering stretch, held on well. COUNTRY DUDE forced pace and tired. DUNDALK MATH could not better position.

DAILY DOUBLE—MINX AND VIM—PAID $97.80 FOR $2

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $3000. For 2-year-olds; claiming. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 2:30. Off at 2:30½. Winner H. G. Bedwell's b. f. (2) by Bahram—Superficial by Supremus. Trained by H. G. Bedwell. Value to winner, $1950. Time, 1:15⅗.

OLECRANON, away fast, disposed of SNOWFLARES after half mile, opened good lead rounding turn, then was driven hard to last. TINK was sent to contention coming to quarter pole, drifted wide into stretch, closed gamely, just failed to get up. GRABRO, outrun in early stages, closed with belated rush. SNOWFLARES stopped. O'GIVE rallied middly. BROTHER HENRY was fractious in gate and injured. He was withdrawn and all wagers were refunded.

NOKOMIS, $8.00, $5.00, $4.40; MADE IT, $6.40, $6.20; ROUNDELAY, $9.20.

NOKOMIS, away alertly, forced pace, went to lead in stretch, drew out gradually. MADE IT opened good lead early, tired in late stretch. ROUNDELAY broke very fast, dropped back, then closed ground steadily. HOMING PIGEON, outrun early part, closed with good energy. DISCONSOLATE was never prominent. BRINDISI weakened.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and one-sixteenth. Purse, $3500. The Ambassador. For 3-year-olds; claiming. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:31. Off at 4:32. ICKY, $12.80, $6.00, $4.40; CURVACEOUS, $4.60, $3.40; FRIAR TUCK, $6.40.

ICKY, away well and in hand while racing close to front, saved ground turning for home and outgamed CURVACEOUS. CURVACEOUS, well up throughout, responded willingly to hard urging and was slowly catching winner. Jockey Mike Mastle lodged a claim of foul against winner, but it was not allowed. FRIAR TUCK set good early pace and tired when real racing began. LEAMOUR closed full of run. HAPPY VICTOR had no mishap. PANGO PANGO was bumped coming out of starting gate.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile and a furlong. Purse, $2500. For 4-year-olds and up; claiming. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 5:04. Off at 5:04½. Winner, Mrs. Claude Feltner's b. g. (9) by Granville—Duration by Hourless. Trained by Claude Feltner. Value to winner, $1625. Time, 1:58⅘.

Dodgers Reported Dickering With Harris to Pilot Brooklyn

VPI Figures To Trouble Terrapins

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

IF Saturday's battle follows the script of their last six games, the Griffith Stadium battle between Maryland's unbeaten, untied, unscored-on and undaunted Terrapins and Virginia Tech's Gobblers should be a corker.

The Terps have won five of last six games, but only seven points represent the greatest margin of difference during that span.

Matter of fact, these two ancient rivals have a way of making their games anything but dull. The Terps' squeaky 21-19 decision last year gave Maryland a 13-12 edge in the 25-game rivalry which dates back to 1897.

The last two games between the College Park crew and the gang from the hills of Blacksburg, Va., have been lu-lus. Tech went into the game at Byrd Stadium in 1944 doped to lose by three touchdowns. It came out of it beaten, 6-0, on a touchdown scored in the last minute of play.

LAST year Maryland was a four-touchdown favorite at Blacksburg. Result: Maryland, 21; V. P. I., 19. The Gobblers were battling for their now replaced coach, Jimmy Kitts, that day. Students had plastered signs all over the Tech campus asking for Kitts' removal.

Kitts' players resented it and showed their resentment against Maryland. They led, 19-7, going into the last period. Lu Gambino had been stopped cold, but Vic Turyn brought his pitching arm into play and passed the Terps to their narrow triumph.

Once again Maryland finds itself in the favorite's role against Tech. In dropping their first two games, the Gobblers have also failed to score, but Terp Coach Jim Tatum has pleaded with his squad all week: "Don't sell Tech short. They always manage to play their best against us."

Tech can be depended upon to give it everything Saturday to turn in a victory for its new coach, Bob McNeish. McNeish, Navy backfield mentor last year, received help yesterday when Oren Hopkins, a fine offensive end, and Tackle Tom Hess, both out of the Virginia game, were pronounced ready to go.

WHILE McNeish was receiving his good news. He learned that Jim Goodman, 248-pound right tackle, and his first line replacement, Chet Gierula, would not be available for Saturday. Gierula is out with a bad back and Goodman wrenched his knee against Delaware.

Al Phillips, a guard, has been switched to tackle in the emergency with Ed Pobiak tabbed to see much duty at the tackle slot also.

ONCE-OVERS — Down at Wake Forest, N. C., the Demon Deacons hope they have a surprise readied for Carolina's Terrible Tar Heels Saturday. Mum is the word from the Peahead Walker stronghold. "Just watch us roll," is their battle cry . . . Fullback Jack Cloud, stopped cold by Wake Forest in W&M's upset loss Saturday, showed his old-time form in an Indian skirmish yesterday and he's the lad the Indians are looking to to beat VMI at Norfolk Saturday . . . The Keydets, 26-6 conquerors of GW, aren't alarmed, however. They're equally positive Passer Bobby Thomason will give the favored Indians a busy afternoon . . . At Lexington, Va., Washington and Lee prepared to give Georgia Tech "the battle of its life" in Atlanta . . .

Tickets for the Baltimore Colts-San Francisco 49'er game Sunday at Baltimore are on sale at Statler Hotel; Willard Hotel, Sports Center, 8th and D st. nw., and Olympic Sports Shop, 1846 7th st. nw.

Burt Shotton Would Be Farm Chief

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—New York baseball writers covering the World Series believe there's a possibility that Bucky Harris will join the Brooklyn Dodger organization next year.

Harris piloted the New York Yankees the past season but his contract was not renewed and he's in Boston looking for a job.

It is reported that a Brooklyn official has advised Harris not to accept a new post before conferring with Brooklyn officials.

The Journal American says that Burt Shotton, who took over from Leo Durocher in July, may consider returning to his old job as trouble shooter in the Dodger organization.

It also pointed out that the Dodgers might want Harris to take the field job and at the same time be ready to move into the front office as Branch Rickey's successor when and if Rickey decides to retire.

O'Connor Resigns From Chisox Post

Chicago, Oct. 6 (U.P.).—Charles Comiskey, 22-year-old grandson of the founder of the Chicago White Sox, announced today that General Manager Leslie O'Connor has submitted his resignation and that it "probably will be accepted."

"Three or four men are under consideration to succeed O'Connor, but I can't tell you who they are," Comiskey said. "O'Connor is still general manager of the club and he'll be around here probably until November or December."

Virginia Uses 8 Area Boys

When George Washington's footballers take the field Saturday at Charlottesville, they'll be confronted by eight Washington area boys playing in University of Virginia uniforms.

The two most prominent are Dick Johnson, 225-pound first string tackle from George Washington High of Alexandria, and Gene Schroeder, 6-foot, 4-inch end from Anacostia High, who is inserted whenever the Cavaliers go on offense.

Against Virginia Tech last week, Johnson blocked a kick which set up the second Cavalier touchdown on the 1-yard line.

The other area boys who will see some action are Backs Floyd Tayloe of Washington and Billy Sinclair and Bill Marshall of Alexandria, Tackle Lew Parker of Alexandria and Guards Dan Bazemore and Bill Wright of Alexandria.

Sinclair played for GW High. Tayloe performed at Staunton Military Academy, Bazemore at Augusta Military Academy and Marshall, Parker and Wright at Episcopal of Alexandria.

Garibaldis Figure in Draws

The Garibaldi brothers, Gino and Chick, appeared in separate wrestling matches last night at Turner's Arena and had the same luck.

Gino drew with Steve (Crusher) Casey, and Chick drew with Babe Sharkey.

Birmingham Moves Within Game of Title

Fort orth, Tex., Oct. 6 (AP).—The Birmingham Baron moved within one game of the Dixie Series championship here tonight by trimming the Fort Worth Bearcats, 5-3.

They scored three runs off Eddie Chandler in the first inning, added another off George Brown in the second, and scored again in the eighth.

Misses Much of Drama

Television Takes Its Eye Off Ball in World Series Opener

By Herb Heft
Post Reporters

Yesterday's teleview of the World Series as seen in Washington left much to be desired.

Reception was fuzzy, making the ball invisible much of the time. But that was excusable because technicians are still trying to solve a lot of problems.

Less excusable was the cameraman's judgment in deciding which part of the field to cover and at which time.

In the grim pitchers' battle the cameraman failed to give a closeup of the Bob Feller or Johnny Sain windup, although several times, he gave the viewer a close glimpse during the warmups.

When the pitcher wound up, a full-length picture of the hurler could be seen at the very top of the screen. Only the head of the batter was visible.

Since the bat, the catcher and umpire were completely out of the picture, the viewer had to depend on the narrator for a description of what happened after the pitch.

When the ball was hit to the infield, the camerman was slow to follow the ball. On grounders to third, the camera didn't show the fielder until he had thrown the ball, and once or twice, the putout at first was missed.

On a play in which the batter, with a man on first, hit a soft grounder toward second, the camerman took his eye off the ball and followed the runner moving to second. He completely missed the second baseman fielding the ball and throwing to first.

When the game ended, the cameraman, using the long-range lens, caught the Braves only briefly, as they swarmed around Winning Pitcher Sain. In a flash, he moved the camera toward the stands and kept it there.

He showed no closeup of the Braves congratulating Sain and, despite the almost pleading hints of Narrator Red Barber, failed to pick up the disconsolate Indians walking slowly across the diamond to the dressing room.

Marv Hits, Grabs 5 Flies

Unperturbed Rookie Rickert Cockily Picks Braves in Four

By Tom Noonan

Boston, Oct. 6 (U.P.).—Nude and sopping wet, Marvin Rickert sat before his brand new locker at dusk today, probably the least perturbed person in series-crazed Beantown.

"Nervous, naw," replied the Braves' rawest of raw recruits who bounced from the minors into baseball's big time by way of two bad breaks. Last week Rickert was winding up his season with Milwaukee. Today he played in the World Series.

A blase 27, Rickert had touched fire-baller Bob Feller for one of the two Braves hits. He'd also had five sparkling putouts in left field during an afternoon which Boston's fielders had tied a Series record of 15 putouts set in 1912.

Yet he sat there, this Rickert, calm as you please, idly swinging his left leg which was crossed over his right. You could see he didn't think Feller was such big stuff. After all, hadn't he hit better than .600 against the Indian star in exhibition games this spring?

Feller Looked Faster

"You know," said Rickert after apparent thought, "I think Feller was throwing faster this afternoon than he did the last time I was up against him. 'Course that was early in the year when I was with Cincinnati and he was working on his slider."

It was while with the Reds that Rickert's seeming bad break came. He busted his thumb. Cincinnati couldn't use a nine-fingered outfielder so they released him unconditionally to Milwaukee, the Braves' farm club.

It seemed a sensible move for the Reds. After all the 6-foot 2-inch wasn't any great shakes while with the Chicago Cubs in 1947. Rickert had a good year at Milwaukee with a .302 average at bat for the season. But when the Brewers were eliminated from the American Association playoffs, Rickert departed for his Tacoma, Wash., home.

That's where he was when the Braves' power hitter, Jeff Heath, suffered a broken ankle in Brooklyn just before the regular season ended. Rickert was on a plane next day, bound for New York and certain participation in the series after Cleveland generously waived an eligibility claim it had. It was in his second time at bat in this series opener today that Rickert hit.

"Feller threw that slider and I just grooved it," he said.

Chisari Fears W. Maryland

Coach Tom Chisari gave his Catholic U. football squad a sugar-coated pill yesterday, first lauding its winning performance against Patuxent Naval Air Station in the season's opener, then showing films of last year's defeat by Western Maryland. It was intended as a bracer for Saturday's game with the Green Terrors at Brookland.

"We looked good in spots," the Cardinal mentor said, "but not good enough to suit me. We'll have to be more consistent to even hold Western Maryland to a respectable score."

Chisari singled out "Bulldog Bill" Daly at center, Guard "Scrappy" Scoppotuelo, and Tackles Dave Jenkins and Bob Mulvey for their work against the sailors. Mulvey was used only on defense. Late in reporting, he still isn't in tip-top physical condition.

Also pleasing was the field generalship of Whitey Hubert, who ran the team in flawless style. With Bucky Ennis and Joe Dunn ready to carry the mail against the Terrors, and Joe Mauiri in top punting form, the Cardinals hope to give Western Maryland a battle.

Butkus Lands Himself Berth With Redskins

Carl Butkus, 235-pound tackle of the 1947 George Washington University football team, yesterday duplicated the feat of Georgetown's Jim Castiglia.

Released by the New York Yankees of the All-America Conference recently, Butkus needed a mere two-day tryout with the Washington Redskins to win a '48 contract. Castiglia came to the 'Skins in 1947 after being released by the Baltimore Colts.

Butkus is a 25-year-old, 6-footer. He will replace Henry Harris as the thirty-fourth man on the Redskin roster, Harris having gone to the Wilmington, Del., team earlier this week.

As the Redskins yesterday prepped for their second meeting of the season with the Steelers Sunday in Pittsburgh, End Hugh Taylor worked out without the shoulder brace he has worn for more than a week. Paul McKee, another star wingman, was nursing an injured foot but was expected to be ready by Sunday.

Quarterback Harry Gilmer and Halfback Eddie Saenz will be the only Redskins out of action, while the Steelers' chief casualty is Ray Evans, passing rookie from the University of Kansas.

Ump George Barr Straightens Out Official Scorers

Boston, Oct. 6 (AP).—An unusual episode in the fourth inning of today's World Series opener between the Cleveland Indians and the Boston Braves caused confusion among the official scorers, but Plate Umpire George Barr had it right all the time.

The incident occurred while Ken Keltner was at bat. The slugging Cleveland third baseman swung and missed at a third strike as Joe Gordon stole second base. Keltner started for first when Catcher Bill Salkeld dropped the third strike.

Salkeld threw to first and the out apparently was made, the catcher to Earl Torgeson. So the official scorer ruled. As a result Salkeld was credited with an assist and Torgeson got the putout.

Barr, however, raised his hand, ruling Keltner out since a batter can not run to first on a missed third strike with a runner occupying the base. But nobody noticed it then. It was not until after the game that the confusion was cleared up, and the play scored as a simple strike out.

Sauer Considers Shuffling Guards AgainstBlue Devils

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 6 (AP).—Navy scrimmage for two hours today and two substitute guards offered evidence as to why Coach George Sauer is considering some changes in his first eleven.

Bill Weir, who works left of center, and charley Cooper on the other side had a monopoly on the positions as Sauer used three unts against a Plebe team impersonating Duke's Blue Devils.

"They might oust Schiweck and Bob Hunt," Sauer said of Weir and Cooper. Nothing's certain, he added, but both have been pressing for starting berths.

Sauer said he had been mulling over two other switches, but of today's performances judged they would not be necessary. He did not identify the men under scrutiny.

The Midshipmen embark for Durham, N. C., after dinner tomorrow night. They encounter Duke there on Saturday.

Courtney's Goal Gives Oxon Hill Soccer Win

Oxon Hill High defeated Bladensburg, 1-0, yesterday at Oxon Hill, and took over first place in the Prince Georges County Soccer League. Albert Courtney scored the lone goal in the first quarter to give Oxon Hill its second league win against no losses.

Another News Curb Proposed by Bar

State-wide extension of Baltimore's court rules restricting publication of crime news has been urged by the Batlimore Bar Association—with the addition of a new restriction.

Newspapers and radio stations would be prohibited from reporting any confession of crime, or referring to the past record or an accused person, even if this information is disclosed at a preliminary public hearing.

The Baltimore Bar Association, in urging the new restriction at a meeting Tuesday night, at the same time recommended two liberalizing changes in the existing Baltimore rules which have been proposed for all of Maryland.

In a section of the rule prohibiting statements concerning "conduct of the accused," the association recommended modification, noting that at present it would prohibit such news as an accused person assaulting a policeman or trying to hang himself or escape.

The second modification involves a "catch-all" section of the existing rules, which prohibit:

"The publication or broadcast of any matter which may prevent a fair trial, improperly influence the court or the jury, or tend in any manner to interfere with the administration of justice."

This, said a bar association committee, has been criticized as not being "self-interpreting, and affords publishers no real knowledge of what is expected of them," while "the general contempt power of the court to control publications calculated to prevent a fair trial would still remain to cover situations not specifically set forth . . ."

The two "liberalizing" changes voted by the association were included in recommendations of a committee headed by George C. Doub. In adding the new curb involving preliminary hearings, the association overrode views that any statements at a public hearing are public property.

The association approved other sections of the rules which: Ban taking pictures of an accused without his consent; prohibit unauthorized photographs or broadcasting in or around the courthouse, adn forbid publication of any statements on the future course of a trial by defense or prosecuting attorneys or any other officials.

Trailer Camp Ban Rescinded

The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors yesterday reversed an earlier decision and granted a trailer camp permit for Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Stipe for their park on Route 1 at Gum Springs.

The board agreed to grant the permit, which had been denied last June, after assurance by the county health department that the applicants had complied with county regulations since their earlier plea was denied. The operators of the trailer camp also agreed to pay county license fees for part of 1947, during which they had operated without a legal permit.

In another action governing trailer camps, the board approved the request of Stephen J. Gnash 3d, for permission to establish a camp on Route 613 near Franconia. The approval was granted provided Gnash obtains necessary rezoning of the property and then complies with routine permit requirements.

In the only rezoning action at the meeting, the board approved a request of W. L. Rosenberger for reclassification of a site in Dranesville district from agricultural to rural business use.

The board approved purchase of an automobi by the County Welfare Department; appointed Supervisor Robert H. Dye to a committee being formed to establish a health education office in the county, and gave the county jail a clean bill of health in a routine quarterly inspection.

Federal Loyalty Program of Truman Is Fairest of Lot

(Last of a Series)

The Federal worker loyalty program is the most controversial and provocative act of President Harry S. Truman in dealing with the 2,200,000 Government employes. Nevertheless, it's definitely to the President's credit for these reasons:

1. It's truly a bill of rights for Government people when compared to the drastic and arbitrary loyalty programs enacted by the Congress. It's reasonable to assume that all Federal workers would have been subjected to something far worse by Congress if the President hadn't come through with his program.

2. It has provided convincing proof to every fair-minded person that the Government service isn't running wild with Communists and spies, as some people would have us believe. The record shows that only a tiny fraction of 1 per cent has had serious loyalty charges leveled against them, and it's a good bet that most of them will be cleared.

3. It's working because the program has uncovered upward of 1000 employes who have no business in the Federal service, and their being there reflects on the loyalty and integrity of the overwhelming majority of Government workers who are loyal beyond any doubt.

Unfortunately, every case where any innocent person is hurt—cases where absurd charges are made—is blamed on the President's loyalty check. The critics don't seem to understand that there are several loyalty programs and standards in the Federal service and that the President's is the fairest of them all. This isn't to imply that the President's plan is perfect and everyone gets a square deal under it. It isn't. But the accused employe has a far better chance to get a fair hearing and decision under it.

The Congress has enacted special laws which give the Army, Air Forces, Navy, State Department, Atomic Energy Commission and Central Intelligence Agency—agencies that have about 40 per cent of all Federal workers—the authority to fire an employe summarily on a loyalty charge. It isn't necessary to tell the employe why he's being fired or to give him a hearing.

By law, the Congress forbids the Economic Cooperation Administration to hire any employe who holds now or ever held a view that is contrary to the Constitution. A person may be intensely loyal now but if he ever uttered a word in his youth which reflected on the Constitution he can't be employed by ECA if the investigators happen to dig it up.

At least the President's program provides an accused employe with four separate hearings and three possible appeals. The employe is told of the charges against him and he is given a reasonable time to answer them. Also, he may be represented by counsel. These are several of the precautions taken by the President's program to protect the employe.

The accused employe is given practically no protection or rights under the loyalty standards and programs enacted by Congress which assumes the employe must be wrong. That's why I say the President's program, in contrast, is a bill of rights.

What the Federal employe has to fear is this—that the irresponsible plunging into politics of the loyalty issues will result in the junking of the President's program for something far worse, like the arbitrary and summary firing power now held by some agencies.

There is no denying that there is much hysteria in Government over the loyalty question—and that sort of thing leads to the injuring of innocent people. That's why it's dangerous to give arbitrary dismissal power to any person on such a grave question as loyalty which has been confused by political pressures and emotions.

A recent case in one of the agencies with arbitrary authority is a good example of what can happen. The agency had selected an outstanding person for a top-rank post. But in the investigators' report he was called a Communist by an unidentified person who had a good reputation.

But at least the accused employe has a chance to answer the charges—no matter how ridiculous—under the President's program. He also has the protection of the Civil Service Loyalty Review Board, which is composed of able and clear-minded people who, up to this point, haven't been swayed by political and emotional judgments.

Rooming House Fee Increases Called Unfair

Owners of Small Hotels Also Say Proposed Schedule Is Discriminatory

Rooming house and small hotel owners told the District Commissioners yesterday that a proposed schedule of higher license fees would be unfair and discriminatory.

The Commissioners took the schedule under advisement after hearing other interests affected say they would approve if certain fees were reduced.

The schedule was drafted by the Commissioners' special public housing committee to comply with a bill passed by the last Congress providing for reimbursement of the District by multiple public housing operators for actual cost of inspection.

About 100 persons at the hearing applauded as Paul J. Miller, of the Washington Guest House Association and the Small Hotel Owners Association, charged that fixing fees on a per-room basis for hotels, but on a per-person basis for rooming and boarding houses was "most unfair."

Leon L. Sklawy, of the special committee, said the cost of inspecting rooming and boarding houses was high.

Sees Visitors Protected

Miller said that limiting the use of the title "hotel" to places with more than 30 rooms would force establishments which have called themselves hotels for more than 200 years to stop using the word. Sklawy said the limitation would protect out-of-town visitors from entering a "hotel" only "to find it's a flophouse."

The higher fees are proposed to become effective November 1, but the limitation on use of the word "hotel" would not be enforced until one year later.

Charles J Bauer, secretary, Building Owners and Managers Association, told the Commissioners that "it seems most unfortunate that an additional burden should be placed on rental housing at this time, when in the official view the housing shortage remains acute."

Claims Cost Is Lower

William E. Leahy, of the property management group of the Real Estate Board, asked for a lower fee on garden-type apartments "because the cost of inspection is lower."

John A. Savage, 1303 Fairmont st. nw., opposed higher fees.

Norman S. Altman of Fairmac Corp., owners of McLean Gardens, Wisconsin ave., approved the schedule if fees for inspecting rooms in such places as his were lowered.

The proposed schedule would increase, among other fees, rooming and lodging house licenses from $15 a year to $25 for up to 10 roomers, plus $5 for each additionel 10 or fraction thereof; boarding houses from $15 to $25; with $50 for those having sleeping accommodations for from 5 to 10 persons and $5 for each additional 10 or fraction thereof; hotels, from $18 to $75 for up to 50 rooms and a kitchen, with $25 for each additional kitchen and $5 for each additional 10 rooms to a maximum of $500 a year.

The appointment hung fire for weeks. Finally, the investigators were able to persuade the man who made the charge to give his basis for the Communist charge and this was it:

That he doesn't go to church; that the Communists are atheists, and therefore this fellow must be a Communist."

To build up Communist charges against employes, the investigators have gone to such extremes as to point out that the accused have in their homes record albums by Paul Robeson, the left-wing Negro baritone. A Government scientist who made a contribution to the family of a Canadian scientist who was fired on a loyalty charge has been suspended from his job. These are just a few of the horror stories on loyalty.

Hungary Acts

Police Hunt For Legation Gunman

State Deepartment and Metropolitan Police investigators are seeking clews to a mysterious prowler who let himself into the Hungarian Legation Sunday night, fired a wild shot at a woman and ran away.

The manhunt started yesterday after a delay due to diplomatic protocol, and as the Hungarian Foreign Ministry in Budapest announced it had protested the incident as showing the United States Government does not "care properly for the security of the Hungarian Legation."

John G. Florian, first secretary of the legation, at 2118 Leroy pl. nw., just off Connecticut ave., south of California st., described the incident as "something that just doesn't happen at legations."

Housebreaker, Says Lovett

Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett referred to the prowler as a housebreaker.

Florian said the building is occupied at night only by the legation messenger, Odon Pozsgai, and his wife. At about 8 p. m., Mrs. Pozsgai was waiting for her husband to return from an errand.

When she saw a man enter, she got up and approached him to see who he was. The man fired a shot which missed the woman and went through a window in the hallway. The man turned and disappeared out of the door, as Mrs. Pozsgai screamed and ran for the hall. Her husband returned a few moments later, but did not see the intruder flee."

Florian said the incident was reported to the Hungarian Minister, Andrew Sik, who lives at 1616 16th st. nw. Sik sent a note to the State Department which was received Tuesday.

To State Department

"We could have notified the Police Department," said Florian, "but we have no idea who the man was or what he wanted, and it is diplomatic practice to take up any such matter with the State Department."

Florian doubted the man was an ordinary housebreaker.

Mrs. Pozsgai said the intruder was "a big, strong man, of about middle age, heavily built, with brown hair and a brown complexion." Florian said the lock was not forced, and the intruder must have used a pass key or some instrument to turn the lock.

"It is extraordinarily regrettable," said the Hungarian government note to the State Department, "that the United States Government does not care properly for the extraterritorial character and security of the Hungarian Legation."

The note said a similar incident would be impossible in Budapest, as a policeman is stationed in front of each foreign embassy and legation. Florian added that Paris and many other capitals follow that practice.

Lovett told a press conference the State Department's security section is investigating the incident.

Inquest Set Today In Traffic Fatality

An inquest was scheduled for 11:30 a. m. today at the District Morgue in the traffic death of Miss Mary Barbieri, 34, of 4400 Jennifer st. nw., who was struck by a Capital Transit bus Tuesday night at Wisconsin ave. and Fessenden st. nw.

Driver of the bus was listed by police as William H. Wendling, 24, of 1738 G st. nw. Miss Barbieri, a drugstore clerk, walked into the side of bus which was turning into Wisconsin ave., police said.

Holdup Artist Fails to Convince Waitress, Who Takes Him by Arm and Shows Him Door

The Washington Post

By John London
Post Reporter

Doe-eyed Edna Sivils, who deals dishes off the arm at Bassin's, a food and refreshment emporium where blintzes and bacon mingle intimately, served up a successful recipe for foiling holdup artists yesterday:

"Treat 'em gently but firmly, and they crumble like a fallen souffle," advised Mrs. Sivils, 24, 233 S st. ne. She should know: that's how she frustrated a $4000 robbery at Bassin's, 1347 E st. nw., at 1:15 a. m.

Seems a red-headed "executive type with a bow tie and a bun on" elbowed up to the cash register and started to talk to Cashier Nancy Martin, 32, 1247 Underwood st. nw., and Mrs. Sarah Bassin, wife of proprietor Max.

"I'm blowing town in a few minutes," he muttered, motioning his well-groomed head toward the cash register. "And don't try to be a big shot."

As the two women froze with fright, along came Mrs. Sivils, innocently asking for change for a customer. Then, in her own words:

"The girls just looked blankly and they were white as ghosts so I figured something was up, something bad."

Whereupon Mrs. Sivils forthwith seized the intruding party by the arm, and escorted him "gently but firmly" to the door.

Health Report Before Council In Alexandria

Alexandria City Council will sit in closed session tonight for informal discussion of the city's public health problems, given new impetus this week by the abrupt resignation of Health Officer W. Lewis Schafer.

Tonight's meeting originally had been scheduled to discuss a State report on the city's health program, target of frequent criticism in recent months. Schafer's resignation, however, gave councilmen an additional topic for the behind-doors discussion.

The report was prepared by the Virginia State Health Department as the result of an attack by the League of Women Voters on local health conditions last May. Contents of the report, submitted to city officials Friday, have not been disclosed.

Meanwhile, City Manager Nicholas A. Colasanto said he had received several inquiries about the vacant health officer post. Under present budget provisions, it pays $6000 a year. Colasanto interviewed one Baltimore physician yesterday.

Dr. Schafer's resignation will not become effective until October 19, but to all practical purposes it left the city without a health officer because he is entitled to two weeks' vacation.

Improvement Council Speakers Are Named

Representative J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.) and Charles H. Houston, chairman, national legal committee, national association for Advancement of Colored People, will speak at the fourth educational meeting of the Citizens' Council for Mutual Improvement.

The meeting is to be held Friday at 8:30 p. m. in the Lincoln High School Gymnasium, Rockville, Md.

Shrine Trip Off

More Blood Given Boy in Fight to Live

Five-year-old Curry (Skippy) Obenshain, jr., underwent another blood transfusion at the Bethesda Naval Hospital yesterday in the fight he is losing against leukemia.

The lad, son of Marine Staff Sergt. and Mrs. Curry C. Obenshain, 1040 Barnaby ter. se., was to have flown today to the Shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre in Quebec, Canada, in hope of a miraculous cure of the disease for which doctors know no cure.

His grandmother, Mrs. Julia Obenshain, said last night, however, the trip had been postponed, on advice of physicians, after the boy's condition had taken a sudden turn for the worst. Physicians, she said, are planning use of a new drug, aminopperin, in hope of prolonging his life.

Naval Hispital physicians said aminopperin, which has been used in leukemia cases at Boston Children's Hospital and Georgetown Hospital here with some effect on the disease, is still in experimental stage and used only with the parents' consent.

They declined to predict the result of the drug's use, saying that, although it might prolong the lad's life, they still had no hope for his recovery.

Funds for Skippy's trip to the shrine—and for his mother and grandmother to accompany him—were raised by the John Francis Madigan Post No. 653 of the Catholic War Veterans and through efforts of Lieut. M. G. MacInnis, chaplain at the Naval Hospital.

Skippy has been ill since March 17, undergoing one transfusion after another and suffering chills and fever up to 106 degrees. When he will be able to make the trip to the shrine neither physicians nor his family could say last night.

P-TA Advised To Cultivate Cooperation

Parents and teachers yesterday were advised not to "dominate or interfere" with each other, but to "cooperate and understand."

The advice came from Miss Agnes Samuelson, school education chairman of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, who spoke at the first session of the Parent-Teacher Institute sponsored by the Congress of Parents and Teachers and George Washington University.

Describing the P-TA as "a course in adult education all the time," Miss Samuelson declared:

"Schools and P-TAs should meet together. Each should recognize the other's place and work together for the welfare of the child, not only in this country but throughout the world."

Earlier, Dr. Hobart M. Corning, superintendent of District schools, described the P-TA as "an integral part of the school system.

"Teachers and parents must work together. The training of children is too big a job for either to do alone," he said.

After Miss Samuelson's talk, members of the institute met in groups to discuss what the P-TA has done toward better cooperation. Ideas presented in a general discussion included panel discussions for teachers and parents, service by teachers on P-TA committees, and open house for teachers to promote better acquaintance.

During the morning group conferences, Miss Cecilia P. Dulin, chairman of the juvenile protection and youth welfare committee, called on members to work toward the banishment of "horror and crime" comic books.

"We should not set ouselves up as censors of all comic books, but we should have a program of discrimination and elimination," she said.

Draft Chiefs Stretch Hour's Trip

Members of Prince Georges County's three draft boards were perplexed yesterday by what seems to them a prime example of indirection—if not misdirection.

The way State draft headquarters in Baltimore has arranged things, it will take so long to get 1-A draft registrants from Upper Marlboro to the Silver Spring preinduction examination center that the men will have to spend the night there.

The routing directive in substance reads like this:

Men leave Upper Marlboro by bus at 9:41 a. m. At TB, Md., they transfer to another bus and drive to Washington, arriving at 1:25 p. m. From there they go by bus to the Army and Air Force recruiting station in Silver Spring, where they are given physical and mental exams.

After that, they spend the night in Silver Spring, and return the next day over the same route to Upper Marlboro, arriving at 1 p. m.

Ordinarily, it is about an hour's drive of some 25 miles from Upper Marlboro to Silver Spring along the Largo-Landover rd. to Bladensburg, thence through Hyattsville by way of the East-West highway.

And Hyattsville area draft registrants also face taking an indirect route from Board 55 headquarters to the Silver Spring station:

The first group of 13 will leave Hyattsville at 7:44 a. m. by train, arrive at Union Station in the District at 8:05 a. m., and wait until 10:05 a. m., when they again entrain for Silver Spring. They get back to Hyattsville the same day, however, arriving at 5:30 p. m.

Buses run directly from Hyattsville to Silver Spring.

Meanwhile, 10 District men were examined at the Army and Air Force recruiting station, 403 10th st. nw., yesterday, and Frank D. Norton, deputy draft director, reported the number of late draft registrants "has tapered off considerably."

Some Increased, Some Reduced in Basing Charges on Last Year's Costs

New tuition rates for nonresident students, based on the cost of schooling last year, were approved yesterday by the Board of Education along with a request to the Commissioners to take over the job of collecting the money.

The new rates for a school year are teachers college, $303; senior high school, $217; vocational high, $242; junior high, $164; elementary school, $110; crippled childrens school, $290, and night school, $27.

In three divisions fees are lower than those charged last year. Teachers college fees dropped $40; vocational high schools, $8, and the crippled childrens school, $10.

Senior high school fees went up $23; junior high fees, $14, elementary school fees, $4, and night school costs, $1.

Are Fiscal Authority

Superintendent Hobart M. Corning recommended that the Commissioners take over the task of collecting the money since "they are the fiscal authority for the District."

The law requiring all nonresidents to pay tuition this year has resulted in the loss of 2051 out-of-town students, Corning said. Attendance by local residents has increased by 1384 students, he said.

In other actions yesterday the board:

Postponed consideration of a request by the Recreation Department to set up programs in 62 schools.

2 Promoted, 2 Retired

Promoted Cedric O. Reynolds, assistant principal at Eastern High School to a position on the board of examiners, and Miss Irene Rice, teacher at the Veterans Center, to assistant principal of Western High School.

Retired two teachers; they are Mrs. Edith H. Wood, assistant to the principal at the Webster Americanization School, after 18 years' service, and Miss Freda M. Cowhig, teacher in the elementary school music department, after 24 years.

District Court Has 4066 Cases Awaiting Action

District Court figures released yesterday show that this month there are 3788 civil cases on the calendar and 278 criminal cases available for trial.

As the court goes into its fall term, jail and emergency cases and preliminary motions are receiving immediate attention.

On the civil calendar, 2094 cases are more than six months old and 972 are more than a year old. Of the 2094 cases above, 935 are divorce cases. At present estimates, it will take 14 months from entering a case to have it disposed of by non-jury procedure. An estimated 10 months is the interval for jury trials in the civil division.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 6 (AP).—The second annual Virginia Highway Conference will be held at Virginia Military Institute in Lexington November 11-13.

Turner Firm Bids Low on Building Wing

The Washington building firm of Lee T. Turner made the low bid yesterday on construction of a new wing for the Arlington County Courthouse.

Turner's was one of six bids opened by County Manager A. T. Classes; the first for construction of a full three-story north wing of the Courthouse, the other for a half-length wing of three stories. Winning bid will be picked by the Arlington County board Saturday.

Turner estimated $377,923 for the full wing, $280,857 for the smaller one. The next lowest bidder, E. L. Daniels of Arlington, bid $382,987 and $289,807.

Other bids came from the Laburnum Construction Corp. of Richmond, with $462,388 and $347,644; Roystone, Grimm & Sammons of Arlington, with $387,691 and $289,394; the Blackwell Engineering Co. of Warrenton, Va., with $400,000 and $312,000, and John McShain, Inc., of Arlington, at $462,200 and $367,200.

County officials said the new wing, badly needed to relieve courthouse overcrowding, would be financed by the pay-as-you-go method from surplus funds.

GOP Headquarters Opened in Arlington

The Arlington County Republican Campaign Committee has opened headquarters at 10th and Highland sts. in Clarendon under the direction of Edgar W. Pumphrey, committee chairman. Mrs. Marie Leap, a past president of the Arlington County Republican Women's Council, has been named executive secretary.

Parking, Police Building Studied

Leasing of the structure occupied by the Western Market at K and 21st sts. nw. for conversion in part to a parking building and new quarters for the Third Precinct police is being considered by Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, Engineer Commissioner, he said yesterday.

The proposal, which he said has been under consideration by the District government for almost a year, is to preserve the market on the first floor and add upper floors for parking and police facilities.

General Young emphasized that no definite plan has been made, although one of his aides is drafting a proposed advertisement for competitive bids on the conversion for consideration by the Commissioners.

Sailor Loses Wallet

John J. Zoo, 24, a sailor en route to his Salt Lake City home for a month furlough before going overseas, reported the loss of his wallet and about $187 about 6:30 p. m. yesterday on a streetcar between Union Station and 13th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Zoo hopes whoever found the wallet will return the papers in it—his identification card and orders—to him at the information desk at Union Station. He can't proceed without them.

Barrett to See Series

Maj. Robert J. Barrett, District police superintendent, departed on leave yesterday to attend the World Series in Boston. He planned to stop in New York on the way back to attend the 1948 International Convention of Chiefs of Police.

The police chiefs' convention opens October 9, and Barrett said he planned to return to his office here October 15, the day after the convention ends. Inspector Floyd Truscott is acting police superintendent in Barrett's absence.

Encyclopedia Capital

The first step to make Washington, rather than Chicago, "the encyclopedia capital of the world" was announced yesterday by L. C. Schoenwald, vice president in charge of sales of Encyclopedia Britannica, Inc.

He said the Washington division office will assume "full sales and service autonomy" for the District, Maryland, Virginia and part of West Virginia. The present local staff will be more than doubled in size.

Club Caverns Hearing

A hearing on charges of sale of alcoholic beverages during prohibited hours by the Club Caverns, Inc., 2001 11th st. nw., will be heard today at 10 a. m. by the District Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

The board yesterday suspended the retail license of Edward R. Curley, 508 H st. nw., for a three-day period from October 11 to 13, inclusive, for sale of beer to an intoxicated person and permitting the person to remain on the premises. A hearing on the charge was held September 28.

Barber's Suit Dismissed

Judge Edward A. Tamm of District Court yesterday dismissed a suit brought by Pat J. Fiordelise who wanted the court to force the District Commissioners to issue him a license to operate the barbershop at 1204 New York ave. nw. Fiordelise was refused a license in 1947 after servicemen charged that they were charged exorbitant prices at the shop. Fiordelise obtained a temporary injunction which was dissolved yesterday on petition of Henry E. Wixon, assistant corporation counsel.

Paris Ballet Performs Brilliantly

By Paul Hume

The Paris Opera Ballet opened Washington's official concert season last night in Constitution Hall.

The hall was packed with Washington's diplomatic and ballet corps. The company is touring this country under the sponsorship of the French government. Their youth, their fresh, dazzling style, and the perfection with which they handle themselves remind us of the first sunny days of Ballet Theater.

Costumes and stars glittered last night and we saw three new ballets. Alas, it is to our national shame that we could not receive our celebrated guests more kindly than the inadequacies of our chief concert hall permit. There were traffic jams, and impossible situations where entrances and exits simply would not work.

But the Parisians managed themselves superbly. Their stars, Chauvire, Vaussard and Bardin, are like no other dancers we have seen. The fragility of their art, combined with grace and elegance, is as much a part of French art and culture as is the sound of Ravel's orchestra, or the phrase of a Faure song.

To watch Roger Ritz command the stage in his brilliant style in Soir de Fete is to see a new male star, different from, but equal to Igor Youskevitch. Nor are the fluent gifts of Renault and Bozzoni less than exciting. Indeed the whole company threw out sparks of fire in the flair with which they manipulated difficult designs in a space about one fourth of that to which they are accustomed.

Chauvire's intangible beauty in Mirages went beyond anything else seen during the evening. For pure classical style, Vaussard was a scintillating beauty. Of Lifar's choreography in Mirages, much had poetic meaning. The Sauguet score was by turns dramatically apposite and padded sounding.

We shall hav the happy occasion to discuss the Paris Ballet again tomorrow evening. They have given us new concepts of an art which owes its origin to their country. They uphold the great French traditions in worthy fashion.

County Manager Is Forum Topic

"The County Manager Form of Government" will be the topic of a forum discussion sponsored by the Democratic Club of Arlington tonight at 8 o'clock at its monthly meeting at the Lyon Park Community House.

Participants will include Albert T. Lundberg, county manager of Arlington; Gustave Moe, vice chairman, Arlington Public Utilities Commission, and John A. Tillema, professor of political science, George Washington University. Commonwealth's Attorney Denman Rucker will be moderator.

'Open House' at Girls' Training School

OFFICIALS TAKE A LOOK—Two residents of the National Training School for Girls (backs to camera) show visiting notables their handicraft. The officials, on an inspection tour yesterday, are (from left) Dr. James Lewald, superintendent of the District Training School for Feeble-Minded at Laurel, Md.; the Rev. Robert W. Brooks and Dr. John Tramberg, both members of the Board of Public Welfare; and Mrs. Rose Smith, superintendent of the training school. It was Mrs. Smith's fourth anniversary as head of the welfare institution

Mrs. Rose Cooper Smith, superintendent of the National Training School for Girls, yesterday received glowing praise for her work as the school observed its second annual open house.

Mrs. Smith yesterday observed her fourth anniversary as head of the local welfare institution. Miss Carey B. Maddox, assistant superintendent, paid tribute to the "guidance of her leadership through four years of struggle and unselfish labor."

John W. Tramburg, director of the Department of Public Welfare, called Mrs. Smith a "team-player," willing to "fill in on almost any position." He congratulated the superintendent on the "driving force to put across her points," and praised her efforts in enlisting a large volunteer group to help with the work of the school.

Approximately 100 persons attended the open house, where they heard a glee club of 16 of the girls at the school sing, made a tour of the institution, and had tea in the domestic science room.

2 Alexandria Policemen Go Back in Army

Resignations of two Alexandria policemen and a Detective Bureau secretary were announced yesterday by Maj. Edgar Sims, superintendent of police.

Sims said Policemen George W. Jordan and William A. Brown had been ordered to active Army duty and would leave the department Sunday. Jordan will return to service as a second lieutenant, whilewhile Brown has taken his former captain's commission.

Mrs. Dorothy L. Meyer, secretary in the Detective Bureau for nearly two years, will leave her post October 14 for a job with the Civil Aeronautics Administration, Major Sims said.

According to the superintendent, resignation of the two officers will leave the department 12 men below its authorized strength of 80. He is attempting to recruit men for the force. Salaries for police privates range from $2160 to $3010 a year.

Maryland Court Bars Dixiecrats From Ballots

Baltimore, Oct. 6 (AP).—A Superior Court ruled today that the presidential and vice presidential candidates for the States Rights Democratic Party are ineligible for a place on the Maryland ballots.

The decision, handed down by Judge Joseph Sherbow, sustained the State law department's demurrer to a writ to force election officials to put the States Righters on the ballot.

Judge Sherbow said the Legislature has laid down the methods by which places on the election ballots may be obtained. He added that the General Assembly apparently had not foreseen the possibility that a party would be organized after conventions of the two major political parties.

Memorial Fund For H. P. Blair To Aid Boy, 10

Officers of the Friendship House board of directors have contributed to a memorial fund in tribute to Henry P. Blair, to help a badly adjusted 10-year-old boy "find himself."

Miss Lydia A. H. Burklin, executive director of Friendship House, said money that would have been spent for flowers for Mr. Blair's funeral today has been contributed to the fund.

Mr. Blair is credited with organizing the District Boy Scouts Board, with helping to start the National Boy Scouts of America movement, and with establishment of St. Mark's Choir Camp. He also worked with the Friendship House Boy Scouts and the Episcopal Home for Children.

Frank W. McCullough

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—Frank Witcher McCullough, 59, of Huntington, W. Va., assistant to the president of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co., died today of a heart ailment.

He was in New York attending a meeting of the National Coal Association.

McCullough joined the C. & O. in 1939. A native of Huntington, he served as assistant United States attorney there from 1913 to 1921, and later engaged in private law practice.

He served as West Virginia NRA compliance director, WPA administrator and Federal Housing administrator in the State. Formerly he was secretary of the National Bituminous Coal Commission.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Kathleen Guthrie McCullough, and two sons, Witcher Guthrie and Frank Witcher McCullough, jr.

Bethesda Man Is Acquitted of Wife Murder

West Palm Beach, Fla., Oct. 6 (AP).—Oswald Schreiner, jr., former Government worker from Bethesda, Md., today was acquitted of second degree murder in the death of his wife, Katherine.

Mrs. Schreiner was found dead last February 23 in a trailer she and her husband occupied at Briney Breezes near Boynton Beach.

Schreiner had told Sheriff John Kirk he struggled with his wife to quiet her during an attack such as she suffered frequently and did not know of her death until later.

Donned Uniform To Lure Women, Seaman, 25, Says

The defendant, Lawrence J. Glynn, 25, of Brighton, Mass., told police he did it because he had heard that there were many women in Washington who get swoony feelings at the thought of an officer in the Marine Corps.

At Least 75 % Of Sinus Cases Held Imaginary

Philadelphia, Oct. 6 (AP). — At least 75 per cent of sinus cases are imaginary, the Pennsylvania Medical Society was told today by a Jefferson Medical College professor.

Dr. C. Calvin Fox, professor of laryngology, explained that in a high percentage of cases the real trouble is an allergy, circulatory disturbance, gastro-intestinal disorder, heavy drinking, glandular disturbances, or some other illness.

The symptoms that most often lead to an erroneous opinion that sinus infection is present, he said, are headache, particularly frontal pains, facial pains, the presence of excessive nasal or post-nasal discharge, and nasal obstruction.

Fred Mergner, Slayer, Died At Lorton, Va.

Frederick C. Mergner, found guilty in June, 1944, of the first-degree murder of his former housekeeper, died August 11 at Lorton Reformatory, it was learned yesterday.

Mergner

Widower of a bakery heiress and father of five children, he faced death in the electric chair when in August 1945 President Truman commuted his sentence to life imprisonment.

Mergner was stricken with a heart attack and died almost immediately, Supt. E. A. Welch of Lorton, said. He was a model prisoner, who lived quietly and worked in the reformatory bakery.

His children visited him at the reformatory. Several of them attended his funeral, according to Welch. His father, John E. Mergner, claimed the body, which was released to the Hall funeral home in Occuquan, Va. Private services were held in the chapel in Prospect Hill Cemetery here.

A District Court jury found Mergner guilty of firing four bullets into the face of Mrs. Charlotte Robinson, 30-year-old recreational worker, and leaving her to die on the sidewalk at 7th and A sts. ne. after failing in his attempts to stuff her body down a sewer in October, 1943.

He pleaded insanity by reason of intoxication at the time and described Mrs. Robinson, who had at one time cared for his large home in Spring Valley, as "the only woman I ever loved outside of my wife."

Mrs. Mergner died as the result of an abortion in March, 1939. Mergner was indicted for the offense, but the indictment was subsequently ignored.

Mrs. Robinson, who was German-born, had twice wed and divorced Brown Wiley Robinson, a convicted jewel thief.

Mary Page Turnbull

Greenwich, Conn., Oct. 6 (AP).—Mary Page Turnbull, 76, widow of Ernest Hathaway Turnbull and a star of the legitimate stage in the early nineties, died at Blythewick Sanatorium here today.

She appeared on the American stage under the name of Elliot Page. She also starred on the English stage, having a leading role in the first production of Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest."

H. F. Worley, Ex-Official of Customs, Dies

H. F. Worley, 75, retired head of the Bureau of Customs division of training and a signer of the Treaty of Versailles, died yesterday at his home, 5333 Reno rd. nw.

Mr. Worley

Assigned by the Treasury Department to Liberia during World Was I as general receiver of customs and financial adviser to the republic, Mr. Worley attended the Paris peace conference as a delegate of the country.

A veteran of 43 years of Federal service, he retired as director of the training division, Bureau of Customs, in 1943. He had set up the division of training in 1935.

Mr. Worley was president of the National Customs Service Association, a post he had held since the group's organization in 1943.

Studied Medicine

Mr. Worley, a native of Lawrenceville, Ind., studied medicine in Cincinnati, Ohio. In 1899, he joined the customs service and was assigned to Cuba. He returned here in 1903 and was with the Bureau of Insular Affairs until 1905, when he was appointed deputy general receiver of customs and comptroller at Santo Domingo.

He later became assistant legal adviser to the provisional Governor of Cuba on customs and taxation problems.

After service in Liberia, between 1916 and 1922, he became Treasury attache for the district of southern Europe. From 1925 until he became head of the customs division of training in 1935, he acted as a customs agent on special assignment and also served as a member of the port examination commission.

A member of the Chevy Chase Baptist Church, 5671 Western ave. nw., he also was a thirty-second degree Mason and a Shriner.

Was Crack Marksman

He was a crack marksman and had won many medals in target competition. During the last war, he assisted at the Treasury Department range as an instructor and also wrote a handbook on shooting for customs agents. He belonged to the National Rifle Association.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Bessie E. Worley, of the Reno rd. address, Mr. Worley leaves a son, John Kyle Worley of Detroit, and a daughter, Mrs. Leo J. Rocca of 3011 Foxhall rd. nw., and five grandchildren.

Funeral services have been tentatively set for 10 a. m. Friday at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Nellie M. Lewis

Mrs. Nellie McCurdy Lewis, 81, widow of Simeon T. Lewis, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William P. MacCracken, jr., 2933 Benton pl. nw.

A native of Hunts Hill, Calif., her father was Elisha McCurdy, a pioneer in early mining developments of the California gold rush. After the death of her husband in 1918, Mrs. Lewis moved to Chicago to live with her daughter. They have lived in Washington since 1936.

Previously Mr. and Mrs. Lewis had resided in Fort Smith, Ark., and Waco, Tex., where she will be buried.

She leaves besides her daughter, two grandchildren, Nell Elizabeth and William Lewis MacCracken.

Preacher and Politics

Dr. A. Powell Davies, minister of All Soul's Unitarian Church, 16th and Harvard sts. nw., will speak on "A Preacher Looks at Politics" at a dinner of the Unitarian Laymen's League at the church at 6:30 o'clock tonight.

Los Angeles, Oct. 6 (AP).—Walter Greenwood Beach, 80, professor emeritus in sociology at Stanford University and author of several books on the subject, died today after a long illness.

M. H. Balch Dies; FWA Architect

Moulton H. Balch, 34, an architect with the Federal Works Agency for the past 14 years, died of leukemia Tuesday at Garfield Hospital.

Mr. Balch

Mr. Balch showed first symptoms of the illness when he returned from vacation recently to his home at 8712 Colesville rd., Silver Spring. He was admitted to the hospital only a week ago.

Born in Washington, he was graduated in 1932 from George Washington University, where he had been a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

He was a charter member of the Silver Spring Elks Club. His interests included painting and work in ceramics, and for the latter he was awarded first prize in the Public Buildings Administration Hobby Show last August.

His father, the late P. I. Balch, was technical adviser to the supervising architect of the Treasury Department until his death in 1936.

Mr. Balch leaves his wife, Mrs. Cleo Browne Balch; a daughter, Beverlee Ann, 8; his mother, Mrs. Amy Moulton Balch, and a sister, Mrs. Bernice B. Schwab.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Friday at All Souls Unitarian Church, 16th and Harvard sts. nw. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Robert Nathan Wafle

Robert Nathan Wafle, 66, died at Emergency Hospital early yesterday after a short illness. Mr. Wafle was employed as a salesman with the Sid Welborn Motor Co. since 1942, and lived at 3228 Hiatt pl. nw. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Augusta Needles Wafle. Funeral services will be held at Friends' Cemetery, Sandy Spring, Md., at 3 p. m. Friday.

Residential Drive Launched

Chest's Women Workers Hear Mme. Bonnet Speak

By Genevieve Reynolds

"Two fields are wide open for women—social welfare and promoting understanding," declared Mme. Henri Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, when she appeared as principal speaker yesterday in the Community Chest Federation's Red Feather campaign luncheon held in the Washington Hotel.

The occasion marked the launching of the federation's residential unit drive in the Washington area. Members of the unit will solicit funds from house to house and apartment to apartment. Attending were the heads or representatives of 35 participating women's organizations.

"Every woman should consider herself a social worker," Mme. Bonnet told the some 350 feminine leaders present.

"But in social welfare and promotion of understanding," she cautioned, "let's put all our hearts and intelligence into it, and above all let's act in order to bring about substantial results; and if we will try our best to understand our next door neighbor or the next nation, then we will have won the greatest battle for peace."

Asks for Definite Tasks

Mme. Bonnet emphasized that good will and clearing up of social welfare problems will be wasted without action. Assignment of definite tasks to women plus a definite program, she suggested, would solve the social welfare problems. "Choose the career or task for which you are best fitted," she advised.

She pointed out that the human qualities acquired in working in useful fields for the community will help to spread national and international understanding, "without which no hope of peace can exist."

"International understanding, widely promoted by women and brought about by a real knowledge of other countries and other peoples, will help us to achieve our real goal," she explained, "world-wide union based on similarity of ideals and interests.

"What is done in a community later on can be carried as a world-wide crusade," she continued.

Work Not Charity

To the Community Chest leaders she admonished, "Start your campaign with the firm conviction that this is not charity but as a duty of a free citizen of a free Nation, you are fighting the highest and noblest of wars. Your efforts will give relief to those who need it and will make them feel they do belong to the community. Thus you will build a monument which we need as part of our moral health.

"We must learn to give by giving. We must erase from our hearts the word 'selfish'," she averred. "We must never relax until the dignity of the individual has been restored everywhere and the moral and physical standard raised. And when we see the dawn of happiness rise over our families, our communities and over the whole world, then and only then we might say to ourselves—well done.

"Common welfare and human relations are dearest to my heart," concluded Mme. Bonnet.

Mrs. Theodore Wedel, chairman of the residential unit drive, who presided, explained that the Community Chest Federation had asked each working person to set aside one day's pay to contribute to the campaign. "I'd like to suggest that each nonworking woman be asked to give what she thinks she is worth," she said. She then added, laughingly, "campaign funds would come in quickly."

Tours Are Arranged

She announced that the Community Chest is making possible tours of all the agencies receiving contributions in the Red Feather Campaign. Arrangements will be made for organizations to tour the agencies daily between 2 and 5 p. m.

Mrs. Harold Burton, vice chairman of the residential unit, introduced Mrs. Wedel.

Among the guests at the head table were Mrs. Hugo Black, wife of the associate justice of the Supreme Court; Mrs. Kenneth Royall, wife of the Secretary of the Army; Mrs. William O. Douglas, wife of the associate justice of the Supreme Court; Mrs. Charles Brannan, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture; Mrs. Wiley Rutledge, wife of the associate justice of the Supreme Court; Mrs. Jesse Donaldson, wife of the Postmaster General; Mrs. Tom Clark, wife of the Attorney General; Mrs. Julius Krug, wife of the Secretary of the Interior; Mrs. John L. Sullivan, wife of the Secretary of the Navy; Mrs. Charles Sawyer, wife of the Secretary of Commerce; Mrs. Stanley Reed, wife of the associate justice of the Supreme Court.

Mrs. Fred Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, did not attend because of illness.

Heads and representatives of the various women's clubs introduced included Mrs. Frank M. Stephen, president, Prince Georges County Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Edward C. Magdeburger, president of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. O. G. Mankins, District of Columbia Congress of Parents and Teachers; Mrs. Philip Rosenfeld, president, Service Guild of Washington; Mrs. Martin J. Baum, president, Sisterhood of Washington Hebrew Congregation; Miss Genevieve Rogers, president, District of Columbia Business and Professional Women's Clubs; Mrs. M. E. Mersheimer, representative of the Soroptimist Club; Mrs. Robert P. Fales, president, Junior League of Washington; and others.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Mature Professional Woman, Alone in Life, And Genteel Disciple of Victorian Views, Wants to Ask Man to Dinner; Should She?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: May a mature, cultured professional woman with all propriety invite a man to her home for dinner, although he has never taken her out nor asked her to call?

They are refined, well-bred people, well educated and a bit on the serious side, both have been married before and each has been alone for two years or more.

Edna knows the man admires her, and she likes and respects him. They are business associates and good friends on that basis. Their educational training and social backgrounds are similar, and they have much in common, such as hobbies, religion and viewpoints on current affairs.

How Court Man, But Gracefully?

EDNA'S FAMILY and friends think she is a bit old-fashioned in that she feels a woman should wait until a man invites her out before she invites him to her home, and as an alternative, it has been suggested that she give a dinner party, to which she could very properly invite Joshua along with two or three other couples.

However, she hesitates even to do that, for fear he might misunderstand and think she was being unconventional, bold or forward. Heretofore she hasn't had the slightest interest in encouraging the friendship of any man, but she likes the friendship, comradeship and companionship of this man.

How may an older woman cultivate a friendship she values very highly and still not cause the man to feel she is "gunning" for him?

E. S.

Woman's Inhibitions Unsuited to Her Age

DEAR E. S.: The mature, cultured woman, accustomed to social substance in her private life, who enjoys companionship and has a coterie of friends, doesn't shrink self-consciously from adding occasionally to her list of cultivated interests by inviting a new man to dinner if and when she has the good fortune to meet, in conventional auspices, an accredited individual who appeals to her as a person worth knowing and who seems responsive to her tentative liking.

Conversely, the middle-aged woman who has few friends and little social gumption, and who finds herself without husband or beau to be her right bower, usually is stiffly reluctant to betray a preferential interest in the opposite sex because she is fearful that her want of masculine companionship and affection will dawn on beholders, and vaguely she is ashamed of hunger and deprivation on this score.

Such embarrassment is significant. It is an echo of intuitive self-condemnation, and in a sense, this attitude is justified. However, the root cause for self-reproach is not lacking friends but rather in negative do-nothing failure to exercise one's God-given talents for acquiring them.

Timidity Is Aspect of Childishness

"HE WHO WOULD have friends must show himself friendly," we are told, and this is an incontrovertibly sound aphorism. The person who sits back waiting for the heavens to open and shower good friendships upon him, say after 40, is foredoomed to most grievous disappointment. And it isn't praiseworthy for a mature-age person to plead timidity as excuse for inaction.

Timidity is an aspect of childishness, an admission of predominant self-concern and total reliance upon parent-figures to shield one from test experiences with the larger world, and as such it doesn't become the adult personality nearly so well as poised, kindly, comfortable warmth of manner does.

For advice. If Edna and Joshua are firm friends professionally, and if she knows anybody, man or woman, whom he hasn't met but whose conversation he'd likely enjoy, she might very appropriately ask him to dinner to meet that person, putting the emphasis on bringing them together, and negotiating the date for an evening mutually convenient.

French Ambassador Entertains

Paris Ballet Members Honored at Reception

By Elizabeth Maguire

OVER 300 MEMBERS of Washington Diplomatic and residential society gathered at the French Embassy late last evening for a reception held following the Paris Opera Ballet at Constitution Hall. The Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet received their guests in the green salon between 11 o'clock and midnight.

Bronze and yellow chrysanthemums were placed around the library, and in the salon were masses of white flowers and fragrant white lilies. The beige and green sunroom was decorated with red roses. A buffet in the dining room offered salmon en gelee, chaud froid and selection of delicacies. Everything was done in the house by Mme. Bonnet's new chef, Henri Dueluzeau. Although the foundation for the supper was simple, it was beautifully prepared. Typically French were the gelatin de volaille, barquette de homard and petits fours.

Many of Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet's guests were at the embassy when they arrived from Constitution Hall, where they had attended the ballet whose corps members were guests of honor at the reception. Mme. Bonnet was beautifully gowned for the occasion, wearing plum-colored taffeta made with a fitted bodice and bustle back. She carried a gold vanity case and wore two orchids pinned on her shoulder.

Lady Berendsen, wife of the New Zealand Minister, was one of the early arrivals along with Gen. and Mrs. Anthony McAuliffe and former Ambassador and Mrs. Stanley Hornbeck.

Among the Guests

Among the many guests were the Ambassador of Norway and Mme. Morgenstierne, the Ambassador of Canada and Mrs. Wrong, the Ambassador of Denmark and Mme. de Kauffmann, the Polish Ambassador and Mme. Winiewicz, the Turkish Ambassador and Mme. Erkin, the Indian Ambassador and Lady Rama Rau, the Minister of Luxembourg and Mme. Le Gallais, the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Bruggmann, and the United States Minister to Ireland and Mrs. Garrett.

Still others were Chief Justice and Mrs. Fred Vinson, Associate Justice and Mrs. Wiley B. Rutledge, Associate Justice and Mrs. Felix Frankfurter, Acting Secretary of State and Mrs. Robert Lovett, Mrs. Arthur Fowler, Mrs. Arthur Woods, Mrs. Nathan Wyeth, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carroll Glover, jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Finkenstaedt.

Mrs. James Souby Gives Luncheon

MRS. JAMES SOUBY entertained at luncheon yesterday at her home, for a company of 12. Lady Rama Rau, wife of the Indian Ambassador; Mme. Erkin, wife of the Turkish Ambassador; Princess Wan, wife of the Siamese Ambassador, were among the guests. Also in the company was Mrs. Loy Henderson, wife of the United States Ambassador to India.

Farewell Luncheon Honors Gen. Pistarini

AS A FAREWELL to the visiting Minister of Public Works of the Argentine, Gen. Juan Pistarini, and Senora de Pistarini, a luncheon was held yesterday at the Argentine Embassy. The Ambassador, Veronimo Remorino, was host on this occasion to 75 guests.

Miss Maria Therese Pistarini and Lieut. Juan Pistarini, daughter and son of the general, attended, as well as members of General Pistarini's entourage who accompanied him to Washington.

Gen. Pistarini and his family have been guests of the Government at Blair Lee House.

MISS GLADYS TERRADAS, daughter of the Assistant Military Attache of the Argentine Embassy, entertained yesterday at cocktails in honor of Miss Maria Theresa Pistarini. The party was given in the lounge of the Mayflower Hotel. General Pistarini, Minister of Public Works of the Argentine, left town yesterday, while Senora de Pistarini and her daughter remained in Washington.

Among the guests yesterday were Miss Marina Prado, Miss Yvonne Ache, Miss Perla Arce Garcia and Miss Violet Bertini. Also, Enrique Serrer Vieyra, Rodolfo Barbagelata, Carlos Valenzuela, Julian Ortiz, Juan Bautista Paz, and Miguel Angel Lopez Lecube.

Philippine Ambassador Given Farewell Party

THE Philippine Ambassador, Joaquin M. Elizalde, was honored at a farewell dinner last evening by the Philippine Minister and Mrs. Ramos at their home on Northampton st.

Ambassador Elizalde is leaving Saturday for Cuba to attend the presidential inaugurational ceremonies, and shortly thereafter he is leaving for the Philippines.

Last night's host and hostess are also leaving town soon. They will go to the Argentine, where Minister Ramos will set up a new legation in Buenos Aires. Emillo Abello will take the place of Mr. Ramos here, and he is expected to arrive today. During the absence of Ambassador Elizalde, Mr. Abello will be Charge d'Affaires.

At the dinner last evening were the Ambassador of Australia and Mrs. Makin, the United States Ambassador to the Philippines and Mrs. Emmet O'Neal, the Italian Minister and Countess di Stefano, the Minister of Mexico and Senora de la Colina, the Minister of China and Mrs. Tan, the Counselor of the Philippines and Mrs. Gamboa, and Mrs. Josefa Martinez of Manila.

Major Bevan, Miss Porter Are Married

Miss Nancy Rittenhouse Porter and Maj. Wendell Lowell Bevan, jr., USAF, were married yesterday in St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Arlington, at 4 p. m., the Rev. George F. Tittmann officiating. Mrs. Bevan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Rittenhouse Porter of Kansas City, Mo., and her husband is the son of Col. and Mrs. Wendell Lowell Bevan of Fort Collins, Colo.

The bride was given in marriage by her cousin, Comdr. Andrew W. Lee, USN. She was costumed in gray gabardine dressmaker suit. Her accessories were lime and green, and she wore a corsage of yellow orchids. Miss Suzanne Lee Porter, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Maj. Donald W. Ewing, USAF, was best man.

Major Bevan attended the University of Oklahoma, and was graduated from the United States Military Academy at West Point with the class of January, 1943. Mrs. Bevan attended the University of Kansas City.

After a wedding trip to Sea Island, Ga., and Florida, the couple will reside at 2101 5th st. South, Arlington.

Mrs. Wm. Mann Welcomed at Party

Mrs. William Mann, who has just returned from a two months visit abroad, was honored at a surprise cocktail party Tuesday afternoon by Maj. Taylor Simmons. A few of her intimate friends were invited to drop by at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burke Wilkinson, which Major Simmons is renting while the Wilkinsons are in England.

Mrs. Mann spoke of seeing Mr. and Mrs. Newbold Walmsley in Rome, and dining with Myrna Loy and Gene Markey there, as well as Mr. and Mrs. Roger Livesey.

In Paris, Mrs. Mann attended a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. William Foster at their apartment at the George V Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Gassenheimer have returned to Washington after spending several months in California.

First Family Activities

Miss Truman Is Guest At Ball in St. Louis

MISS MARGARET TRUMAN last evening attended the Veiled Prophet Ball, leading social event of St. Louis. She was the guest of Mrs. John W. Snyder, wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, and Miss Drucie Snyder. It is the first time since Mrs. Grover Cleveland attended the ball in 1887 that a member of the President's immediate family has been present at the fete.

William Howard Taft occupied a box at the ball in 1908, but he was not elected President until a few months later. Miss Truman will return from St. Louis tomorrow, after a round of many parties.

No dates have been set yet for formal entertaining at the White House during the winter and fall season. Mrs. Truman will be in and out of town for the coming two weeks, accompanying the President on short campaign trips.

Saturday at 4 p. m., Mrs. Truman will be present to receive approximately 400 members of the National Democratic Women's Council. At 4 p. m. on Tuesday, October 12, in the absence of Mrs. Truman, Mrs. J. A. Krug, wife of the Secretary of the Interior, together with Mrs. Thomas Campbell Clark, wife of the Attorney General, and Mrs. Jesse Donaldson, wife of the Postmaster General, will receive the National Council of Negro Women. There will be around 600 guests.

On Thursday, October 21, Mrs. Truman will be in town to receive 250 members of the National Society of Colonial Dames of America. On Saturday, October 16, there will be a reception at the White House for officials of the Democratic National Committee. Approximately 500 are expected to attend. Mrs. Truman will receive, and possibly the President will be there, too.

In the absence of Mrs. Truman on Tuesday, October 26, Mrs. Charles Brannan, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, will receive the wives of the members of the Maryland State Dental Association.

Women Can Vote History in '48. Mrs. Weis Says

"Women will make history in 1948," Mrs. Charles W. Weis, jr., associate manager of the Dewey-Warren Republican ticket, declared yesterday.

"Women voters are in the majority by over a million and a half votes, she continued, "and our vote can bring a rebirth of full faith in the American ideal.

"In 1948, women can vote a turning point in the affairs of the Nation," she declared.

Mrs. Weis held a press conference in the Dupont Circle Building yesterday. In answer to a question as to whether Dewey, if elected, woul dappoint a woman to the Cabinet, she replied: "He is consistent in recognizing women according to their abilities."

She added, however, that she thought it would be difficult to fill most Cabinet posts with women.

"A great deal of Dewey's success in politics can be attributed to the aid of women," she declared, adding that "he will reward them provided they are qualified."

Judge Urges More Women For Top Jobs

No matter what political party wins in November, women must urge the new Administration to make more feminine appointments to high, policy-making positions.

This is what Judge Marion Harron of the United States Board of Tax Appeals recommended when sh addressed the Zonta Club luncheon meeting yesterday at Dodge Hotel.

Even if the Democrats aren't victorious in the November election—and the judge said she was doubtful that they would be—women should devote all their effort to getting one of their own sex apointed Cabinet member, United Nations delegate and other top-ranking posts, she said.

Judge Harron then took a "frankly partisan" approach. She cited the excellent record of the Democratic Administration for giving women leading political jobs over the past 12 years.

This doesn't mean women won't receive top appointments in the event of a Republican Administration next year, she added. The Republicans naturally would strive to meet the high standards of their opponents and even excel them in order to keep the good faith of the distaff membership of their party.

And each party has proven the importance of female support, the speaker continued, by appointment of women to high posts within the party ranks.

Mrs. Charles W. Tillett, vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, was scheduled to address the Zonta meeting, but was called out of town unexpectedly.

Joys of Parenthood

Give Father A Chance With Baby

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

In our new consciousness of the part played by the parents in the earliest relationships with their new babies we dare not overlook the father. Hospital, "rooming-in," not universal yet, but growing, which keeps the baby close to the mother from birth; recognizes this need for the father. Instead of gazing at the baby remotely through a nursery window, he can lean over, examine, talk to it, change it, and feel a dawning sense of the glory of his parenthood.

Strong parental emotions of pride, joy and possessiveness should be developed from earliest infancy. Men, especially those who are not accustomed to being around young babies, feel awkward and helpless in their presence.

Let Dad Practice

This is no way to help a man to learn to like to do for his small, helpless offspring. Babies are not easily injured even with inept handling. The love a father feels for his baby is insurance enough that he would not injure him. Practice makes for perfection and if he isn't the most agile-fingered individual when he begins to handle that square of diaper, or prick his fingers with its pins, he'll soon be doing it expertly and neatly.

While mothers may be more important to the baby during the first few months, no one can minimize the significance of the father in his longtime influence on the child's personality and character.

Shaping Personality

Psychologically, the child is shaped to his role in life by his identification with a parent of the same sex. But the small girl child needs the love and admiration of her father to make her own role in life as a female seem satisfying.

Doing for children, carrying them, fondling them, manufactures those bonds of love and self-confidence which support a child through life. The father is a perpetual and increasingly precious asset to the baby from the day of its birth.

THIS gracious and comfortable living room is in the Alta Vista Terrace "Home of '48," one of the 13 model houses in various sections which will be open to the public through next Sunday. Red, green, and gray are the predominant colors in this room, furnished by the P. J. Nee Co. Note the Colonial floral print used for wing chairs and draperies, the wide mirror above the handsome mantel, and the generous expanse of windows at the end of the room. The house was built by the Cambridge Construction Co. The "Homes of '48" show, which is sponsored by The Washington Post and opened September 12, was scheduled to close next Saturday but is being continued through Sunday by popular demand.

Removig Nail Polish Stain

Place an absorbent pad under the stain and wet it well with carbon tetrachloride. Then apply a drop of banana oil or a commercial nail polish remover.. When it has had time to soften, brush lightly with a soft cloth, using an upward motion to pick up the dissolved polish. As you sponge, avoid spreading the stain. This treatment may be repeated if the stain is not completely removed the first time.

Can you suggest any other color for kitchen cabinets and woodwork than white? We painted ours just a year ago and they look terrible. The cabinets are wood and show every nick and scratch and with an active 3-year-old child in the house they get quite a few. The floor is black marbleized linoleum, and the walls are green tint. The room is on the northwest side of the house and is never sunny. A. J.

Since the kitchen is somewhat dark, I would suggest you use a bright color for your cupboards. Sunlight yellow would be my first suggestion to go with your black marbleized linoleum and green walls. With yellow you could use a black trim for accent. Or you could use a pearl grey, but, of course, that color would not add the needed gay color. It is true, that both yellow and grey will have the same disadvantages, if in a less degree, which you have experienced with your white, but it seems important to introduce a light, cheerful color.

Several years ago I purchased a set of unpainted bookshelves and stained them a walnut shade, finished it off with a clear varnish. I would like to now have them done in ivory. Must I first remove the stain and varnish? If so, how do I accomplish this? M. B.

It will not be necessary to completely remove the finish before you enamel if you will just rub it lightly with sandpaper to dull the remaining varnish gloss. When sanded, sponge with turpentine to remove all dirt, grease and dust.

Will you please tell me how to make my canned red cherry pies really red like the ones served in restaurants? Mine are always a sickly purple and unappetizing looking. F. A. S.

Add red vegetable coloring to your cherry pie filling to brighten them. Use one half to three fourths of a teaspoonful of the coloring to an average-sized pie. And here's a way to improve the flavor just as much as the coloring does the appearance: add a few drops of almond flavoring to the filling.

Some years ago I used a milk product known as acidophilus milk. I would like to obtain it again. I have called two large milk companies here. They do not have it, although one did make it about five years ago. Where can I get this or a similar product in the District or nearby area? A. J.

I have not been able to find a firm which sells acidophilus milk, but there is at least one dairy here which sells yogurt, which is a similar acid-cultured milk. Yogurt is thicker than acidophilus milk so would not be suitable for drinking unless thinned with milk. Also, some of the health food stores sell a yogurt culture which comes with directions for making your own yogurt. For a store selling this product, call REpublic 1212.

'Cranberry' Cue

Because the red fruit grows on slender, curving stalks which suggest the neck of a crane, people started calling it "craneberry" in the early days, it's said. This was later shortened to cranberry.

Sweet-Tart Pie

You'd never guess it unless you came from New England, but seedless raisins and fresh cranberries taste wonderful when baked together in a pie. The sweet and tart combination is perfect.

Will Cut Better

Sprinkle a little powdered sugar on the plate before putting the bottom layer of the cake on it. Then when the cake is cut it will not stick to the plate and cause ragged slices.

PETUNIA!

The monotonous Pea

With a Bit of Humor, Too

Lovett's Press Session Gives Reassuring View Of Free Press in Action

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

THIS quaky autumn a full dress State Department press conference, with either Secretary or Undersecretary in chair, is an especially important event. Front-page stories are explained, documented; rumors, printed or told, scotched; off record asides provide correspondents with valuable background material. Accredited newsmen or women may ask any questions, which are answered at the Secretary's or Undersecretary's discretion. Yesterday Undersecretary of State Robert Lovett gave a press conference.

The conferences take place in the auditorium of the new State Department Building. The auditorium is really a handsomely decorated theater. The walls are pale blue with a darker tone dado; the stage, the windows set at second-floor level, are curtained in blue velvet; the carpet is powder blue and the seats are upholstered in beige. In front of the drawn stage curtains were two "no smoking" signs. At the foot of the aisle was a plain table, two stiff-backed chairs.

About 65 reporters were present when the Undersecretary, always promptly five minutes late, walked down the aisle followed by Michael McDermott, State Department head of press. Dressed in a gray flannel business suit, white handkerchief and pale tie, Mr. Lovett stood behind the table, answered questions in a quiet voice, punctuated his remarks on occasion with humor sufficient to rouse laughter, and in a brief half-hour span covered half a dozen complicated subjects with skillful fluency.

Since questions covered in most State Department press conferences are printed piecemeal, here is a fairly accurate, thumbnail summary of what the Undersecretary had to deal with—the United States attitude toward Franco, whether peace treaty talks on Austria would be reopened, the development of Western union, whether supplementary aid for Greece had been asked, a shooting incident involving an intruder in Washington's Hungarian Legation, a false rumor that the State Department had blocked a projected but recently canceled Export-Import Bank loan to Palestine.

Mr. Lovett took time to check the spelling of queer Greek names, countered one question as being too speculative, added a few common sense off-record explanations, simplified question with detailed background information.

To an amateur it was reassuring to hear such quiet assurance, to be able to absorb so much information painlessly, to know and actually see freedom of the press in full flower!

Mink Coat Data

ODDLY ENOUGH, just about the most provocative reading matter around town these days is authored by—of all places—the Department of Agriculture! The Agriculture boys send to their favored friends (thousands and thousands of them) a weekly clip sheet—and the headlines are positively dreamy! Here are a few: "Chicken in the Mink," "Dog Days for Beetles," "Tracing Atoms," "Chigger Freedom," "Scratch Early, Lay Often," "Teak Plantings Succeed," "Wool Moves North."

We won't steal Agriculture's thunder, but will pass on a few, to us, fascinating items. More than half the mink coats in the United States are made from about a million ranch-raised mink. For years mink ranchers have been feeding their babies fish and horse meat—a highly expensive combination. Now horses are disappearing into limbo land, their meat's being canned and frozen for domestic pet consumption and there's a considerable export demand (probably to some of the fancier foreign restaurants!)

So smartly taking a tip from the poultry-raiding habits of wild mink, sizing up their fondness for chicken dinners, experimenters at the Saratoga Springs Animal Experiment Station tried feeding the expensive creatures on waste from poultry-dressing plants! The kits, as baby mink are called, lapped up these tidbits, obligingly grew faster than when fed horse meat.

The department finishes off the mink saga in a burst of lyricism. "In the horse and buggy era, the cab horse who delivered the mink-clad belle to a fashionable restaurant might be a source of nutrition for her next mink coat. Times change. With the cab horse superseded by the motor car, it may be the chicken on her plate that contributes to her next mink coat."

At later date we'll go into chiggers, beetles and such—all of which play a surprisingly intimate role in our everyday life—more intimate, we're sorry to say, than mink as far as this department's concerned!

Hey KIDS!

Write a RADIO SLOGAN! Win up to $100 and be on the RADIO!

It's The Washington Post's "Saint Mystery Comic" Slogan Contest open to all grade school, junior high, and high school kids in the Washington area.

Try your hand at writing a catchy radio slogan for the new "Saint" mystery comic strip in The Washington Post. If you submit one of the ten best slogans you'll get $10. And you'll get a chance to step up to a microphone and sing, chant, yell, whisper or recite your slogan over the air. The one who does it best gets his (or her) $10 bill turned into $100. A record will be made of his slogan and he'll be hearing it on Washington radio stations, as part of The Post's promotion on the "Saint" comic strip.

First, begin by turning to the comic pages of The Post and get acquainted with "The Saint."

Next, decide what you want to say about this new mystery comic. Then say it—in a slogan, a jingle, what have you. With or without sound effects indicated—it doesn't matter.

Finally, write you slogan on a piece of paper, put on your name, address, age and school and send it to the "Saint Mystery Comic" Contest Editor, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. You may enter as many slogan ideas as you wish. Be sure your name and address are on each one.

The contest lasts until October 31. Entries received after October 31 will not even be opened. So get going—now. Read the Saint comic in The Washington Post. Put on your thinking cap. Try your idea out on your family. Then send it in. In case two or more persons send in the same slogan, the one reaching the judges first will be considered to be the original, so it pays to get your ideas in right away.

IT'S EASY TO WRITE A WINNING SLOGAN OR JINGLE—HERE'S HOW!

Remember that radio slogan about another comic strip character? "It's a bird! It's a plane! It's S-u-p-er-man!" What's hard about that one? you can think up another equally simple, equally effective for "The Saint." Or maybe a jingle would be more along your line. Here's an example:

(Man's voice): The Saint is a pain to the cops.
(Girl's voice): They grab him, but then off he pops.
(Man): He goes after crime.
(Girl): And wins every time.
(Together): So Post readers think he is tops.
(Close harmony): You'll see him in the e-e-m-i-e-s . . .

Easy? Sure! Didn't take two minutes. Corny? You bet! You can do lots better. And win $10—maybe $100. Let's go!

Hadassah Plans 'H-Day' For Members

Membership techniques were analyzed yesterday by the Seaboard Division of Hadassah in the first day of its two-day training institute being conducted at the Jewish Community Center.

Mrs. Arthur J. Rubel, national membership consultant for the women's Zionist organization, addressed the workshop-meeting which was attended by approximately 50 membership chairmen from the Eastern Shore chapters.

She described the "H-Day" campaign that had been so successful in bringing in new members for Hadassah groups in other cities. And then the Washington Chapter decided to stage its "H-Day" drive sometime in November.

Yesterday's sessions also included open discussions on the basic steps for maintaining a large membership: "reenrollment, recruitment, retention and records."

Leadership and fund-raising principles will be the topics of today's sessions, which will be led by Mr. Paul W. Aschner, chairman of Hadassah's national speakers bureau.

Coming Events. . .

The Junior Division, National Council of Jewish Women, will select new committee heads at a meeting Saturday, October 9, 2:30 p. m., at the Jewish Welfare Board, 1637 Massachusetts ave. nw. . . . College of William and Mary Alumni Club of Washington will hold a business meeting today, 8 p. m., at the United Nations Club, 1701 19th st. nw. On the program will be election of officers, a vote on constitutional amendments and by-laws . . . Hugh Morrow, associate editor of the Saturday Evening Post, will discuss "Techniques of Writing the Profile Article" at a meeting of the Chevy Chase Branch, National League of American Pen Women, Saturday, October 9, 2:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Francis Hoehl, 3808 East-West hwy., Chevy Chase, Md. . . . Minnesota State Society will stage a "Gopher State College" party and dance, 9:30 p. m., Saturday, October 9, at the Shoreham Hotel. Edwyn G. Rydlum heads the arrangements committee, which is composed of Rueben D. Silverson and Donald W. Larson. Special sections will be reserved for alumni of various colleges. A sewing class will be opened by the Alexandria YWCA today with Mrs. Charles Bilisoly as instructor.

Plan Dance at Shoreham

UN Club Begins Fall Program

A series of events at United Nations Club this week marks the opening of the club's fall program. Yesterday a luncheon took place in honor of Pierre Balmain, the French fashion designer. A "black tie" dinner dance is scheduled for Friday, with Sidney's orchestra; and Tuesday saw the opening of an exhibition of oil and water color marine paintings by Alfredo Carmloe of the Philippines. The exhibit is sponsored by the Philippine Ambassador, Joaquin M. Elizalde, and the Minister Counselor of the Philippine Embassy and Mrs. Ramos.

Yesterday's luncheon was presided over by Miss Meredith Howard and about 75 guests attended, seated at small tables in the ballroom. Among those present were Mme. de Margerie, wife of the French Counselor; Mrs. Harry Andrews, wife of South African Minister; Mlle. Sophie Meyer, niece of Mme. Bonnet, accompanied by Miss Jane Lingo.

Also in attendance were Senora de la Colina, wife of the charge d'affaires of the Mexican Embassy; Mrs. Theodore Hayes, Mrs. Walter Lippmann, Mrs. Blair Childs, Mrs. Tom Burke, Miss Katherine Antoniades, Mrs. Edwward R. Finkenstaedt, Mrs. English Gordon, Mrs. George Allen, Mrs. Page Hufty, Mrs. Samuel Scrivener, Mrs. Albert Cox, Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer and Mrs. Parker Dove.

British Film Shown to Guests

At the invitation of W. P. N. Edwards, head of the British Information Services, officials of the British and American Governments, members of the Diplomatic Corps and the press last evening attended a preview of one of the latest British government films, "Voices of Malaya." The film was shown in the Department of Interior Auditorium.

The British Ambassador and Lady Franks attended, as well as General and Mrs. Gascoigne, Rear Admiral M. Pride, Rear Admiral Thomas B. Inglis, the British Minister and Mrs. Aubrey Morgan, Lieut. Col. Peter Grechishkin of the Soviet Embassy, Mr. and Mrs. John Begg and Eric Cleugh.

Nylon Is Wonder Home Fabric

Although nylon has brought about a revolution in housekeeping, there are many fabrics on the market which are only part nylon which require special handling.

Valuable information concerning the varied uses of nylon and the treatment of only partly nylon fabrics is contained in the October issue of House Beautiful magazine, which shows an entire room done in this wonder-worker.

"Up to now practicality has made cowards of us all," an article in the magazine states. "When we longed for satin, we settled for sailcloth; we ogled brocade but we brought home monkscloth. But now comes a revolution in housekeeping."

"Today you can put damasks, velvets and pastel rugs into the busiest room in the house, and they still will last longer with less care than any practical-looking fabrics you've ever known. It's all done with nylon, wondrous tough and versatile fiber which can be woven into anything from spindrift gauze to a deep-pile rug."

Concerning fabrics which are only part nylon, the article states: "Many fabrics you see on the market are only part-nylon. There are blends of nylon with cotton, wool or rayon fibers; the nylon being there to give added strength, lighter weight or better appearance. Check the composition of any fabric you buy, for it will affect your care and cleaning procedure. Treat such fabrics as you would a fabric made entirely of the blending fiber. A part-nylon, part-wool blanket, for instance, should be treated as wool—protected from moths and laundered with precautions to prevent shrinkage."

"The washability of some nylon fabrics is limited by the construction of the fabric weave and the dyes used in the making. In these cases dry cleaning may be preferable. Play it safe by taking heed of the instructions given by manufacturers on labels or in care leaflets. Test washability by experimenting with a small piece of the fabric or on an inconspicuous part of the article you intend to clean."

Darnestown Club Will Celebrate 50th Birthday

The Woman's Club of Darnestown, Md., will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary with a tea, Saturday, October 9, 3 to 5 p. m., at the home of its president, Mrs. Thomas Kelley on Pleasant Hills farms.

Mrs. Kelley will receive with Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, a past president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Roy Whitlock, president, Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Charles F. Morey, president Montgomery County Federation of Women's Clubs.

Organized in 1897, the club is one of the oldest in Montgomery County. Mrs. Ernest Darby started the club by calling in a group of her friends and setting up the Mutual Improvement Club, which later was renamed its present name. The Darnestown Woman's Club was admitted into the county and State federation in 1905.

Two well known authors—Miss Amy E. Blanchard and Miss Annie Greenfield were honorary members of the club.

Kappa Alpha Theta Alumnae to Meet

The Washington alumnae chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta will begin its 1948-49 season on Tuesday, October 12, with an afternoon and evening meeting.

In the afternoon, tea will be served at the home of Mrs. Edward T. Cook, 692 Rollingwood dr., Chevy Chase, Md., following the program which is called for 2 p. m. The evening group will meet at the new apartment of the active chapter at George Washington University, 2112 G st. nw., at 8 p. m.

Reports of the national convention held this summer on Mackinac Island will be given by Mrs. Donald Hogate, District president, and by Mrs. Paul E. Shorb, president of the Washington Alumnae Association.

Dessert Tips

Use a packaged cupcake or white cake mix for a quick dessert. Frost with orange topping made by blending a quarter cup of strained orange juice with a quarter cup of melted butter or margarine and about 3 cups of confectioner's sugar. Add the grated rind of the orange, if you like, and be sure to sift the sugar before using to get rid of any lumps.

A dessert all teen agers welcome at a party is a sundae mad of coffee ice cream, marshmallow sauce and toasted almonds. Or serve vanilla ice cream with peach sauce and shaved Brazil nuts.

A Necessary Article

Where there is an invalid in the home a medicine glass is an absolute necessity. A dose of medicine taken from a measuring glass is far more accurate than when taken from a teaspoon. Teaspoons vary in size and therefore are not true. A few pennies will purchase this valuable addition to the medicine cabinet.

Two to One . . . You'll Love Our 2-in-1 Coat!

all for only $25

Two to one you'll say it's the neatest trick of the season . . . for our little "turn-about" coat is just as good as having two coats. Either side turns out charmingly; even the gay little hood is reversible! The plaid side is all wool; the grey side, 90% reprocessed wool, 10% new wool. Teen sizes 10 to 16.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Backward Driver Saves Wayward Bus

About 35 District Liners who were on an A. B. & W. bus last Wednesday are still talking about an unscheduled stop they made. Somehow, the papers missed this one.

The bus had stopped at Arlington Ridge rd. and was proceeding up a grade near Arlington Farms when its driveshaft snapped, knocking out the hydraulic brake system.

The driver suddenly found that he had no forward power, and no braking power. The huge vehicle started to slide back down the slope.

Steering skilfully, the driver got his bus up on the grass, and let it bounce along there for about a city block until it gently came to rest of its own accord.

Whereupon his heart-in-mouth passengers, most of them women, heaved a collective sigh of relief and assured him that he was the best little old bus driver in the whole wide world.

Company records list the unsung hero as James Cameron of 50 Kings hwy., Alexandria, Va. He's 25 years old, and has been regarded as "a good, safe driver" by A. B. & W. for the past 2½ years.

Take a bow, Jimmy. Just because your driving has been a bit backward at times is no reason for your not getting proper credit.

SOME PEOPLE HAVE ALL THE LUCK

There must have been many an envious look around the conference table when the Syrian delegate to the U. N. Security Council fell asleep during Vishinsky's speech.

GIVE-AWAYS

EVERYBODY GETS PRESENTS EXCEPT SANTA CLAUS

The other day I kidded the Hecht Co. a bit, following its announcement that it would send a couple of Santa Claus applicants to school at Olean, N. Y.

Mrs. H. W. Clarkson of 6619 Fairfax rd., Bethesda, Md., promptly protested that we shouldn't kid about such things—because "if ever trained players were needed for a role, it's for the part of the beloved St. Nick."

Mrs. Clarkson takes a dim view of unschooled Santas who frighten or confuse children, while they make a grandstand play for the adults.

And, of course, she's perfectly right. It's positively cruel to build up Santa as a legendary figure in the child's mind, and then have some seedy character destroy the illusion because he hasn't the foggiest notion of what Santa is supposed to be like.

It's small wonder, because instead of Olean, the story should have said Albion, N. Y. My spies at the Hecht Co. got their signals crossed by about 100 miles.

Henry F. Unger of 4930 South Dakota ave. ne. sets us straight on the city, and he ought to know.

On the very day the item appeared here he was notified by the Goodrich Tire Co. that it was accepting his article on the School for Santas, and would print it in its magazine, Men, which has a circulation of three million.

According to Henry's article, the man who runs the school says that Santa has the hardest job in a department store—much tougher than the man who runs the store.

Unfortunately, when the weekly salary checks come around, they don't pay off on that basis. Santa discovers that there ain't no Santa Claus.

MONETARY FUND HAS SURPLUS OF ONE

Dr. Wang Yun-Wu of China, retiring chairman of the Board of Governors of the World Bank and Monetary Fund, flew to Washington from San Francisco the other day with an entourage of a score of his countrymen.

When the Frisco plane landed at National Airport the Chinese gentlemen were bundled into waiting autos and (behind a police escort) taken to the Shoreham.

At the hotel the efficiency on the arrangements was even more apparent. Registration had been taken care of in advance, and as each guest identified his luggage, a waiting bellboy took him off to his room.

"You can't mean that," replied the official, aghast. "You've just arrived. Wait here a minute, and I'll get this error straightened out, and get you a room."

"Look," said the odd man, wearily. "I don't know what this is all about, but I don't want a room. I went to San Francisco to visit my relatives, and when I got back at the airport tonight, they loaded me in a car and took me to this hotel.

"But I don't want to stay here—I want to get back to Arlington, to my laundry. May I please go now?"

NEW YORK—The new press-card rule at the Herald-Tribune limits their issuance only to working reporters. This applies to the publisher, Whitelaw Reid, and his mother, Helen Rogers Reid . . . Danny Kaye, the only American ever requested by the King and Queen for the command performance variety show, will fly to London with his wife, November 1.

Former Gov. Herbert Lehman of New York hasn't been asked by any Democratic Party official to make any speeches . . . Lowell Brentano signed Rabbi Stephen Wise to write a book, "My 40 Years' Battle in the Ministry." After many years of waiting Brentano asked Wise about the progress of the book. "So far, I've changed the title," replied Wise, "to 'My 50 Years' Battle in the Ministry.'"

Last week Cardinal Spellman met with Mayor O'Dwyer regarding plans to build a Babe Ruth Memorial Stadium in White Plains—Contributions, incidentally, should be mailed to "Cardinal Spellman, N. Y. 22, N. Y."—and mention was made of the Vote Registration. His Eminence told of having gone to a registration place, where the clerk asked his name, and was told "Francis Cardinal Spellman." The clerk then asked "Profession?" Next in line was a man who gave his first name, "Walter." The clerk asked "Is that spelled with an 'H'?" . . . "And if the registration is slow," His Eminence told O'Dwyer, "this may explain why."

A recent visitor to Paris approached the newsstand in the lobby of the George V Hotel, and asked for a copy of the Paris Herald. The salesgirl gave him a copy, and he glanced at it and said: "No. This is last week's. I want a copy of today's issue" . . . The salesgirl looked at the date, and reassured him: "No. This is today's paper, Wednesday, not last Wednesday's" . . . "But the headline is 'French Government Falls'," the man reminded her. "That happened last Wednesday" . . . "That was the old government," said the salesgirl. "The new government fell last night" . . . "Thank you," said the man, and bought the paper.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman-Ickes Relations Cued Up

By Drew Pearson

Honest Harold Ickes, who sometimes wields a meat axe for a pen, and Harry Truman, who can be blunter than a concrete pavement, got along pretty well when they met at the White House this week.

Ickes

Neither had seen each other since they parted in a blaze of verbal glory two and a half years ago.

"I never held anything against you," the President told his former Secretary of the Interior. Obviously he was referring to some of the things Ickes wrote about him in his pungent column.

Probably Ickes could have said the same about some of Truman's harsh remarks, but he didn't. Instead he reminded his former boss about an incident which Truman had completely forgotten. It was in the early days of the Truman Administration and referred to tidelands oil.

Ickes had never been able to get Attorney General Francis Biddle, liberal as he was, to bring an action before the Supreme Court to recover the submerged oil lands of California, Texas and Louisiana for the Federal Government. Nor had Truman's Attorney General Tom Clark yet moved. So Ickes laid the thorny problem right in Truman's lap. And without batting an eye, Truman promised action.

Next day at a Cabinet meeting he carried out his promise. Asking Tom Clark when the tidelands oil suit would be taken before the Supreme Court, Truman added: "I want it taken up right away."

It was one of the most controversial issues in the Far West, certain to lose votes, sure to rouse the undying ire of the big oil boys who had contributed to Truman's campaign. Nevertheless, the suit was brought and won.

This week Ickes reminded Truman of the forgotten incident, then volunteered to make some speeches pointing out that Truman had the courage of his convictions while Dewey had avoided putting certain controversial cards on the table.

Truman on Wallace's Eggs

When District of Columbia Democratic leaders greeted the President on his return to Washington from the hustings, the first question they asked him was about his health.

"Vitamin C stands for campaigning as far as I'm concerned," replied Truman. ""When I left town on this trip I had a cold and a sore throat. Now I'm rid of both and I gained 10 pounds while making 120 speeches."

"What do you think of those Texans tossing eggs at Henry Wallace?" inquired Al Wheeler, Washington attorney and chairman of the D. C. Democratic Committee.

"I was sorry to hear about that—I really was," replied the President. "I guess the incident was building up for a long time. Some of those Texans have never liked Wallace since the day he was plowing under pigs.

"Then they got akful mad about Wallace posing as a missionary trying to make Christians out of Southerners who don't agree with him. Add to that Wallace's Commie connections and you get some idea why those eggs were thrown. Those Texans couldn't hold out any longer.

"But I don't like that kind of a demonstration in a democratic country," concluded Truman, "regardless of the circumstances behind it."

Merry-Go-Round

Congressman Parnell Thomas has begun mailing out 10,000 special letters to New Jersey voters—at the taxpayers' expense—aimed to strengthen his shaky chances of re-election . . . when President Truman returned from his Western campaign trip one of those waiting to greet him inside the White House grounds was his old bootblack friend—John Maragon of Kansas City . . . The President has been assured by his aides that he'll carry every State in the South (Southerners doubt it) . . . Roger Straus, of American Smelting and Refining, whose father, Oscar Straus, was Secretary of Commerce under Teddy Roosevelt, is slated for a Cabinet job under Dewey.

Vandenberg Gets Busy

Tow Dewey had to put heavy pressure on his old friend and one-time rival—Senator Arthur Vandenberg—to get Vandenberg to campaign for the Republican ticket.

Vandenberg, who prides himself on his partisanship, didn't want to make any speeches at all. However, one of Van's close friends, former Senator John Townsend of Delaware, warned him that unless every Republican got out and worker the Democrats were likely to capture the Senate.

Note—Arthur is now campaigning.

He is scheduling another 100 speeches between now and Election Day, and sooner or later he hopes to step on enough of Dewey's toes to smoke him out and make him fight back.

Here is the wind-up for the last week of what will be the most vigorous campaign probably staged by any President in history:

Leave Washington Saturday, October 23, with "whistle stop" speeches for three days en route to Chicago . . . Tuesday, October 26, important speeches in Gary and South Bend, Ind., Toledo, Sandusky and Cleveland, Ohio . . . October 27, a jump back to Pittsfield, Springfield, Worcester and Boston, Mass. . . . Next day, Hartford, New Haven, Bridgeport and Stamford, Conn. . . . Night of October 28, a big rally in New York, following which Truman will leave for Kansas City and his final speech on Saturday, October 30.

Under the Dome

Michiganders are wondering why the Ford Motor Co. and General Motors haven't canceled the franchises of auto dealers Graff and Burgess, both indicted for violation of the Corrupt Practices Act . . . Atomic Energy Commissioner Louis Strauss will make an important speech on peacetime uses of atomic energy at the University of New Hampshire . . . Congratulations to Attorney General Tom Clark for naming a woman, Grace Stewart, to one of the top positions in the Justice Department. Mrs. Stewart is now executive assistant to the Attorney General.

Political Writers All Pick Dewey In Questionnaire

By the United Press

A Newsweek magazine poll of 50 of the Nation's leading political writers shows Republican Candidate Thomas E. Dewey the unanimous choice of the experts to win the presidential election next month.

The writers also look for the Republicans to retain narrow control of the Senate and increase their margin in the House.

Their answers to the Newsweek questionnaire were based entirely on the outlook as of today, and most of them felt that popular demand for a change in administration was the principal factor which would defeat President Truman.

The average of their forecasts gave Dewey 376 of the 531 electoral votes, with Mr. Truman trailing badly with 116; States Rights Candidate Gov. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina third with 39, and Progressive Candidate Henry A. Wallace a poor fourth without a single electoral vote.
